Belgrade, March 12.—Yugoslavia, the last Balkan state uncommitted to either of the great belligerents, has agreed "in principle" to sign up with the German-Italian-Japanese alliance, government circles said tonight, but wants more time before the pen is put irrevocably to paper.

After hours of urgent conferences, Regent Prince Paul and his advisers were understood to have made these counter-proposals to the German demands:

1. That Yugoslavia sign immediately only a declaration of friendship with Germany and thus be allowed a transition period, before going all the way, to try to modify pro-British sentiment in this country in an effort to avoid possible internal trouble.

2. That the German and Yugoslav governments have a further discussion of Nazi demands for the demobilization of the Yugoslavian army, for a guarantee that the Yugoslavs will make "no military moves," and for the right to pass troops through southeastern Yugoslavia from Bulgaria into Greece.

This form of capitulation, it was understood, was made upon representations by military leaders to Prince Paul that military resistance was impossible since the country is all but surrounded by Axis areas.

Premier Dragisa Cvetkovic and Foreign Minister Aleksander Cincar-Markovic will go to Berlin soon, it

Eclipse of Moon Is Celestial Show For Early Risers

The sun and the moon will do a little cosmic romancing at dawn today.

The celestial kiss will be visible all over the United States, providing the chaperone, Nature, does not put up a screen of clouds. Whatever the weather, the milkman will be the chief Peeping Tom. Few others will be up.

This partial eclipse—only one visible this year—will begin at 5:55 a. m. and end at 7:55 a. m., scientists at the United States Naval Observatory said.

At 6:55 a. m. 32.8 per cent of the moon's diameter will be in the earth's shadow. In the vicinity of Washington, where the moon sets at 6:10 a. m., the eclipse will be barely visible. It will be seen to best advantage in the West.

Greeks Smash Fascist Legions Attacking Under Duce's Eye

Mussolini, at Front, Demands Results; Italian Dead Strew Field, Athens Says

By the Associated Press

Athens, March 12.—A Greek spokesman declared tonight Premier Mussolini, personally taking command on the Albanian front, spurred the Italian army on a fierce counter-offensive but that it was smashed by the Greeks in four days of heavy fighting.

The spokesman also declared Il Duce had laid down an ultimatum to his generals to "do something" by Saturday.

The accelerated attacks—heaviest of the Albanian war—cost the Italians enormous losses in manpower, the spokesman said, and they left the battlefield strewn with dead and wounded.

The basis for the Greek reports on Mussolini came from Italian officers captured in the prolonged and heated fighting for Tepeleni, Greek sources said.

The Greek high command indicated the Italians had failed to dent Greek lines despite the ferocity of the fighting under Mussolini's personal orders. A communique said 200 more prisoners had been taken.

The Italians struck at six points along the line, with the greatest forces thrown into such an action since the war began, and were everywhere thrown back, Greek dispatches said, adding that the Greeks were able to seize new positions in the Heights northwest of Tepeleni.

Among the prisoners taken yesterday, this official informant said, were Blackshirt officers who said that Mussolini had been in Albania, in the central sector, for five days.

His visit, these officers were quoted as saying, was to bolster the morale of his troops, and he declared to his military leaders that he was leaving Saturday and that they must accomplish something before he departs.

The Fascist counter-thrusts, begun yesterday in force, suggested the beginning of a sustained major counter-offensive.

"The Italians," the spokesman summed up, "displayed great activity yesterday, having attacked over a 20-kilometer (about 12 miles) front, using large forces.

"The attack was violent and sup-

London Hints New Defense In Night Raids

Rumble Indicates Heavier Gun Than Usual Antiaircraft Weapons

By the Associated Press

London (Thursday), March 13.—The thunderous rumble of an artillery barrage different from anything previously heard in London indicated some new development in antiaircraft defense last night as German bombers attacked the capital and many widely separated districts.

Bombers subjected Liverpool to its longest raid of the year and struck simultaneously at London, the Midlands, East Anglia and southwest and southeast England.

London had three alarms. Four raiders were reported shot down, two in northwest England and two in the south, and two crewmen were captured.

Authorities said the bombers over Liverpool flew so high they bombed indiscriminately, but said only one death and a few injuries were reported. Damage was not stated.

Nature of the defensive fire was not disclosed, but its noise resembled that of heavy artillery rather than the familiar crack of conventional antiaircraft guns.

On the offensive side, the British announced that shipyards and docks at the huge German naval base of Kiel and at nearby Bremerhaven were bombed "successfully" Tuesday night.

Royal Air Force pilots said their bombs started one "extensive fire" at Kiel and declared other bombs burst on shipbuilding yards and

Germans Bar Women From Train Berths

By Louis P. Lochner

Berlin, March 12.—It's a man's world more than ever in Germany now.

This was made plain on our return to Germany from a four-week vacation in the Swiss Alps.

At Basel my wife was unable to obtain a berth because all German sleepers now are reserved for men.

"During these war times men traveling through the night must arrive at their destination fully rested," was the explanation offered us.

We produced two paid sleeper tickets.

"Sorry," said the agent, "but you bought tickets on February 7. New regulations have superseded them."

So we took a tedious day train leaving Basel at 5:50 a. m. and arriving in Berlin at 10 p. m.

On the train, we noticed the look of surprise on fellow passengers when they saw our tanned faces. Other travelers were for the most part pale and it seemed to us that they, as belligerents, were far more nervous than the neutral Swiss.

One stock question asked by virtually everybody who learned we came from Switzerland was:

"How's the food over there?"

One who asked this question immediately added: "I really need not ask, for I see how well fed and healthy you look."

We reentered Germany on one of those monthly one-dish Sundays—when all Germany eats only a one-

Army Officer Faces Inquest Today in Taxi Driver's Death

A coroner's jury today will decide whether Maj. Harold R. Buckley, 44, Army Air Corps, is to be prosecuted in connection with the death of a 45-year-old cab driver and World War veteran, who died following an altercation with the officer early yesterday.

Though a post mortem at the District Morgue showed the cab driver, Frederick Lacey, of the 1900 block of Pennsylvania Avenue northwest, died of a heart attack, Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald ordered the inquest to determine whether Maj. Buckley's blow was responsible.

Lieut. George E. Darnall, chief of the police homicide squad, said Lacey had a record of arrests on misdemeanors and that the record would be taken to the inquest.

Maj. Buckley was detained in the witness room at the Twelfth Precinct until after the autopsy. He was then released to the War Department to appear at today's inquest.

A reserve officer assigned to the office of the Chief of Air Corps, Maj. Buckley told police he was unable to sleep and had left his room at the University Club for a walk about 4:30 a. m. yesterday.

He stopped at a hamburger stand in the 1400 block H Street Northwest, for a sandwich and while there another customer came in with a Great Dane dog. The major said he was stroking the animal's ears when Lacey, who was also in the restaurant, apparently took offense, accusing the officer of handling the dog roughly.

Buckley said Lacey cursed him and rather than start an argument he walked outside. Lacey followed him, the major stated, and struck at him. It was then, he said, that he swung at Lacey, striking him on the jaw and knocking him to the pavement.

French Hope To Get Food Through U.S.

Vichy Would Prefer Not to Use Fleet, Believes America Will Sway Britain

By Ralph E. Heinzen
United Press Staff Writer

Vichy, March 12.—The Petain government announced tonight that United States intervention may bring about a compromise with Great Britain, and avert the use of French warships to convoy foodships through the British blockade.

A spokesman said the government is highly satisfied with American reaction to Vice Premier Admiral Francois Darlan's warning Monday that unless Britain lifts the food blockade within "a few weeks," he is prepared to use the French fleet to convoy food.

The possibility is seen, the spokesman added, that the United States will intervene directly with London and obtain at least a temporary relaxation of the blockade whereby 600,000 tons of American wheat can be shipped to unoccupied France to "avert starvation."

The French government was said to be ready to guarantee that none of the American wheat or other foodstuffs would reach the Germans or Italians.

Awaits United States Reply

Admiral Darlan, it was said, intends to take no action toward bringing the immobilized French fleet into use to protect food convoys until Washington's answer to his request for 600,000 tons of wheat is received.

The spokesman said that, contrary to the impression held in some quarters abroad, the Petain government is under no obligation to furnish foodstuffs by requisition to Germany, hence any supplies reaching unoccupied France will remain here and "cannot possibly affect Germany's ability to continue the war."

Indication that the British might already be preparing to relax the blockade of unoccupied France was seen tonight in information that two gasoline laden tankers supplied with British navicerts have arrived in French North Africa, to aid in overcoming a serious transportation problem blocking food deliveries.

French Seek Others

It also was reported that the French are attempting to obtain British navicerts for at least two ships bringing small quantities of wheat to unoccupied France.

These small grain deliveries are urgently needed to alleviate suffering in such cities as Montpellier where restaurants are serving luncheons consisting of only a few slices of rutabaga, two sardines, six snails and two slices of bread.

London, March 12.—Prime Minister Churchill expressed to a jubilant House of Commons this afternoon the gratitude of Britain and all freedom-loving nations to the United States for the passage of the lend-lease bill which the British Premier, with his flair for the telling phrase, calls a "new Magna Carta."

In tones heavy with emotion, Churchill expressed the "deep and respectful appreciation" of this nation for what he termed "this monument of generous and far-seeing statesmanship."

The Premier's words awakened echoes throughout the nation. Official circles were deeply gratified. The press hailed the passage of the lease and lend law as a momentous step forward in American foreign policy, ending the period of American isolation.

U. S. Army Men Present

The man in the street who, in the blackest days, never lost faith in ultimate victory, feels now that this goal has been brought significantly nearer.

Churchill's tribute to this historic move was heard by a number of the special American military observers attached to the United States Embassy here. Several of them were in uniform.

They included Maj. Gen. Carlysle H. Walsh, Maj. Gen. Millard F. Harman, Col. B. M. Giles, Col. J. L. Hatcher, Maj. R. E. Nugent, Maj. C. P. Cabell, Maj. J. G. Moore, Maj. H. J. McChrystal and Capt. Vance, of the United States Army.

The House was filled in anticipation of the Prime Minister's statement. Speaking with impressive deliberation, Churchill said: "I am sure that the House would wish me to express on their behalf and on behalf of the Nation, our deep and respectful appreciation of this

New, Better Autogiro May Help Convoy U. S. Aid to Britain

Freighters Could Launch Straight-Rising Craft, Able to Hover Over U-Boats

By John G. Norris

Great Britain is considering the use of new, greatly-improved autogiros, operating from merchant ship convoys, it was disclosed last night, as one means of meeting the Nazi U-boat threat in the Atlantic.

Authoritative sources here said that the British purchasing mission is negotiating for the production of such aircraft to help patrol American aid across the ocean. The United States Government also is studying the new-type autogiro for convoy work, it was stated.

Autogiros can take off and land almost perpendicularly or hover practically motionless. The latter characteristic makes them valuable for patrol work, particularly for spotting submarines, which can be seen under the water from low altitudes.

Conventional airplanes require a landing deck aboard ship, which makes them impracticable for convoy work. Seaplanes, of course, are used, but they must be large, long-range craft, and are handicapped by their inability to hover.

A new design of rotor craft built by the Pitcairn-Larsen Autogiro Co., of Willow Grove, Pa., is said to be admirably adapted to convoying slow-moving merchantment. Defects in prior models which made them unsuited for such work—principally inability to carry much weight and to rise without a taxi takeoff—have been overcome, it is stated.

The new craft can carry a pilot and an observer, two depth-charges weighing more than 300 pounds each, two-way radio, and flares and raft. It is also said that it can take off almost perpendicularly from the deck of a merchantman, stay in the air on patrol for 6 to 8 hours, and come back to the ship for refueling. It is propelled by a 450 horsepower engine.

Besides dropping depth-charges to destroy an attacking U-boat, the craft could radio warning of the enemy to escort ships, it is pointed out.

Officials here have heard reports that Germany has been building autogiros, though what use is contemplated is not known.

Estimate Hearings Scheduled Today After Roosevelt Appeals for Action

Post Staff Writer

The Administration moved yesterday with unsurpassed speed to funnel through Congress within three weeks the $7,000,000,000 asked by the President to increase the arms flow to Britain.

The President appealed for immediate enactment. Speaker Rayburn echoed the call and the House Appropriations Committee gave green light to the unprecedented estimates. Action by the House next Wednesday or Thursday was tentatively predicted.

Hearings will open this afternoon before a deficiencies subcommittee, with Secretary of State Hull the No. 1 witness. Hull will be followed by Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau, Secretary of Navy Knox, Secretary of War Stimson and ranking Army and Navy officers.

Acting Chairman Clifton A. Woodrum said that by Saturday the subcommittee will be through with its work.

The legislative speed-up, in sharp contrast with the total of two months spent in lend-lease bill consideration, will be accompanied by accelerated industrial mobilization as the "go to it" program takes root.

In a letter to Speaker Rayburn, transmitting the aid estimates, President Roosevelt stressed "the fixed policy of this Government to make for democracies "every gun, plane and munition of war that we possibly can."

The $7,000,000,000 aid total was broken down as follows in the estimates prepared by Budget Director Smith:

Doctors Seek To Introduce GHA Records

Hope to Reveal Financial History Of Cooperative

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

The doctors on trial for violating the Sherman Act will learn today whether documents on the financial origin of Group Health Association may be invoked in their defense.

Concluding a day devoted almost entirely to testimony by Dr. William C. Woodward, Justice James M. Proctor late yesterday announced he would hear arguments this morning for and against the records' admissibility.

They have already been identified as to their authenticity by Senator Pat McCarran (Democrat), of Nevada, and Home Owners Loan Corporation officials. The Senator, a critic of the $40,000 "loans" by which the HOLC started G. H. A., appeared briefly on the witness stand in District Court on Monday.

Should Justice Proctor's decision favor the defense, the details of the establishment of Group Health Association in 1937, which allegedly was attended by restraint on the part of organized medicine, will probably be brought to light.

Such a development would appreciably lengthen the trial, which yesterday entered its sixth week.

First of New Powder Plants Set for Action

Production to Begin Next Week at Huge Works in Virginia

The Army announced last night that the first of its nearly two score munitions plants, a $44,100,000 powder works at Radford, Va., will begin production next week—three months ahead of schedule.

Barely six months after construction of the sprawling Virginia plant got underway last fall, one production line will get into operation, it was said, turning out smokeless powder for the American Army and the warring democracies.

Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson will lead a large contingent of defense officials and members of Congress to Radford for dedication ceremonies tomorrow afternoon. There, he, Gov. Price, of Virginia,, and others will publicly thank some 18,000 construction workmen for bringing the establishment into operation ahead of schedule by continuous round-the-clock labor.

The War Department said that by early summer the plant would reach capacity production, when it will turn out 300,000 pounds of smokeless powder a day for bullets and cannon. Its completion along with others now building will relieve the minds of defense chiefs greatly, as powder is a weak spot of the arms program.

The very limited powder production facilities in the United States were cut in half by an explosion at the Hercules plant last year. Officials say, however, that the new

New York, March 12.—Flowers and parties took the center of the stage at the income tax trial of Joseph M. Schenck in Federal court today as the Government continued its efforts to prove that many "business expense" deductions made by the movie magnate were purely social and not legally deductible.

Miss Grace Poggi, professional dancer and former film performer, characterized by the Government as a "spendee," was the principal witness.

A "spendee," it was explained, is a glamour girl on whom large sums of money are spent.

Miss Poggi testified that she had known Schenck for eight years, having met him when she was under contract to Samuel Goldwyn. She lived in his Beverly Hills home for three months in 1935, while Schenck was in Europe, she said, and during that time gave parties there.

Miss Poggi testified further that the movie executive had allowed her to use his yacht.

"During all the time you testified about, Mr. Schenck was not married, was he?" asked the prosecutor.

"No," replied Miss Poggi.

It was also brought out that it was nothing unusual for the producer to send his friends $500 bouquets of flowers. The Government contends that Schenck was reimbursed for these floral tributes by Twentieth Century-Fox, of which he is chairman of the board.

Francis T. Kelly, company auditor, testified that Schenck had a contract paying him $2,500 a week, plus "reasonable living and traveling expenses while away from home."

D. C. Police Declared Too Few To Cope With Growing Vice

Washington's police force lacks the personnel to cope with the vice problems created by the city's rapid growth and the proximity of expanding Army posts, the House Military Affairs Committee was told yesterday.

Ray H. Everett, executive secretary of the District Social Hygiene Society, stated that street solicitation by prostitutes, directed particularly toward men in uniform, is on the increase here and carries a serious menace to community health. He said 34.5 per cent of the women convicted of prostitution here in the past 19 months were infected with veneral disease.

Everett appeared in support of legislation to give the War and Navy Departments authority to suppress prostitution in designated areas within "reasonable distance" of military and naval posts.

The witness told the committee that Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, believes the bill would prove "decidedly helpful" in combatting prostitution here.

Everett praised Maj. Brown for a policy of "vigorous law enforcement," stating that Washington "in normal times has rated as one of the best cities in the country from the standpoint of commercialized prostitution."

In the present situation, however, "the police force has insufficient personnel for the continuous intensive pressure needed to eliminate commercial prostitution," Everett said.

Street solicitation has become such a nuisance in one District neighborhood, he stated, that businessmen have complained of declining property values in the area.

Arthur T. McCormack, Kentucky State Health Commissioner, told the committee that efforts to eliminate Santiago, Chile, March 12 (U.P.)—Mrs. Hermina Arrate Davila, wife of former President Carlos G. Davila, died here today after a lengthy illness.

Mrs. Davila was living in New York when her physicians advised her to return to Chile's milder climate. President Roosevelt placed one of the Army's "flying fortresses" at her disposal when he was informed she might not be able to stand the trip by steamer or commercial plane.

Mrs. Davila was taken to a hospital when she reached Santiago.

Mrs. Davila was well known in Chile as a painter, and had exhibited her work in Washington and New York. She was an important social figure in Washington while her husband was Chilean Ambassador to the United States from 1927 to 1931.

McCarthy, Canada's New Envoy, Arrives

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

Leighton McCarthy, a ruddy-faced, smiling lawyer of 71, arrived in Washington yesterday to assume his duties as Canadian Minister to the United States.

A personal friend of President Roosevelt and a trustee of the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, Minister McCarthy was greeted at Union Station by George T. Summerlin, chief of the State Department's division of protocol, and by Hume Wrong, counselor of the Canadian Legation; Merchant Mahoney, charge d'affaires; Commodore Victor G. Brodeur, naval attache; Brig. Gen. H. F. G. Leston, military attache, and Air Commodore W. R. Kenny, air attache.

Accompanied by Son

Minister McCarthy was carrying a spare overcoat as he stepped from his train. He was accompanied by John McCarthy, his son. Mrs. McCarthy, it was understood, will come here later.

Asked how Canada felt about final passage of the lend-lease bill, Minister McCarthy said that he had been in New York for the last few days.

"But I am sure Canada is very much pleased," he said.

The new Canadian envoy is one of Canada's foremost lawyers and businessmen. He is chairman of the Canada Life Assurance Co., and chairman of the board of the National Trust Co. He was largely instrumental in establishing the Aluminum Co. of Canada and the Union Carbide Co. of Canada.

He has the appearance of a man who likes the outdoors, and this is explained by his favorite recreations—golf, fishing and riding.

Minister CcCarthy succeeds Loring Christie, who was compelled to seek leave of absence because of ill health.

When Prime Minister Mackenzie King announced McCarthy's appointment on February 25, he took cognizance of agitation for the raising of the Canadian Legation here to an embassy. He said that there were "the strongest of reasons why we should have an embassy at Washington at this particular moment," but said the step would not be taken without serious consideration.

Minister McCarthy said at the station yesterday that he would arrange for a press conference as soon as he had found his bearings here.

Assurance of Victory, Says Canada's Premier

Copyright by New York Times

Ottawa, March 12.—All parties in the House of Commons joined in applause this afternoon when Prime Minister William D. MacKenzie King and R. B. Hanson, leader of the conservative opposition, rose in turn to give expression to "the satisfaction felt throughout Canada at the news received last night that the lease-lend bill had passed the Congress of the United States and been signed by the President."

"The signature by the President of this bill, after its passage by large majorities will stand throughout time as one of the milestones of freedom," MacKenzie King declared. "It points the way to ultimate and certain victory. The majorities given to it are evidence that this law carries with it the overwhelming approval of the citizens of the United States. . . .

"It is in no sense a belittling of the magnificent effort of Britain and the nations of the British Commonwealth to say that the aid, the cooperation and the limitless resources of the United States definitely assure final victory."

Hanson said that "We in Canada as good neighbors of the United States along with our kinfolk in Britain should raise our voices in grateful acknowledgment of the effort of the President and his Administration in pursuing the policy now adopted, and in the days to come with the abundant assistance which will be forthcoming we and generations yet unborn will raise our voices and call their names blessed."

A British communique reported also that a lone bomber had dropped explosives on an oil storage plant at Rotterdam and a factory near Utrecht, both in Holland.

German raiders gave a northwestern English city its heaviest attack in months Tuesday night, and continued sporadic raids over England. The only daylight bombing Wednesday was reported from East Kent.

In Tuesday night's raids, six persons were killed in one Midlands residential district, and in another 150 were driven from their homes by bombs which were believed to have buried others in wreckage.

The British claimed destruction of a Heinkel 115 as it attempted to attack a convoy off the east coast of Scotland, a Heinkel 59 seaplane off the Danish coast and another Nazi plane at an airport in northern France.

Eire Again Bombed By Unidentified Plane

Dublin, March 12 (U.P.).—Neutral Eire territory was bombed for at least the third time today when an unidentified plane dropped explosives near Carndonagh and Innishowen in County Donegal without causing damage.

course dinner and turns the money thus saved over to the Reich's winter relief fund.

We had one palatable course of thick pea soup with about two ounces of beef in it. Some travelers, especially soldiers, asked for a second helping. They were told they could have only one dish for the fixed price of one mark (about 40 cents); if they wished another they must pay for it. Many did.

We saw many trains of coal and lumber rolling in the direction of Italy.

Switzerland, a country without coal, obtains her supply from Germany and in return she places her railway system—including the famed St. Gotthard Pass and Simplon Tunnels—at the disposal of the Axis for the transport of fuel.

We couldn't help but notice that military uniforms dominated the scene at every station through which we passed, and in the coaches of our abnormally long train.

Not that Switzerland had made us forget uniforms. On the contrary, in the winter resort high above the Rhone valley where we hoped to forget about the war, Swiss soldiers doggedly were training on skis so heavy we often wondered how they could skim over the surface of snow three feet deep.

But in Switzerland the training seemed hypothetical, whereas in Germany the spirit of the spring offensive forecast by Adolf Hitler was in the air.

Furloughed men appeared to be hastening back to their regiments. Long freight trains carried every conceivable kind of equipment.

One of the most interesting sights along the route was a big flotilla of barrage balloons, like those Britain uses, hovering over one huge industrial plant.

In train compartments, the conversation was restrained, for everywhere signs warned:

"Be careful when talking—the enemy is listening."

Yet, in our compartment, where there usually were one or two German officers, nobody took offense at our speaking English or reading American magazines.

He added that Greek bombers caused "much damage" to Italian camps.

The Fascist wounded, the Greeks declared, were so numerous in some areas that Italian stretcher bearers were unable to clear the field and the Greeks themselves picked up 20 wounded Italian officers.

The Italians, said Greek accounts, went into battle against the Greeks crying out, 'vanti Per Duce" ("Forward for the Leader"), but found only disaster at the end of their charges.

Hospital Ship Attacked

The ministry of marine asserted tonight than an Italian bomber had attacked a loaded hospital ship "which" already had been announced to the Italian government as such and was bearing the regular Red Cross sign.

The ministry communique said the ship Socrates was attacked by a tri-motored Italian seaplane, which from a height of about 975 feet dropped three bombs.

"They fell at a distance of hardly 50 meters (about 175 feet) from her stern," the communique added. "Fragments of these bombs caused slight damage to the deck."

monument of generous and far-seeing statesmanship.

"The most powerful democracy has, in effect, declared in solemn statute that they will devote their overwhelming financial strength to insuring the defeat of Nazism, in order that nations great and small may live in security, tolerance and freedom.

"By so doing, the Government and people of the United States have, in fact, written a new Magna Carta which not only has regard for the rights and laws upon which a healthy and advancing civilization can alone be erected, but also proclaims by precept and example the duty of free men and free nations wherever they may be to share the responsibility and burden of enforcing them.

"In the name of His Majesty's Government and speaking, I am sure, for Parliament and the whole empire, and indeed in the name of all freedom-loving peoples, I offer to the United States our gratitude for an inspiring act of faith."

Churchill was asked whether, in view of the great importance of his statement, he would consider making a broadcast to America in similar terms and on a wave length which could be heard in this country as well, the premier replied:

"I think I must try to choose the exact moment for such a broadcast."

De Gaulle Hails U. S. Aid to Allies

New York, March 12 (AP).—Gen. Charles De Gaulle, leader of the "Free French" movement, thanked the United States for passage of the British-aid bill in a broadcast over the British radio today.

De Gaulle, whose speech in French was recorded and translated by the Columbia Broadcasting System, said "This decision means that the United States has passed judgment, once and for all, that the tyranny of dictators constitutes the greatest danger and infamy which ever have menaced the world."

U. S.-Berlin Break Unlikely Over Aid Bill

By C. Brooks Peters.
Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, March 12.—All efforts of both authoritative German quarters and the Reich press today converged upon an effort to minimize the importance the Third Reich attaches to the signing by President Roosevelt of the lease-lend bill.

Exclusive of mild polemics against Mr. Roosevelt's policy and the role which Jews allegedly have played in formulating it, there is no indication that any direct German diplomatic or political action which would alter the present formal stand of German-American diplomatic relations is planned.

Semiofficial comments assert that for the Reich the more important present topic of conversation is the impending visit of Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, of Japan. During that visit the Germans declare that the nations signatory to the three-power pact will have an opportunity to take all measures necessary to deal with "all dangers and eventualities" resulting from America's efforts to influence events according to the will of the United States.

Blame the Jews

There are still nations left, it is said here, "who will not yield to the Anglo-American police truncheon." As the Hamburger Fremdenblatt declared:

"War diplomacy has been set in motion in order to warn all whom it may concern that one cannot intervene in the West without having to intervene in the East."

Political circles in Berlin allege, furthermore, that the conection of names like Frankfurter, Cohen and Baruch with the lend-lease bill demonstratesd for whose interest America is embarking upon the lethal step which she now is taking. For the Jews, the Germans declare, are interested in having the American people win back for them positions in hemispheres other than the Western, which they have lost.

Possible reprisals, therefore, are suggested by the Boersen Zeitung, which declares that this alleged Jewish action "already today burdens not only Jewish immigration, but also that portion of Jewry which is still in Europe, with heavy responsibility."

"The Jew Frankfurter did them no service by getting around and underminig American neutrality."

"A Crass Contradiction"

The real Fifth Columnists in America are the Jews and Britishers like the late Marquess of Lothian and Viscount Halifax, the British Ambassador, the Germans assert. The manner in which the lease-lend bill was "whipped" through Congress, furthermore, the Germans add, is in crass contradiction to the "much-preached democratic freedom."

The press declares that in following its present course the United States is disavowing not only its neutrality policy but also the Monroe Doctrine. For that doctrine, German editors suggest, is based upon the assumption that in return for not interfering in the affairs of the Western Hemisphere the United States will not interfere on its part in the affairs of other continents.

The official organ of the foreign office, the Diplomatische Korrespondenz, admits that the aid extended to Britain will be "appreciable and may perhaps prolong the war." It cannot, however, the organ asserts, prevent the definite elimination of the British "arbitrary domination" of the European continent or assure place of Britain.

Naval, Air Toll Given

Berlin, March 12 (AP).—Giving emphasis, in German eyes, to the contention that American aid cannot save Britain, were these military announcements today:

1. By the high command: That the German navy and air force sank 2,037,000 tons of merchant shipping space in British supply lanes from November through February.

2. By an authorized source: That 3,784 British planes were destroyed from June 23, 1940, through February 21, 1941.

Dow Chemical To Double Output Of Magnesium

Federal Loan Administrator Jesse H. Jones announced yesterday that the production of magnesium, vital defense material, would be doubled at the Dow Chemical Co.'s Shreveport, La., plant through new capacity financed by the Defense Plant Corporation.

The corporation will spend $8,000,000, he said to build the new plant, which will remain Federal property but will be leased to the Dow Co. for operation. Present output of about 9,000 tons annually will be increased to 18,000 tons, Jones added.

The Commerce Department also made public a notification to customs collectors of a blanket waiver on export licenses of aviation motor fuel and aviation lubricating oil shipped to British possessions. Although these commodities are subject to export licensing, an unlimited license has been issued to the British Purchasing Commission, it was explained.

Aircraft, aeronautical material, engines, etc.—$2,054,000,000.

Tanks, armored cars, automobiles, trucks, and other motor vehicles, parts and accessories—$362,000,000.

Vessels, ships, boats and other water craft and equipment—$629,000,000.

Miscellaneous military equipment—$260,000,000.

Facilities and equipment for production of defense articles, for their acquisition and construction and for acquisition of land—$752,000,000.

Agricultural, industrial and other commodities and articles—$1,350,000,000.

Ttesting, inspecting, proving, repairing, outfitting, recoditioning, or otherwise placing in good working order order any defense articles—$200,000,000.

For services and expenses for carrying out unspecified portions of the program—$40,000,000.

Administrative expenses—$10,000,0000.

Will Be Flexible

Authority for flexible shifts of funds between the categories would be provided by empowering the President to transfer up to 20 per cent of the funds allotted to one group of defense articles to another group. In no case could funds in any category be increased more than 30 per cent.

The $7,000,000,000 would remain available until June 30, 1943, the full life of the bill. The President would have discretionary authority to replenish from this total the outlays of Army and Navy under the $1,300,000,000 immediately available for aid purposes.

The President meanwhile is said to have assured Congressional advisers that he personally will administer the aid program, making allocations to departments himself, instead of through an agent or special office.

The assurance is understood to have been given in response to Republican inquiries as to the possible role of Harry Hopkins, close adviser to the President, on the aid program. Hopkins' work is expected to be of a liaison character.

Roughly, aid program management was beginning to shape up with the President, in person, administrator; Hopkins, liaison; Harold Knudsen, in charge of the workshop, and four Cabinet members—Hull, Morgenthau, Knox and Stimson—playing an increasingly important advisory role.

The President apparently faced no serious Congressional fight on the fund allocations he asked. No outspoken opposition had developed last night to the estimates submitted at noon, and leaders indicated they expected preponderant approval.

After hearings, the House deficiencies subcommittee apparently will recommend a bill hewing close to the line of the estimates. Woodrum, a consistent battler for economy on domestic issues, said he had no changes to propose and knew of none that would be offered.

Taber Refrains From Criticism

Representative Taber (Republican), of New York, ranking minority member of the committee, refrained from critical comment. He said he would listen closely to the testimony and cast his vote on the merits of the bill.

Action by the House will be delayed until midweek, so the hearings and committee report can be published for full study by members.

In the Senate, action will be initiated by the Senate Deficiency Appropriations subcommittee, headed by Senator Adams (Democrat) of Colorado immediately after passage of the bill by the House.

While Republican "pay-as-you-go" efforts were expected in the Senate, leaders said 2-to-1 passage of the lend-lease bill had assured enactment of the funds measure in the form asked by the President.

Immediately on receipt, Speaker Rayburn ordered the President's letter transmitting the estimates read to the House.

The President stressed it is imperative to the security of America that the resistance by democracies to aggression be encouraged. He said this must be done by not only maintaining but increasing the flow of material aid.

"Through this legislation, our country has determined to do its full part in creating an adequate arsenal of democracy," he said. "The great arsenal will be here in this country. It will be a bulwark of our own defense. It will be the source of the tools of defense for all democracies who are fighting to preserve themselves against aggression."

Budget Director Smith further asked that the defense articles produced under the lend-lease program to any Government department or agency for its use.

Although specific details on the volume and nature of equipment to be produced in each category was closely guarded, members made their own deductions from the size of each earmarking.

It was estimated that from 12,000 to 15,000 planes could be built from the $2,054,000,000 allocation for aircraft.

Yugoslavs Balk at Complete Submission to Germany

The premier canceled a long list of local engagements for Friday.

The full list of the German demands, as reported here by a neutral diplomat, was this:

1. Demobilization of the Yugoslav army—against which it was understood the army high command was strongly arguing.

2. Complete German control of the country's economic life, transport and communication.

3. The Nazis to have the right to ship war material through Yugoslavia, presumably reserving the lines in Bulgaria and Rumania for the movement of troops.

4. Germany to have the right to pass troops through this country if deemed necessary—apparently a hard condition to the government here.

5. Yugoslavia formally to sign the Axis pact.

The long period of diplomatic maneuvering that preceded the government's decision made the entire nation nervous.

It was understood that Italy was taking a hand in applying the pressure.

Nazis Circulate Threats

The Germans themselves circulated threats that Yugoslavia must capitulate quickly or face the Nazis' "might"—a reference which could have been intended to suggest invasion or even partition.

Some Yugoslavs, predicting that Germany would accept the compromise, declared their belief that the Nazis would do much to avoid war here. Some German sources, in answer, spoke significantly of "pint-sized countries" and said Hitler would never accept a diplomatic defeat from such a nation.

A circumstance complicating the negotiations was the fact that Germany had no great material rewards to offer to Yugoslavia.

Rumania got a promise that her frontiers would be guaranteed. Bulgaria got the hope of an outlet to the Aegean Sea. Hungary got part of Transylvania.

But Yugoslavia—a state created at Versailles—already is surrounded on north, west and east by Axis partners and can hardly be offered territory.

On the south there is Greece; but Greece is an old Balkan ally, and, moreover, Prince Paul is related by marriage to the Greek royal family.

On the other hand, more than 500,000 Nazi troops stood tonight on the frontiers of Greece and Turkey.

The ostensible Greek determination to fight any invasion remained unchanged.

In Ankara, the Turkish premier, Refik Saydam, in a two-hour speech, told the country's only political party what the government's attitude was toward the Nazi occupation of Bulgaria, but what he said was not made public.

Italy Reported Massing Army Near Yugoslavia

London (Thursday), March 13 (INS).—Italy is massing an army in Albania near the Yugoslavian frontier, reports received in London said today.

According to the Daily Mail, the Italians have massed 60,000 troops around Scutari, in northern Albania near the Yugoslav frontier, where they are throwing up fortifications.

On the frontier between Yugoslavia and Italy proper, in the north, trans-border traffic is at a standstill, information in London said.

On the Italian side, a strip 3 miles wide has been evacuated. Even property owners in the district are admitted only in the daytime and with special passes.

Included in the army massed in Albania, it was understood, are some mechanized divisions.

Turks Trace Bomb That Killed Britons

By the Associated Press

Istanbul, March 12.—Turkish investigators probing the suitcase bomb assassination attempt on the life of George W. Rendel, British Minister to Bulgaria, declared tonight that British Legation employes had seen the bomb but thought it was a "radio battery."

The Turkish prosecutor said two employes of the legation, which left German-occupied Bulgaria after a diplomatic breach, became suspicious of two unmarked suitcases on the train with British baggage, opened them and found only personal effects and a "radio battery."

One of the bags was taken to the Pera Palace Hotel, where a bomb explosion shortly afterward killed three persons and injured 22 others.

The other suspicious suitcase was reported to police, who identified the "battery" as a bomb and made it harmless.

Investigators studying fragments of the exploded bomb said it apparently was an acid-fuse bomb and might have resembled a radio battery.

Britons in Istanbul charged the bombing was a plot to "mar Turkish-British relations" and hinted that "serious diplomatic repercussions" might result.

In Berlin, German sources said the bomb may have been British property and its explosion an accident.

The Berlin radio, in a German language broadcast, offered as a solution that "the British tried to stage another Athenia case."

"When Mr. Rendel decided to leave Sofia," the broadcast said, "he had to solve the unpleasant problem of dealing with all those appliances charged with high explosives which were used in Bulgaria, or about to be used, to terrorize public opinion. Mr. Rendel could not leave them in the legation building; he could not discharge them, because that might have caused inconvenient noise; he therefore had to include them in his luggage."

Ten Istanbul newspapers were suspended under martial law regulations for "contravention of laws under a state of siege against sensational handling of news and needlessly exciting the public" by their stories of the bombing.

In the edict, the largest mass suspension of newspapers since European Turkey was placed under martial law, six will cease publication for two days and four will be banned for three days.

The Bulgarian consul general in Istanbul, saying he had heard reports of police rounding up Bulgarian suspects in the case, declared no Bulgarian citizens had been taken into custody.

The three victims of the bomb which wrecked the lobby and two floors of the hotel, were Miss Gertrude Killis, former stenographer of the British legation in Sofia, and two Turkish detectives.

Miss Terene Armstrong, another legation stenographer and most seriously injured of the 22 hurt in the blast, was not expected to live. Her legs were amputated. Two British consuls at Istanbul, G. P. Paton and C. H. Page, and three other Britons, were among those hurt.

British Gain 120 Miles in East Ethiopia

By the Associated Press

Cairo, March 12.—A British column invading eastern Ethiopia after the conquest of Italian Somaliland advanced 120 miles in the last two days, it was announced today.

This force was credited with the capture of Dagha Bur, Ethiopian town some 400 miles north of Mogadiscio, Italian Somaliland capital. Its position tonight was given as 90 miles south of Jijiga, with no important Fascist forces standing in the way up to that point.

At Jijiga the road up which the British are striking turns westward 50 miles to Harar and from there the imperial force intends to push 30 miles on to cut the Addis Ababa-Djibouti Railway at Diredawa.

The Italians have at least 10,000 troops massed for the defense of the Jijiga-Harar region and are hurrying new fortifications, British authorities said, but they were declared to be embarrassed by the fact that their existing fortifications are facing the other way. This, the British explained, was because they envisaged possibility of an attack from Djibouti but never thought of an invading army coming from Italian Somaliland.

South Africans and black troops from East and West Africa have made this advance the most successful of seven British thrusts into Ethiopia.

Italian losses in casualties and prisoners since the British crossed the Juba River in Italian Somaliland less than a month ago were estimated at 31,000. The remainder of the Fascist units in Somaliland were said to have been broken up and dispersed.

It was disclosed that Australian and New Zealand troops arrived in the Middle East from England "some time ago," but it was not indicated whether these participated in the campaign in the North African colony of Libya. Today's communique reported "no change in the situation" in Libya and Eritrea.

Heavy R. A. F. raids on the Italian fortified island of Rhodes at the entrance to the Aegean Sea were reported to have been carried out last night.

Large fires were set on the airports at Maritza and Calato and considerable damage done to enemy aircraft on the ground.

Axis planes killed 18 civilians and injured 19 in a moonlight raid last night on the Mediterranean island of Malta, the British announced. There were three other alarms during the day.

In Somaliland, the British said, the Fascists abandoned 46 field guns, 12 coast defense guns and some 350,000 gallons of gasoline.

Eleven Italian and four German ships were declared destroyed by the British in recently taking Mogadiscio and Chisimaio, Italy's only two ports on the Indian Ocean.

Hitler at Linz For Anschluss Celebration

By the Associated Press

Linz, Germany, March 12.—Adolf Hitler arrived here unexpectedly tonight for ceremonies tomorrow commemorating the third anniversary of the anschluss linking his native Austria with the Reich.

Hitler spoke at a mass meeting in a festival hall near the railway terminal, confining his remarks to reminiscences of Anschluss days.

He contended Austria, particularly the Linz region, had benefited greatly by the union with Germany.

He made one digression into world affairs—proclaiming a united German will for victory over all enemies. It was said 40,000 heard his address.

Three years ago he returned to Austria for the first time in 25 years at the head of a triumphal parade, and from a balcony here he triumphantly proclaimed a new Pan-German union.

His arrival tonight was less spectacular, although he was enthusiastically greeted by the townspeople, many of whom had known him long ago as a political agitator in the village of Braunau, his birthplace.

Speaking today at an anniversary celebration here, Paul Joseph Goebbels, the Nazi propaganda minister, declared that Germany was winning in the war "the place in the sun which the world of plutocracy so long denied her."

It was, he stated, a "class battle between the rich and poor nations" in which Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Britain already has lost.

Lind, chairman of surgical dressings, reported that 56,282 dressings were made in one month by 1,331 volunteers, working 9,966 hours.

Mrs. James T. Nicholson, in charge of knitted garments, said that 1,625 women had given 38,587 hours of service knitting 1,891 garments. Work for local hospitals was carried on under the chairmanship of Miss Grace S. Wright, who reported 25,846 dressings made for local institutions by 108 volunteers.

Spain's Ties to Germany 'Unshakable,' Minister Says

By the Associated Press

Madrid, March 12.—Foreign Minister Ramon Serrano Suner proclaimed today Spain's "unshakable" friendship with Germany and declared the two countries were working toward the common goal of a "more just Europe."

Serrano Suner, speaking at the opening of a German press exposition, said there should be no doubt as to the firmness of the ties binding the two totalitarian governments.

When the Spanish civil war broke out in 1936, he said, European countries "closed the ranks of friendship and hostility" and since the end of that conflict Spain's position has been well known to everyone.

Although Spain has been an onlooker thus far in the European war, Serrano Suner said her aims and those of warring Germany were for a new Europe which would achieve a "geographical and moral fullness."

The first battlefields of this Europe, he said, were those of Spain's civil conflict.

Germany, he asserted, may feel "justly proud" of the triumphs of National Socialism and the arms of the Third Reich. He added that the Spanish and German press work in the common spirit of "military and revolutionary camaraderie."

The German ambassador, Baron Eberhard von Stohrer, addressed the gathering, declaring that the totalitarian countries had taken their press out of "irresponsible" hands and placed it at the service of the nation.

National Airport To Be in Operation Around April 15

Work is well advanced on the large servicing pits that will lie along the terminal apron and from which giant air transports will receive fuel and other supplies.

Four additional hangars are to be built at once.

While not all work on the terminal and landing field will have been completed, all necessary facilities will have been installed in time for the April opening.

Soviet Shipments Noted as U. S. Gold Imports Increase

By the Associated Press

British Empire and Russian shipments swelled gold imports last week to $65,489,467.

The figure was more than double the preceding week, and one of the highest figures in recent months, the Commerce Department said in announcing it yesterday.

The Russian shipments totaled $5,600,910, and followed a total of similar size in the preceding week. Before that, no gold had been shipped here directly from Russia more than two or three times in the last several years.

British shipments included $50,571,907 from Canada and $6,704,911 from Australia. The only other large shipment was $1,185,484 from the Philippine Islands.

Plane Engineer Sees U. S.-Nazi Production Parity Next Year

The air war of the near future will be fought in the stratosphere, 40,000 feet above the ground, between huge, armored "flying battleships" flown by pilots dressed like deep sea divers, one of the Nation's leading aeronautical engineers predicted yesterday.

He is A. T. Colwell, president of the Society of Automotive Engineers, which opens its two-day national aeronautic meeting at 10 a. m. today at the Washington Hotel.

Colwell, a Cleveland manufacturer who studied plane production techniques in Germany two months before the war, declared that the trend in aircraft development in Germany, England and the United States is so unmistakable that the "plane of the future" is already in view.

"The present air war," Colwell said in an interview at the Washington, "is being fought at 25,000 to 30,000 feet with the aid of oxygen tanks to keep the pilots conscious. Planes with a ceiling of 40,000 or even 50,000 feet are under development."

Colwell revealed that no fighting planes are planned in the United States which can compete with English or German models for fire power or armor protection.

"The American trend," he said, "is toward performance, high speed and maneuverability. In these qualities American planes will excel all the European."

A sharp drop in German plane production has been detected in the last few months, he said, a sure sign of retooling for new models. One of the new planes, he added, will be a Focke-Wulf fighter with a 2,000 horsepower, double Daimler Benz 600 A motor, capable of more than 400 miles an hour.

Colwell said that a new Henckel 119 bomber and a new Messerschmidt fighter, both powered with two double DB motors, also will appear shortly.

American production of combat planes will equal German production by the spring of next year, Colwell declared, but great progress must be made in standardization first.

"A year from today," he said, "the tide will have turned toward Anglo-American superiority in the air."

Bill Would Strip Foreign Diplomats Here of Immunity

Copyright by New York Times

A proposal to abolish diplomatic and consular immunity granted representatives of foreign governments was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative Weiss of Pennsylvania.

While he said he knew other governments would retaliate by withdrawing diplomatic immunity from our officials abroad, he has no fear of "serious consequences," since our officials do not "engage, approve or sanction" such acts as he charged to foreign officials.

In a statement accompanying the measure Weiss said:

"It has been disclosed by the Dies Committee, the FBI and other American groups that subversive agencies have been quite evident in all sections of the country, and there is no question but that many of these agencies emanate from diplomatic consulates who carry on with the full knowledge of the protection of our laws."

Defense Job Ads Wasteful, Hillman Says

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

Workers "shopping" for jobs in defense industries and misled by deceptive advertisements of work opportunities have probably created more lost time and waste effort than strikes, according to Sidney Hillman associate director general of the Office of Production Management.

At a press conference yesterday Hillman repeated his contention that "it is fair to say that the defense program is not seriously interfered with" by strikes, although he added that there were more work stoppages than he would "like to see."

In a joint plea with OPM Director General William S. Knudsen, Hillman asked all defense employers to seek their working force through the United States Employment Offices rather than go out of their own communities in a search for labor. He explained that often advertisements appeared for 500 men when there were 1,000 available workers in the community.

Surplus Pours In

Effect of the published work call, however, might be to bring in 5,000 men from other areas who would deprive the original community of employment opportunities and would result in "tremendous waste."

An attack on both the problems of strikes and job "shopping" is being made, Hillman implied, in a current series of conferences to set employment standards in the shipbuilding industry.

Out of these conferences, the defense labor chief hinted, may be developed formulas for stabilizing employment in other large industrial fields.

Hillman announced that the first conference is now in session in San Francisco, with others scheduled for the Gulf area and Atlantic seaboard. Attending the meetings will be representatives of all shipbuilding employers, C. I. O. and A. F. of L. unions involved, the Navy Department, Maritime Commission and OPM.

The zone conferences will attempt to set standards for basic wage rates of skilled mechanics, overtime provision, shift premiums, no-strike and no-lockout clauses, no limitation on production provisions, and grievance and arbitration machinery.

Mediation Board Studied

In answer to a question on the proposed top defense mediation board discussed Friday by President Roosevelt, Hillman said the idea was being given "close consideration." Although he declined to give his own opinion as to the desirability of such an agency, Hillman appeared to defend the idea as he discussed it.

Toward jurisdictional disputes, however, Hillman was outspoken in his opposition. He expressed himself as hopeful, however, that the labor organizations were "big enough" to make an end to them of their own violation.

Meantime, the executive council of the International Association of Machinists, one of the principal A. F. of L. organizations subject to jurisdictional disputes, announced yesterday that it had adopted a three point program to eliminate strikes, at a meeting here yesterday.

The plan provides that whenever a controversy arises in a defense job, mediation shall be resorted to through the Conciliation Service. If this fails to adjust differences, the OPM will be asked to intervene, and as a third step, the union will agree to submit the issues to arbitration.

Vatican City Put Under Food Rationing

Vatican City, March 12 (AP).—The rationing of food and some other goods was introduced in Vatican City today, affecting all residents including Pope Pius XII. The allotments are slightly more generous than those in effect in Italy. Vatican City residents, for example, will be allowed a pound of coffee a month; Italians can't have any coffee.

The rationing fixes these limits among others: 3½ ounces of meat a day and two small loaves of bread; ¼ pound of butter a week, 4½ pounds of sugar a month and 22 gallons of gasoline monthly.

C. I. O. Strikes At Aluminum Concern Plant

By the Associated Press

The long threatened strike at the plant of the Aluminum Co. of America, Edgewater, N. J., materialized yesterday.

Several hundred of the 3,000 employes walked out in the early hours and others followed later, the C. I. O. union announcing that it had called the strike after negotiations for settlement had collapsed. Violations of overtime pay provisions in the union contract were charged against the big firm, which makes aluminum sheeting, vital in aircraft construction.

At Everett, Wash., union carpenters left their jobs on buildings for the $5,000,000 Army Air Corps base at the Snohomish County Airport after delivery of lumber which the A. F. of L. union's district council had labeled "unfair."

The lumber was from the Weyerhaeuser Timber Co. mills here.. They have been picketed since last October by the Lumber and Sawmill Workers' Union, of which the Carpenters' Union is the parent.

Norman Morgan, secretary of the Carpenters' District Council, said 36 carpenters left the job and that the stoppage also involved about 75 members of other building trades.

Three Oakland (Calif.) automobile plants, one engaged in defense orders, were idle for a time because of a dispute over the work schedule of welders at the plant of the Fisher Body Co. The C. I. O.'s United Automobile Workers contended the company sought to boost production by an "inhuman speed-up." The company called it a workers' "slowdown."

Closing of the plants Tuesday made 2,000 men idle. They returned to work yesterday, but the dispute remained unsettled.

After the Fisher plant closed, the Chevrolet assembly plant and the L. A. Young Spring & Wire Co., which supplies cushions, were forced to follow suit. Chevrolet is making Army trucks. Union leaders said a strike vote may be taken tonight unless a settlement is reached.

The strike of 3,500 transport workers which stopped 1,300 New York City buses continued, causing some 900,000 bus riders to crowd other vehicles.

However, Mayor F. H. LaGuardia indicated in a formal statement that union representatives and officials of the bus lines had agreed to submit their differences to mediation.

The Mayor, reading his statement in the presence of Transport Workers Union (C. I. O.) representatives and officials of the Fifth Avenue Coach Co. and the New York Omnibus Corporation, said Arthur Meyer, chairman of the State mediation board, had consented to fly to New York from Miami and would arrive this morning.

He added that he understood that "every effort will be made to resume operations at the earliest possible moment," and said the union had agreed to call a membership meeting for tonight. Both sides had agreed to meet with him "if there is any hitch in the negotiations," he declared.

The mayor and the negotiators for the opposing factions declined to add to the statement.

CIO Demands Sent to 14 Steel Plants

International News Service Staff Writer

New York, March 12.—C. I. O. demands covering wages and working conditions of 261,000 workers in the Nation's vital steel industry were on their way to 14 "Big Steel" subsidiaries tonight.

In a request to open negotiations for new contracts for steel workers, Philip Murray, C. I. O. president and chairman of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, fired the second gun in the C. I. O.'s drive in major national defense industries.

Murray demanded a wage increase of ten cents an hour among other things. This followed action yesterday by John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, who asked for wage increases for 450,000 soft coal miners.

The double-barreled drive is expected to reach a joint climax when the miners' contract with soft coal operators expires at midnight, March 31.

Following Murray's action, under the present contract, negotiations must open within ten days and a new agreement must be reached within ten days after that.

A letter asking a new contract was sent to heads of the following steel companies: Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation, Pittsburgh; American Bridge Co., Pittsburgh; Boyle Manufacturing Co., Los Angeles; National Tube Co., Pittsburgh; Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Co., Birmingham, Ala.; Virginia Bridge Co., Birmingham, Ala.; Universal Atlas Cement Co., Duluth, Minn.; Scully Steel Products Co., St. Paul, Minn.; American Steel and Wire Co., Cleveland; Columbia Steel Co., San Francisco; Oil Well Supply Co., Dallas, Tex.; Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Co., Houston, Tex.; Universal Atlas Cement Co., Buffington, Ind., and Wilson-Snyder Co., Dallas, Tex.

S. W. O. C. demands contained in the letter included:

1. A 10-cent-per-hour wage increase.
2. Exclusive bargaining rights.
3. New paid vacation privileges.
4. New seniority arrangements.
5. Compulsory arbitration machinery to handle disputes that can not be settled through regular channels.
6. Improved methods for handling of grievances by the companies.

Threat of New Strike

Buffalo, March 12 (INS).—A showdown between the C. I. O. Steel Workers' Organizing Committee and the Bethlehem Steel Co. appeared near tonight in the grievance dispute which brought threat of a new strike from the union today.

Federal Mediator Thomas M. Finn arranged for a meeting to discuss charges by the S. W. O. C. that the company had refused to meet with elected union representatives for a thrashing out of grievances, as provided in an agreement terminating a two-day strike at the company's Lackawanna, N. Y., plant last month.

[In Washington, the National Labor Relations Board ordered hearings to determine if an employe election for collective bargaining representation should be held at the Lackawanna plant.]

Draft Engine Geared to Fill Army Quota

By George Thorpe
Post Staff Writer

The Nation's Selective Service machinery is prepared to put 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 men into uniform in the space of 18 days, The Post learned yesterday.

While only about 310,000 trainees will be in camps by the end of March, the selection organization is now geared to call up and "process" all the recruits required for a full-strength wartime Army, planned for approximately 4,000,000.

Meanwhile, selection leaders expressed the opinion that next year's quotas will be substantially larger than those of the current fiscal year, ending June 30.

Only factor that would prevent putting the huge recruit Army in the field at present is lack of equipment and housing. These necessities are being produced in increasing quantities, however.

At the same time, Navy Department officials said neither the Navy nor the Marine Corps contemplates taking selectees while this country is not at war.

Numerous men called up locally have applied to local boards for assignment to these two branches, only to be directed to recruiting offices, where they would have to enlist for six and four year terms in the Navy and Marines, respectively.

The Navy has turned thumbs down on selects because it considers the one-year draft period insufficient to train men for specialized fleet and shore station duty, it was said.

The Marine Corps plans taking no draftees, barring this country's actual participation in war, for similar reasons, it was said.

The bulk of the Marine forces in this country are two divisions, based at Quantico, Va., and San Diego, Calif., where, traditionally, they are held in readiness for quick calls to duty with the fleet in trouble zones in either ocean.

The suddenness with which the Leatherneck units may be ordered into action, together with the distances which they travel to reach their posts, calls for tours of duty longer than one year, it was said.

A Marine selectee who had served ten months, then was transferred to the Philippines, would "practically meet himself coming back" an officer said yesterday.

Officials pointed out, however, that should the Nation find itself actually at war, with the consequent necessity of expanding its forces rapidly, the Navy and Marine Corps probably would find it expedient to take selects.

Predicting the enlarged draft quotas after June, selection leaders pointed out that not more than 600,000 trainees are to be called this year. This is due principally to an unexpectedly heavy Regular Army enlistment.

However, the Selective Service Act provides that in peacetime 800,000 draftees may be called annually and that 900,000 may be in uniform at one time.

The flow of volunteers for the Regular Army is expected to fall off in the coming year, while equipment and housing, two chief selection bottlenecks at present, will be increasingly available.

If the national emergency remains at its present gravity, the Selective Service expert said, the full 800,000 selectees will be called, with consequently larger monthly quotas.

Randolph Bill Would Create Super Highways

By the Associated Press

Legislation to authorize construction of a transcontinental superhighway system at a cost of $12,000,000,000 was introduced yesterday by Representative Randolph (Democrat), West Virginia.

The bill (HR 3973) would authorize straight-line highways from Boston, to San Francisco, from the Great Lakes and New York to Florida, and from the Canadian border in Minnesota to Laredo, Tex. The roads would be constructed so as to be available for defense purposes.

Among other bills and resolutions were these by Representatives:

Knox Dedicates Largest Naval Air Training Station

By the Associated Press

Corpus Christi, Tex., March 12.—The Nation's greatest naval air training station—a $44,000,000 project at which cadets will be hastened through a streamlined, seven-months course of pilot instruction—was placed in commission today.

Within sight of waters where the union fleet shelled Corpus Christi when Civil War sundered the Nation, Navy Secretary Knox dedicated the station to the defense and indissolubility of the United States.

The first group of trainees probably will enter the station within the next two weeks. The peak, when 3,600 pilots will be turned out annually, will not be reached until the first of next year.

Among the nineteen passengers for Bermuda were Mrs. Constance R. Winant, wife of the American Ambassador to Great Britain, and her two sons.

East Indies Asks Funds To Buy U. S. Warplanes

Batavia, Netherlands East Indies, March 12 (AP).—A bill for appropriation of $8,000,000 for the purchase of American airplanes was placed before the people's council today as one item in the new $16,000,000 defense program. Passage appeared to be certain.

29th Division To Add 9,000 During April

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Correspondent

Fort George G. Meade, Md., March 12.—The first draft of 1,999 selectees from Maryland, Virginia and Pennsylvania will be processed for the Twenty-ninth Division between April 1 and April 10, the recruit reception center here was notified today.

By the end of April, approximately 9,000 men will be added to the division, bringing it to war strength of more than 18,000. The first contingent will be handled by the reception center here and that at Camp Lee, near Petersburg, Va.

The Fort Meade center will induct and furnish to the division 904 men, all from Pennsylvania, in the first ten days of April. Camp Lee will induct and send 1,095 men, 495 from Virginia and 600 from Maryland.

Today the division received its second selectee and tomorrow another is expected. The reception center explained that these men, like Rowland Edwards, sent to the Twenty-ninth Sunday, were furnished on "specific requisition," naming the men.

FBI Aide Joins Division

Added to the division today was Walter M. Lee, of 3672 Park Place Northwest, a clerk in the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Lee is 23 and unmarried and was inducted Saturday through Local Board No. 9. He was attached here to Headquarters Company, Special Troops. Expected tomorrow is Richard Franklin Verrill, of Washington, who was requisitioned for the 104th Quartermaster Regiment. He could not be identified here.

Dr. Walter V. Bingham, director of the personnel research section of the War Department, conferred today with Col. John A. Cutchins, chief of the Twenty-ninth Division staff, on rehabilitation of the division's men when they are returned to civil life after the emergency. Col. Cutchins said Dr. Bingham outlined a program whereby information in classification cards of the men would be used to inform industry of the availability of specified numbers of men skilled in special trades. Bingham also visited the reception center, where thousands of selectees will be classified after induction.

The reception center today sent 22 selectees to Edgewood Arsenal, Md. and 1 to the 1322d Service Unit at Fort Meade. Tomorrow, 22 will go to Edgewood, 16 to Fort Eustice, Va., 49 to Camp Lee and 1 to Fort Monroe. The center received 62 men today from Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Despite muddy ground and a chill wind that swept across the camp, Infantry and Artillery regiments today resumed outdoor training interrupted since Friday by snow, rain and deep mud. The 176th Field Artillery, only Pennsylvania regiment in the division, sent its batteries on the crowded roads to work out convoy problems and the Infantry regiments continued open order drill.

Cable Damage Explained

Damage to a lead telephone cable which admitted rainwater and put 300 pairs of wires out of service Monday was laid today by Lieut. Col. William McK. Dunn, division signal officer, to accident rather than sabotage. Col. Dunn said a lineman had thrust a climbing spike through the cable and left without realizing the damage.

The 121st Engineers, composed of former Washington National Guardsmen, are going to blow their own horns. At least, that is the aim of the newly formed public relations section of the regiment, which is headed by Lieut. Howard A. Burd, S-2 intelligence officer of the unit. The 121st is the first regiment to establish a public relations unit in line with a plan of division headquarters.

Members of the public relations section include Private First Class Charles A. McAleer, head reporter; Private First Class John S. Bardwell and Private Arthur G. Anderson, photographers, and Private John P. Casey, Corporal Norman Tideswell, Corporal Beverly Nale, Sergt. Glenn Atkins, Corporal Matt Tighe, Corporal Russel W. Watkins, Corporal Robert Daugherty, Private Melvin Ceppos and Corporal E. C. Van Walker, reporters.

Baering Down On the News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

I got into a big argument with a Wall Streeter yesterday over the lease-lend bill. He claimed I didn't know enough to wrap spaghetti around a fork.

I asked him if he was insinuating I was a half-wit. "No, I don't say you're that," he said, "but I'll give you some advice. If you ever go to three-fourths, sell."

That's the way it goes in our neighborhood just before it gets worse. We have the lease-lend bill, a three-day blizzard and a Fifth Avenue bus strike. Our street cleaning commissioner saved $1,000,000 by letting the sun melt the snow, while Justice Hughes decided that a bath in a West Virginia barber shop was not interstate commerce.

Our street cleaning commissioner bought himself a pair of smoked glasses. "I'll need 'em to keep the sun out of my eyes," he said, "and if the sun doesn't shine I'll need 'em to keep people out of my hair."

And as for the lease-lend bill, that just has me talking to myself like a parrot in a paper bag. But I'm as stubborn as a teacher in high school. I'm going to keep right on explaining it to people until I understand it myself.

Britain, Too, Has Invasion Barges

London (Thursday), March 13 (AP).—Britain has invasion barges of her own, it was disclosed today, and used them in last week's raid on Lofoten Islands of Norway.

The press carried pictures of one of the barges nearing the snowy shore. It was painted white and the high, boxlike bow showed regularly spaced holes, possibly loopholes for riflemen.

Competitive Bid System Assailed

Cleveland, March 12 (AP).—Competitive bidding on defense materials was declared a "waste of energy" today as manufacturers studying ways of speeding preparedness production were told "we are at war, all except the shooting."

S. B. Terry, industrial engineer from Hartford, Conn., claimed competitive bidding delays production by usurping time and efforts of engineers in several plants while only one concern receives the contract.

He participated in a discussion on ammunition manufacture at a conference sponsored by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers and the Army Ordnance Association.

The statement that "we are at war, all except the shooting," came from R. T. Kent, advisory engineer in the ordnance department at Washington.

Chilean Finds WeDon'tThink Only of Money

By Joaquin Muirhead

Post Guest Writer

Mr. Muirhead, a Santiago, Chile, newspaperman, is at present a guest member of The Washington Post staff.

Since I arrived in the United States, I have heard several questions relating to Chile, my native land.

I could understand that the questioners, unfortunately, have a wrong idea of my country. I think, in such manner, we also do not in Chile understand the United States.

For instance, in Chile we think that American people live only for money, and that they are always trying to make money. Perhaps, because down in Chile we have a very familiar phrase, "Time is money," and these words represent a very typical English and North American expression.

In Chile we have much time for doing all that we need. If someone says, "Time is money," we reply, "One who lives in a hurry dies very soon." And then nobody wants to do a job immediately. People say that the first word that a foreigner learns in Spanish is "manana" (tomorrow).

When a Latin American says to another: "We must meet again tomorrow, that one always answers: "Yes, of course. We can do it between 10 to 12 in the morning." For Latin American people, it is the same as having an appointment between 10 or 12 o'clock in the morning. But, when we must see a person at 10:30, and we wish that that person be there without fail, we say: "English time." That expression means at 10:30 or not more than 10 or 20 minutes later.

Here you say: "Do it now." In South America we say: "We can do it tomorrow."

The reason for all this is very simple. It doesn't mean that our people are lazy; that only means that we have plenty of time for our business. Life is very easy in all the countries of the South American Continent. It is not necessary to be always in a hurry.

In Chile we think that American people are not fond of reading books, newspapers or magazines. We believe, too, that the people of this country are not fond of music, art or other cultural interests. There we think that you always are trying to get money, nothing else.

But all this is wrong. When we think in that way we make a big mistake. I have seen here that people are very fond of reading books, newspapers and magazines; that they like very much music and art and that they keep the real traditions, much more, perhaps, than in Chile.

American people love very much their country; they are always thinking of making a great country. For an American man, the national flag has a great meaning. I can see the flag on all the public buildings. We have not that system in Chile. We love our land, we try to keep the traditions, but not in the way that American people do. But, anyway, nobody can say that we don't love our country, that we have not the national spirit. My countrymen made a real and good demonstration of their courage and national spirit when Chile had the war against Bolivia and Peru, together. We have a different system of life.

Here many people think we are dominated by German people. That's not true. In Chile we have many German people, but that doesn't mean that they have the control of my country. German people do not represent a problem for us. Many of them are against Hitler's system. Our soldiers have received German military instruction. For several years they used a uniform resembling the German army's, but now it is changed.

In any case, we think that our land is for Chilean people and for those who want to make a great country of Chile.

In Chile we have no racial problems. We have there English, French, North American, Italian, Spanish, Germans and people from all the world. They can live in very good conditions because in Chile we have liberty and all of them can live as they like. My country only requires that those people work; but we don't like that a foreigner put his hands in our national political affairs. And I am sure that that is the thought of all the countries of the world—particularly the United States, where democracy has a real meaning.

Chile and Argentina are the only two countries in South America where you cannot find racial problems. In Chile we have a few Indians—in the south of the country only. In Santiago we do not have Negroes nor Indians. And in Chile we have something very important—the Chilean nationality. People from abroad are very few, making a very little colony. In Argentina, for instance, there are many Italian and other peoples from abroad. That doesn't happen in Chile.

I am sure that with my visit in the United States my countrymen will change their minds and the people here will know a little bit more about us.

Airways Chief Warns of Alien Competition

Juan Trippe, head of Pan American Airways, testified before a Senate Appropriations subcommittee yesterday on President Roosevelt's proposal to grant an airmail subsidy to American Export Airlines Co., prospective rival of Pan American in the transatlantic service.

The session was held behind closed doors; but it was reported that Trippe warned the committee that even without establishment of a new American line, Pan American would be faced with ample competition at the close of the war, when German, British, French and Italian lines could be expected to enter the field under subsidy of their respective governments.

Trippe, who was generally described as an "impressive witness," reportedly told the subcommittee that Pan American already had to meet some competition in the form of steamship lines.

The subcommittee was apparently "leaning" toward the Pan American convention; but the issue was by no means decided.

National Plea For Nurses Is Broadcast

A national appeal for volunteers to join the Red Cross Nursing Reserve, to fill urgent defense needs, was broadcast from Washington yesterday during ceremonies celebrating the birthday of the organization's founder, the late Jane Delano.

More than 100 uniformed nurses, from Washington's military and civilian hospitals, stood at attention in the outdoor garden at Red Cross headquarters while Miss Leone Hawks, a Red Cross nurse, placed a wreath before the Delano memorial there. Beside Miss Hawks were an Army nurse, Miss Monica Conter, stationed at Walter Reed Hospital, and Miss Margaret Swann, Naval Hospital nurse.

The Washington ceremonies, broadcast over the Mutual network, were echoed by similar memorial services for Miss Delano, arranged by nursing groups throughout the country.

Tribute to Miss Delano

A friend and successor of Miss Delano, Miss Mary Beard, now national director of the Red Cross Nursing Service, paid tribute to Miss Delano's work as head of the Army Nurse Corps, and founder of the Red Cross Reserve.

She said that from the 21,000 Reserve nurses under 40, more than 3,000 had been located who would be willing to enter active service with the Army and Navy. She said that the Army would need 4,000 by June, and "for the Navy, too, we must be prepared to respond."

"We believe that the present quota, and future quotas, will be fully and promptly met when more of the young nurses understand the urgency of the situation—and the very pleasant working conditions in the military services," Miss Beard said.

She asked all unmarried graduate nurses, under 40 and in good health, to enroll with the nearest Red Cross office.

Navy's Needs Outlined

Maj. Julia O. Flicke, head of the Army Nurse Corps, said the need for nurses showed in the fact that where, a year ago, there were 46 Army stations in the United States requiring nurses, now there are 88, and 35 additional hospitals are about to be opened.

Miss Sue S. Dauser, superintendent of the Navy Nurse Corps, said that her organization is now meeting the demands of fleet expansion, and added that "we know the Red Cross and its Reserve will never let the Navy down."

Miss Conter declared "the duties and living conditions of an Army nurse are, in my opinion ideal."

"Our working atmosphere is excellent, the pay is good, our living quarters are good, and the food is superior."

Dancer Testifies At Schenck Trial

contract, Schenck's salary was reduced $500 a week by mutual consent and a friend of his, Lou Wertheimer, was employed as an assistant producer at that figure, it was said.

Dolph Schadler, a Government witness, testified that he aided in the preparation of Schenck's income tax for 1935 and that neither Schenck nor anyone else had ever discussed with him any scheme to defraud the Government of taxes due.

Schadler said that the return was prepared in the New York office of Joseph H. Moskowitz, Eastern representative of Twentieth Century-Fox and codefendant with Schenck, and was forwarded to Schenck to be signed.

"Did Schenck have anything to do with your work or preparing the tax returns?" Schadler was asked.

Sixth of District Population Carries Trichinos Parasite

The United States Public Health Services disclosed yesterday that one-sixth of Washington's population carries the trichinous parasite, but emphasized that presence of the organism does not mean the carrier actually has trichinosis.

Disclosure of the unexpectedly high incidence of the parasite, result of a four-year study by the Public Health Service Zoology Division, followed examination of 3,000 postmorten specimens in 10 district, 4 naval and 2 marine hospitals.

The percentage of individuals carrying the trichinous organism in the 3,000 specimens is believed to indicate the extent of infestation to be found in similar population groups in other parts of the United States. Trichinous infestation is believed to be less in rural areas and a survey of these areas is now being made by the zoology division of the National Institute of Health.

Despite popular opinion, Public Health Service zoologists believe the practice of feeding raw garbage to hogs is more to blame for trichinosis in humans than eating improperly cooked pork.

Doctors Seek to Introduce GHA Records

Medical Society are the group defendants.

From 11:48 a. m. until adjournment at 4 p. m., save for an hour's lunch recess, the 73-year-old former director of the A. M. A.'s bureau of legal medicine and legislation revealed circumstances surrounding acts by him which the Government brands as criminal.

William E. Leahy, defense council, asked the questions. Dr. Woodward gave the answers and, when called upon, identified letters and miscellaneous papers written by him in regard to the Group Health Association issue.

Most of the documents with which the witness was confronted and which Leahy read to the jury had been previously submitted by the prosecution.

Heard of G. H. A. in 1937

But whereas the latter offered them as cold, isolated bits of evidence in its case against the retired A. M. A. official, Leahy pieced the documentary exhibits together into an orderly pattern purporting to demonstrate that Dr. Woodward was only fulfilling his legitimate duties, not conspiring or pulling strings.

The witness explained that he first heard of the movement to organize G. H. A. in May, 1937, through a letter received from Dr. J. Russell Verbrycke, jr., a member of the District Medical Society but not a defendant.

He smitted reading a copy of the letter sent two months earlier to Dr. Olin West, general manager of the A. M. A., by Maj. Gen. Merritte W. Ireland, U. S. A., retired, but this communication did not mention G. H. A. by name. Rather, it said that the Home Owners Loan Corporation appeared to be starting up an enterprise that might be an "entering wedge" to State medicine.

"I filed my copy, took no action on it, had no personal interest in it," Dr. Woodward testified.

Step by step they went over the ground together, the defense lawyer and the witness, who himself is a lawyer as well as doctor. Dr. Woodward, a native Washingtonian, took his law and medicine degrees at Georgetown.

Requested by Dr. Verbrycke

He explained that he came here from A. M. A. headquarters in Chicago in the late spring of 1937 at the request of Dr. Verbrycke and because his letter indicted that the G. H. A. issue might have national implications. On the other hand, there was nothing in the earlier Ireland letter to show that the problem was anything but a local one, Dr. Woodward said.

In Washington, he continued, he conferred with Dr. Verbrycke, who was chairman of the local society's economics committee, and with an HOLC official. The latter was courteous but would not, or could not, supply him with a copy of the contract between G. H. A. and HOLC, the witness declared.

Back in Chicago, he said he continued his general investigation of Group Health Association, in the course of which he made more trips to the Capital.

"I was particularly disturbed by the articles of incorporation," he testified. "It had been my understanding that the project was only for the care of HOLC employes, but the articles of incorporation authorized a national setup to which all Federal workers, except Army and Navy enlisted men and officers, would be eligible."

"What was the purpose of your investigation?" Leahy asked.

"To assemble all the facts and present them to the trustees of the American Medical Association," Dr. Woodward replied.

The elderly doctor's calm recital was frequently interrupted by Leahy's reading to the jury of letters which had been offered by the Government. Some were written to Dr. Woodward by John F. Hayes, whom the witness described as a Washington lawyer who was local "correspondent" for the A. M. A.'s Bureau of Legal Medicine and Legislation.

The Hayes letters told of his letters to learn more about G. H. A. and of the $40,000 loan or subsidy—the status of this aid has never been made clear—by HOLC.

One communication, from Dr. Woodward to Dr. Thomas E. Neill, also a defendant, criticized the local society's hiring of a nonmedical press agent to conduct its "fight" against G. H. A.

The witness said that the article in the A. M. A. Journal of October 2, 1937, which the Government claims was a law-breaking attack upon Group Health Association, was simply the editorial form of a report made by him to the A. M. A. trustees.

Deny Control of Hospitals

Heard from the witness stand before Dr. Woodward began his testimony were Dr. C. Gordon Heyd, of New York, a former president of the American Medical Association, and Dr. Christopher G. Parnall, director of the Rochester (N. Y.) General Hospital.

The former said the A. M. A. neither held nor cared to exercise control over the Nation's hospitals, as far as compeling them to limit their staffs to organized doctors is concerned.

Dr. Parnall's testimony, similarly, was to the effect that American hospitals had no pressure put on them by the medical association.

D. C. Vice Problem Declared Growing

prostitution in one community near an Army center often result in nothing more than transfer of prostitutes to another neighborhood even nearer the Army camp.

"The problem can't be met except through legislation of this kind," he said.

Prostitutes move into the Fort Knox neighborhood in 50 to 100 automobiles and trailers on the night before pay day, he reported, and then move on in two or three days, "leaving a serious health problem."

The Armys chief chaplain, Col. William F. Arnold, pleaded that "ravening wolves clamoring at the gates" of Army posts be driven away. He joined spokesmen for the Public Health Service in advocating enactment of the legislation, which they said was almost identical to that in force during 1917-18.

First New Powder Plant Is Ready

Radford works alone will more than offset that loss.

Some indication of the size of the huge ordnance works is gained from the disclosure yesterday of some details of the establishment. The War Department said there will be 14 separate powder plants, 353 manufacturing buildings, and 272 other structures when completed.

Protected Against Raids

Special attention has been paid in the layout of the plant and design of the buildings to protection against aircraft attack as well as explosions, the War Department said. A large specially trained police force has been enrolled to enforce antisabotage measures.

Patterson, Maj. Gen. Charles M. Wesson, chief of Army Ordnance; Maj. Gen. Edmund B. Gregory, Army quartermaster general, and some 80 others will leave here by special train early tomorrow for the dedication exercises. The plant is owned by the Government and will be operated by the Hercules Powder Co.

Grand Jury Probes Zinc Shortage

New York, March 12 (AP).—Federal grand jury subpenas were issued today to the Anaconda Copper Mining Co., the New Jersey Zinc Co., American Smelting & Refining Co., and the American Zinc Institute as the Department of Justice began an inquiry into the zinc industry. The subpenas are returnable April 24.

Allen A. Dobey, special assistant to the Attorney General, said the antitrust division of the Department of Justice was seeking to determine whether a current "serious shortage" in high class zinc—used in defense industries—is due to other than natural trade causes.

Present CAA Setup Satisfies Airline Chiefs

Operating heads of U. S. airlines, called to Washington following the crash of a passenger plane near Atlanta, Ga., on February 27, have indicated to the Civil Aeronautics Administration that they do not desire a further reorganization or another transfer of the agency, Robert H. Hinckley, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, said yesterday.

Hinckley said that the airline heads, who conferred with CAA technical experts on accident prevention, indicated a general feeling that there have been "too many moves around here already."

Relieved Reply to Hill

Hinckley's remarks were seen as directed at recent Congressional agitation to restore the CAA to its previous independent status before it was made part of the Department of Commerce.

Since the Atlanta accident, Hinckley added, orders have been issued to fix all ceiling limits at 200 feet higher than those previously set at 600 feet or less. In addition, ten senior inspectors have been delegated to make a 30-day survey over all airlines to check operations of the CAA as well as those of the commercial carriers, Hinckley said.

He declared that the airline officials pointed out that the safety record of their lines was "still pretty good," despite recent accidents. The American record, Hinckley added, is "far better" than that of any foreign country.

Figures Cited

In 1936, he explained, 7,000,000 miles were flown per fatal accident; in 1937, 12,000,000 miles were flown; in 1938 the figure was 9,000,000, in 1939 it rose to 30,000,000. Last year, there were 39,000,000 flying miles per fatal accident.

On Capital Hill, meanwhile, where a special Senate subcommittee on air safety is getting ready to investigate the air safety situation, Chairman Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, announced the appointment of Lieut. Carl Brown Harper, retired naval aviator, as committee counsel.

House Committee Named

Speaker Rayburn yesterday appointed Representative Nichols (Democrat), Oklahoma, chairman of a five-man House committee to investigate recent commercial airline crashes.

The other members named were Representatives Pearson (Democrat), Tennessee; Kleberg (Democrat), Texas; Dirksen (Republican), Illinois, and Hinshaw (Republican), California.

The House earlier in the week appropriated $10,000 for the inquiry.

Police Await Word of Clews In Bride Killing

Hope that Detective Sergt. Aubrey M. Tolson, who is in Kansas City inquiring into the background of Mrs. Rose Simons Abramowitz, 29, will turn up some tangible evidence was expressed by police officials here last night.

Police admitted they were almost at a standstill in their investigation of the brutal murder of the bride of 30 days who was criminally attacked and strangled in her apartment at 1901 Sixteenth Street Northwest, last Saturday and are waiting to hear from Tolson.

Yesterday detectives continued running out information and tips from citizens, most of which were obtained through anonymous telephone messages.

In most cases, it was said, the callers were women who said they had been molested by men in the last month but had failed to report the attacks because of fear of publicity. The murder, they said, convinced them their information may be important to police.

Meanwhile, investigators exonerated as a possible suspect a 30-year-old Cuban who shot himself to death at a downtown shooting gallery Tuesday night.

The fact the man lived near the Abramowitz apartment prompted detectives to inquire into his whereabouts Saturday. A sister established an alibi for him. She proved her brother, who was in ill health, had spent the entire day in her presence.

Coulee Dam Power Spurned By Spokane

By the Associated Press

Spokane, March 12.—Spokane, only large city in the Grand Coulee Dam area, again has rejected public power distribution from the world's largest hydroelectric project.

Yesterday's complete unofficial vote on municipal distribution of Grand Coulee power was: Yes, 17,279; no, 26,609.

The ordinance would have authorized the city commission to purchase and distribute retail power from the Grand Coulee Dam, either through acquisition of the Washington Power Co. system or a newly built competing system.

A maximum expenditure of $4,200,000 was placed on the cost of the system if the power company were bought out or $8,500,000 if new distribution facilities were installed.

Five months ago, Spokane voters rejected a county-wide public utility district proposal for using Grand Coulee power which carried in districts outside the city.

Yesterday's election, another victory for the water power company, whose president, Kinsey M. Robinson, vigorously campaigned against the municipal distribution ordinance, brought the assertion today from Representative Rankin (Democrat), of Mississippi, in Washington, D. C., that the vote might mean the loss of Grand Coulee power to Spokane in any form.

Rankin said he interpreted the election to mean the majority of Spokane citizens do not want "the benefits of cheap electricity from Grand Coulee."

"This power," he added, "will be distributed at Bonneville yardstick rates to people of the surrounding territory, but not one kilowatt hour of it will be turned over to private power companies to rob the people of Spokane or any other community with exorbitant overcharges in their retail rates.

Vote Termed City Setback

"Unless this vote is reversed, it undoubtedly will be the greatest setback the City of Spokane ever received. We do not propose to have Grand Coluee power handled by any agency that does not bind itself to distribute it at yardstick rates prescribed by the Administration."

The power campaign was waged against the background of a private versus public power service controversy which reached white heat early last fall when the Federal Power Commission held hearings in the Northwest on political activities of utility companies, including the water power company.

In subsequent reports, the power commission charged the utilities with spending millions to influence local elections, with keeping duplicate sets of books and with having subsidized numerous prominent citizens to work against public distribution.

At the request of the Spokane city commission, Dr. Paul J. Raver, Bonneville power commissioner, and groups of Bonneville engineers attended Spokane mass meetings and explained benefits and possibilities of public power distribution.

Ordinance Criticized

On the private power side, Robinson addressed half a score of mass meetings, condemned the ordinance as giving the city commission a "blank check" and contended it offered no guarantee of rates or of adequate service.

A report from the engineering firm of Burns & McDonnell, of Kansas City, which asserted a public distribution system could save rate payers 39.2 per cent of their annual payments, was released by the city commission.

The utility attacked the report as out-dated and declared the rates on which the report was based already had been reduced and that $1,750,000 of the saving of $2,000,000 which the report had indicated possible already had been made.

Salesmen for the power company campaigned against the ordinance and a group of private citizens was formed into the "Voters League Against the Public Power Ordinance."

Although future developments were uncertain today, leaders of the public power campaign began discussing the possibility of another election next fall.

Spiritual Arms Spell Victory, Prelate Says

"The victory that is to change the face of the arth must come from the onward march of Christian soldiers dressed, as St. Paul puts it, 'in the armor of God,'" which is "not in the modern implements of bombs, tanks and airplanes."

The Most Rev. Francis J. Spellman, Archbishop of New York, spoke those words yesterday in a sermon at Catholic University at a mass commemorating the second anniversary of the coronation of his holiness, Pope Pius XII.

Church dignitaries, members of the Diplomatic Corps and persons from official life were present to hear the archbishop describe the Pope's efforts for peace. His excellency, the Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, pontificated. The mass was in the National Shrine of the Immaculate Conception.

"The spiritual weapons that will overcome the enemy" are, in the apostles' enumeration, "truth, justice, the gospel of peace, faith, the hope of salvation, the word of God," the archbishop said.

"Although armaments are being multiplied, I believe that the desire for peace on the part of all people was never greater. This desire in its deepest source springs from religion which teaches men to love one another, and its existence is the only good augury in this sad, mad world. It means that people are persuaded that any attempt to redress the wrongs of the world by military forces will fail lamentably as they failed in the last great war, and future wars will arise to mock our illusory hopes and efforts," he said.

"We of the twentieth century are witnessing the enslavement of man by the state, the cult of force, the deification of power, and the domination of right by might. Back once more the world has tumbled to the abyss of paganism and savagery."

He said that "man must worship something" and if he rejects God, "it may be the idol of the state, of greed, of avarice, of pride, of lust or of any created thing. It makes no difference, the result is always and inevitably the same; corruption of human hearts, strife between classes and war among nations."

"The holy father prays and works for peace, for internal peace based on the laws of fraternal and universal charity and justice, for external peace which requires the preservation or the restoration of the rights to national life and of independence," the archbishop said.

After the mass, the apostolic delegate received the Diplomatic Corps and other distinguished guests.

Among church dignitaries present were Most Rev. Edward Mooney, Archbishop of Detroit Most Rev. John A. Duffy, of Buffalo; Most Rev. John F. O'Hara, C. S. C., military delegate of the Army and Navy diocese of New York. The Right Rev. Msgr. Patrick J. McCormick, vice rector of the university, represented the rector, Most Rev. Joseph M. Corrigan, who was prevented from attending by illness.

DOCTORS stress remaining in bed until the body temperature is normal. Sound advice.

You know how weak you feel after a cold. Colds play havoc in weakening the body. The story is well told in the blood picture. It is important to build back body strength right away to carry the load of work, worries, and loss of sleep. A weakened body may be more susceptible to relapse or long drawn out recovery.

So reason sensibly and take the choice of millions by immediately starting on a course of S.S.S. Tonic—taken three times a day immediately before meals. In the absence of a focal infection or organic disease, you should note improvement in the way you feel and look within the first 10 days. The confidence of millions over many years is the best testimonial of this product.

Haman's Defeat Celebrated In Purim Festival Today

Purim, the festival which commemorates the victory of the Jews over their enemy, Haman, will be celebrated in congregations, temples and Jewish homes here today.

The observance started at sundown last night. A service, typical of many others here, was held by Adas Israel Congregation, 600 Eye Street Northwest. The reading of the Book of Esther, in which the story of Haman is told, and the taking of a collection to aid the fund for refugee settlement in Palestine, were features of the program, Rabbi Solomon H. Metz said.

In their homes after the services, people were to eat three-cornered cakes called "hamantashen," he said. The word means "Haman's pockets," and presumably refers to the fact that Haman meant to line his pockets with booty, Rabbi Metz added.

Story to Be Dramatized

Another service, and the reading of the Book of Esther will take place at 7 a. m. today at Adas Israel. The festival idea will be continued in homes tonight, with lighted candles at the table.

A program at the Jewish Community Center at 10 a. m. Sunday will include a dramatization of the story of Purim, Rabbi Metz said.

"The Challenging Message of Purim" will be the subject for a sermon by Rabbi Henry Segal at B'nai Israel Synagogue at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow.

Edmund I. Kauffmann, of Washington, president of the Zionist Organization of America, issued a statement from headquarters here calling on members to impress on the Jewish public at large the importance of aid to the national Palestine funds.

Refers to "Modern Hamans"

Referring to "our sense of assurance that the fate which has befallen Haman, who sought without mercy to destroy the entire Jewish people, will likewise be shared by Hitler and other modern Hamans," Kaufmann urged that the rejoicing be translated into help to the community in Palestine "which is aligned on the side of the forces of democracy against the arch enemy of civilization."

The statement from the Zionist organizations here pointed out that Purim, the Feast of Lots, commemorates the victory of the Jews over Haman "in the year 485 B. C., during the reign of King Ahasuerus of Persia."

U. S. Research Experts to Study Resources of Latin America

A survey of Central and South American industrial and raw material resources, aimed at increasing foreign trade in the Western Hemisphere, is soon to be undertaken by 15 or 20 American private industrial research experts, it was disclosed yesterday by Commerce Secretary Jesse H. Jones.

Jones told his press conference that the group, whose tour is sponsored by the National Research Council, will meet with him Saturday and will depart for South America in the next week.

If United States purchases can be increased in South and Central American markets, Jones indicated, the ability of those nations to buy more of this country's produce will be concurrently enlarged.

"We have been trying to encourage men going to South America," Jones said, "with a view to improving our trade relations and especially to finding things we can buy from those countries, to be helpful to them while their European markets are cut off."

Jones declined to specify what commodities would be investigated by the experts, but it was inferred that the major prospective American imports from other nations in this hemisphere would be products needed in the national defense program.

Included in the group to make the tour are representatives of United States chemical, steel, metallurgical, soap, fabric and pharmaceutical industries.

Matsuoka Asks Sun Goddess To Aid Mission

By Hugh Byas

Copyright by New York Times

Tokyo (Thursday), March 13.—The first formal act of Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka's pilgrimage to Berlin, Rome and Moscow began at 10 a. m. today in the small country town of Yamada, where he visited the national grand shrines sacred to the sun goddess and prayed for the success of his mission.

His departure last evening was in keeping with his character. Carrying the same cane he used at Geneva, when as Japan's representative he quit the League of Nations, he left him home. He dined privately with his family, said goodby on the porch and would not allow them to come to the station.

At the station Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye and all members of the cabinet, hundreds of dignitaries and political personages, great and minor, crowded the platform as the express pulled slowly out.

"I have no special mission or particular object in visiting Europe," Matsuoka said before his departure. "I will exchange felicitations on conclusion of the tripartite pact and have a friendly exchange of views."

Repeating his belief that personal contacts and unreserved talks between statemen in charge of foreign affairs in nowadays absolutely necessary, Matsuoka continued:

"The major object of my trip is to meet the leaders of Germany and Italy, explain the real significance of Japan's foreign policy, and tighten Axis cooperation in order to make a substantial contribution toward construction of lasting peace and a new order of the world."

Matsuoka expects to be back in Tokyo by the middle of April.

Nazi Envoy May Join Him

Tokyo (Thursday), March 13 (AP). The belief that Foreign Minister Matsuoka will be joined by the German Ambassador to Tokyo, Gen. Eugen Ott, on his trip to Berlin was strengthened today by reports that Matsuoka planned two aerial hops to hasten his arrival in Harbin.

Ott arrived in Harbin Wednesday, according to Domei, Japanese news agency.

Newspapers reported that Matsuoka and his party would fly from Osaka to Taikyu, Korea, then go by rail to Keijo, Korea, and by plane again to Hsinking. There the party planned to board a train arriving in Harbin Saturday at 10 p. m.

New Textile Minimum Wage Group Is Named

The Wage-Hour Division announced last night the appointment of a new textile industry committee to recommend minimum wages.

Lessing Rosenwald, of Jenkintown, Pa., former chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co., was named chairman of the committee, which will meet here April 14.

The industry now is operating on a minimum wage of 33½ cents an hour recommended by the first textile committee headed by Donald M. Nelson. Wage-hour authorities pointed out that the Government was contemplating an expenditure of $175,000,000 in textile defense orders in the next ten months, and added that the manufacturers wanted the base rate question settled before beginning production on these orders.

Auto Engineers Meet Here Today

A two-day national aeronautic meeting, under the auspices of the Society of Automotive Engineers, will open today in the Hotel Washington.

Today's sessions will deal mainly with technical phases of aircraft and engines. Highlight of tomorrow's program will be a discussion of the "Coordination of Aircraft Manufacture in Automobile Plants," at 7 p. m.

Greed Held Peril to Amity Of Hemisphere

Businessmen of the United States, by paying less attention to profits and more attention to aims and principles of true Pan-Americanism, can play a leading role in the current movement to strengthen ties of friendship with Latin America, Dr. Luis Quintanilla, Minister-Counsellor of the Mexican Embassy, yesterday told the Washington Rotary Club.

The plight of the masses in countries south of the border, Dr. Quintanilla declared, must be regarded by United States business with an attitude of tolerance and sympathy. Until the workers in these countries—most of whom earn a pittance—are given a chance to develop, the true aims of Pan-Americanism are lost, he said.

Speaking to the Rotarians at a luncheon meeting at the Willard Hotel, Dr. Quintanilla warned that the concepts of Pan-Americanism are becoming dangerously muddled in this country.

"There is at present," he said, "an intoxication of Pan-Americanism in all the Americas. It is considered so all-important at the moment that it has become—as you say in this country—almost a racket. There is an overemphasis on the subject and in many ways the concept has been far from clear."

True Pan-Americanism, the diplomat declared, is based on a continental policy of peace, friendship and solidarity for all. He said he felt it was wrong to connect the strengthening of Latin-American relationships with the present emergency—or any emergency."

"Where will the relationships of people on this hemisphere stand when the emergency is over?" he asked. And by way of answering added:

"Pan-Americanism should be based on a lasting and continuing program by both sides and should not rise and fall, so to speak, with existing emergencies."

Curran Probes Repossession Of Marine's Car

District Attorney Edward M. Curran announced yesterday that thorough investigation was being made of a Quantico Marine sergeant's charge that soldiers' protection laws were violated by a finance firm that seized his automobile.

The sergeant was behind in his installments and the car was taken off the streets, it was said. The law provides that property sold on installments cannot be repossessed from a man in military service without a court order.

Curran said investigation by Detective Sergt. Joseph Shimon indicated that the marine's note was held by a large Washington bank and was sold to a private finance operator a few days before the car was repossessed.

The district attorney has called on the bank to send its records and officials to his office to be questioned Saturday.

Curran said he also would question the marine, his wife and the private finance operator who seized the car.

The law provides one year in jail or $1,000 fine or both for repossessing property from men in military service without court order. Curran said that if his investigation indicated knowing violation of this provision he would issue warrants.

Alien Students Tell of Hopes For Life in U. S.

Seven foreign-born Washington students whose native countries are either at war or on the brink of conflict last night celebrated the tenth anniversary of the International Students Society of George Washington University by telling a radio audience of their hopes for a future in this country.

Only one, a coed from Turkey, said that she planned to return to her homeland after the war is over.

Another, Lucy Spingarn, is not sure which country she may claim as her native land. She was born in Austria in a town later taken over by Poland and more recently by Russia. Her parents were French and she was educated in London.

The students sang, recited their native poems and played their native music on the piano. They were Kenneth Sze, of China; Dalys Escoffery, of Panama; Severino Ferraris, of the Philippines; Helen Skolianik, of Czecho-Slovakia; Filiz Erol, of Turkey; Nicholas Lakes, of Greece, and Lucy Spingarn.

Master of ceremonies was Paul N. Yost, the "Hatchet reporter," assisted by Otis Wilson. American Betty Burnett accompanied the singers with her accordion.

Miss Escoffery, an employe of the Pan American Union, is a contestant in the George Washington yearbook beauty contest.

The students broadcast on the "College Notes" program over Station WINX.

Dentists Urge Care of Child's First Teeth

Don't let Junior pull that loose molar until it is ready to come out, experts at the five-State dental convention at the Mayflower Hotel warned yesterday, blaming a large percentage of crooked teeth in adults on neglect and early extraction of children's first teeth.

At discussion clinics which constituted most of the fourth daily session, the dentists pointed out that most teeth troubles can be corrected by attention in early childhood.

Recent developments in false teeth have made them almost identical with natural teeth, it was reported by Dr. Walter J. Prior. When Uncle Henry gets new molars these days, he gets a transparent root and gum contraption so that no artificial supports can be seen.

And within a few weeks he may expect to have his new teeth pretreated so that irregularities and discolorations are duplicated on the false teeth.

Featured at the convention yesterday was a hobby exhibit, in which were displayed busmen's holiday hobbies of local dentists. Intricate carvings of humans and animals made from dental inlay wax were exhibited by Dr. John Bell. X-ray studies of variations in golf balls, made with his office X-ray were shown by Dr. Bruce L. Taylor. And a collection of barber bottles and ionic jugs used by early dentists was in an exhibit by Dr. J. W. Bernhart.

Last night the 3,000 dentist delegates attended a dinner and dance in the Mayflower ballroom sponsored by the District Dental Society.

Obey Signs To Keep Right, Drivers Told

Strict observance of directional signs at 107 streetcar loading platforms was ordered yesterday by the District Commissioners.

In each case the sign requests motorists to "Drive to right."

The Commissioners took a firm stand on the matter yesterday after receipt of an opinion from the corporation counsel's office. The opinion stated that the Commissioners did have the authority to forbid vehicular traffic along the car tracks within the loading zone but that arrow signs were necessary at various locations.

In the Northwest section—Columbia road at Eighteenth Street; Connecticut Avenue at Dupont Circle, L, M, N, O, P, S, T Street at Seventh, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Thirteenth and Fourteenth Streets; Georgia Avenue at Rock Creek Church Road; Indiana Avenue at John Marshall Place extended and Third Street; New York Avenue at Fourteenth and Fifteenth Streets; Pennsylvania Avenue at Jackson Place, Seventh, Ninth, Tenth, Twelfth, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first and Twenty-fifth Streets; Six Street at Pennsylvania Avenue; Seventh Street at Washington Drive; Constitution Avenue and K Street; Eleventh Street at F, G and S Streets; Fourteenth Street from G to I Streets and from Thomas Circle to U Streets and at Park Road; Fifteenth Street at P Street and at Seventeenth Street at H, I and K Streets.

Northeast—Benning Road at Fifteenth Street; Florida Avenue at Eckington Place, Third and Fifth Streets; Massachusetts Avenue at North Capitol Street; Rhode Island Avenue at Fourth Street.

Southeast—Independence Avenue at New Jersey Avenue.

Southwest—Maine Avenue at M, N and O Streets; P Street at Fourth Street and Seventh Street at Independence Avenue and Adams Drive.

Legal Aid to Low Income Groups Discussed Here

The problems of making legal services available to lower income groups were discussed last night by Gerald Monsman, acting head of the Baltimore Legal Aid Bureau, at the annual dinner meeting of the local Community Chest-supported Legal Aid Bureau held at the University Club.

Monsman stressed the development of closer contact with the organized bar, and the establishment of a system for providing legal services to low income groups "economically above the legal aid level."

Dean Stanley Hill, president of the Washington Bureau, acted as toastmaster. He was introduced by Miss Beatrice A. Clephane, executive of the agency. More than 50 persons attended the dinner gathering.

Inquest Ordered In Death of Man Hit by Streetcar

17TH TRAFFIC DEATH—Louis F. Schellhorn, 82, of 2503 Fourteenth Street Northwest, whose death in Garfield Hospital was the seventeenth traffic fatality this year, was struck by a street car after stepping off a loading platform in crossing street. Motorman Eldbridge S. Fallin, 25, of 523 Kennedy Street Northwest, told police the street car was traveling between 10 and 15 miles per hour

D. C. traffic deaths this year . 17
District deaths last year ..... 15
Total deaths last year ..... 79

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald ordered an inquest for 12:30 p. m. today after an autopsy disclosed that Louis F. Schellhorn, 82, of 2503 Fourteenth Street Northwest, died of a fractured skull.

Schellhorn, a retired carpenter, died at Garfield Hospital Tuesday after he was struck by a streetcar at Fourteenth and Clifton Streets Northwest. It was at first believed that the elderly pedestrian suffered a heart attack, but the post mortem disclosed his death was due to a fractured skull.

His death was recorded as the District's seventeenth traffic fatality this year, as compared with 15 at this time last year.

The streetcar motorman, Elbridge S. Fallin, 25, of 523 Kennedy Street Northwest, will appear at the hearing, police said.

Snow Parking Ban To End Tomorrow At Midnight

Washington's "snow removal" parking ban ends at midnight tomorrow.

Since December 15, some 75 miles of District streets have been banned to night parkers between 2 a. m. and 8 a. m. But the only "big snow" of the season last week found wholesale violations on virtually every one of the prohibited parking areas.

Street cleaners, starting early Friday night to "remove" the snow, litterly "plowed under" vehicles parked at the curb. The police department was swamped with calls requesting officers to "lay off" because it was impossible to move.

2 Couples Killed As Train Hits Auto

Worcester, Mass., March 12 (AP).—Two Auburn men and their wives were killed tonight in a grade-crossing accident when their automobile and a special train, laden with Army selectees, collided.

The dead were identified by police as Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln S. Pond and Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Blais.

Jaywalking Regulation Faces Test

Legality of the District's jaywalking regulation, which forbids pedestrians from crossing the street between intersections in a "reckless manner," will receive its first test Saturday when Presiding Judge John P. McMahon of Police Court will decide whether a woman, struck by an automobile and hospitalized, should have received a ticket for reckless walking.

Mrs. Lucille R. Ritter, 3819 Fourteenth Street South, Arlington, Va., was struck by an automobile on Fifteenth Street Northwest between H and I Streets February 8. According to her attorney, Reeves R. Hilton, Mrs. Ritter spent five days in the hospital and five days at home. Both Mrs. Ritter and her attorney are employed by the National Labor Relations Board.

Briefs were filed yesterday with Judge McMahon by Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward M. Thomas and Hilton, with Thomas upholding the regulation and Hilton requesting the charges against his client be dismissed.

After her recovery a charge of reckless walking was filed against her and collateral set at $25. She decided to take the case to court. The corporation counsel's office at Police Court made the recommendation that the defendant enter a plea of guilty and be permitted to post a personal bond.

Judge McMahon insisted, however, that the defendant and the corporation counsel submit briefs on the legality of the regulation.

Hilton, in his brief, maintains that the specific regulation "is unconstitutional and void because the regulation shows upon its face that the matters herein are not properly within the power of regulation or control; that the regulation is arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable; that the regulation is ambiguous, vague and indefinite."

He also attacks the authority of the District Commissioners in promulgating the regulation.

Thomas contends that the law grants to the Commissioners the power to control traffic and that pedestrians are included within the word traffic. He said that traffic control is as essential for the pedestrian as the motorist.

The regulation in question states: "No pedestrian shall use any roadway between intersections when a vehicle is approaching from either direction so as to constitute a hazard for his own safety or use such roadway at any time in a negligent or reckless manner."

Noel Protests Bar's Concession To Negro Lawyers

F. Regis Noel, former president of the District Bar Association, yesterday protested the association's decision to admit colored lawyers to its library at District Courthouse by resigning from three committees and withdrawing as delegate to the Inter-American Bar Association convention.

Noel assailed the decision as yielding to "coercion" by Attorney General Robert Jackson, who last month told the bar to stop "discrimination" or find quarters elsewhere than on Judiciary Square. Noel quit the association's committee on housing, of which he was chairman, and committees on relations with the American Bar Association and the American Law Institute.

The association Tuesday night voted 115 to 54 to amend its by-laws to open the library to all lawyers upon payment of an $8 yearly fee.

Sharecroppers to Meet

The fourth annual meeting of the Washington National Sharecroppers will be held at 8:15 p. m. Friday at the Friend's Meeting House, 2101 Florida Avenue Northwest, on the theme of "Don't Forget Our Domestic Problems."

Mels Anderson, Labor relations director for the WPA and author of the recent study of the transient worker, "Men on the March," will be the principal speaker. The meeting was postponed from last Friday evening.

Marconi Memorial To Be Erected Here

By the Associated Press

A $32,000 granite and bronze memorial will be erected here to Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of wireless telegraphy, from which modern radio developed. The memorial will include a bust of the inventor sculptured by Attilio Piccarilli.

Secretary Ickes, announcing plans for the monument, said it would be financed by the Marconi Memorial Foundation, Inc., New York. Marconi, who died in 1937, was born in Bologna, Italy, in 1874, of Italian and Irish parentage.

Mrs. Charles G. Glover, chairman of the nursing committee, reported "with regret" the resignation of Miss Mary Regina Dillon as supervisor in charge of the Anacostia office. Miss Eileen Dixon, supervisor of the Southwest Division, was transferred to take charge of the Anacostia center.

Salvation Army Zoning Appeal Is Protested

A proposal by the Salvation Army to establish a church at 1211-1213 G Street Southeast was opposed yesterday by several nearby residents as the Board of Zoning Adjustment approved nine appeals and deferred action on ten others, including the Salvation Army petition.

Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Matthews and C. W. Berry, property owners in the 1200 block of G Street, appearing in protest, said the Salvation Army is not a church and should not be permitted to build in a residential neighborhood. The request had been turned down by the board before, but this time the Salvation Army appealed from a decision by the uilding inspector who held the proposed structure was not a church in the meaning of the zoning regulations.

The board will meet tomorrow at 4 p. m. to decide on the ten cases.

The Women's Army and Navy League won an appeal to permit the remodeling of the two-story sable in the rear of its building, 1015 L Street Northwest, to serve as an addition to the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club.

The cases approved by the board follow:

Ah Wong, owner, on behalf of I. Katzman, tenant, for permission to change a nonconforming use from a dry-cleaning agency without pressing machine operated by steam boiler, to a cleaning and tailoring establishment with pressing equipment operated by steam boiler, at 208 Second Street Southeast.

Max M. Jovernov, for permission to use rear of 1123-29 Seventeenth Street Northwest for specific use as an automobile repair shop and gasoline service station.

Sarah Mishkoff, for permission to change a nonconforming use from a grocery store to an office for the distribution of Bendix washing machines and other household appliances at 4009 Thirteenth Street Northwest.

Rena S. Loeb, for a variance from the open court requirements of the "F" Area District to permit the erection of a one-story rear addition to the dwelling at 1514 Third Street Northwest.

Kalbarius W. Dunlap, to permit the erection of a one-story rear addition to the dwelling at 3009 Dumbarton Avenue Northwest.

A. J. Wondrack, for permission to change a nonconforming use from a grocery store to a delicatessen and grocery store with incidental sales of magazines and periodicals at 310 Thirteenth Street Northeast.

Cecil E. and Katharine F. Wiley, to permit the erection of a one-story rear open porch on the dwelling at 5334 Broad Branch Road Northwest.

Capital Transit Co., for permission to extend the car barn now existing on part of square 1037, to include the entire square, said square bounded by East Capitol, A, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Streets Northeast.

Shinn, New Aide To Van Duzer, Takes Over Duties

George Curtis Shinn, 62-year-old Forest Glen, Md., lawyer who writes traffic safety slogans for a hobby, took over his new duties as administrative assistant to Traffic Director Van Duzer yesterday and spent the day "getting acquainted" at the traffic department.

Shinn, member of the Board of Trade Highway Committee, but admittedly no particular student of local traffic problems, was named to the post by the Commissioners. His job will be to handle the promotion of traffic safety and to serve as secretary to the board of revocation and restoration of operators' permits and the traffic advisory council.

When he accepted the appointment, Shinn said he "wasn't certain" what the new job entailed, but hoped to "learn fast and do a good job." He succeeds James V. McClintock, former member of Congress, who resigned to return to Oklahoma.

Continuance Given Buckley in Tipsy Driving Case

Attorney M. Edward Buckley, jr., 33, who is charged with driving while drunk, obtained a continuance at Police Court yesterday to prepare a motion in defense of a prosecution motion which attacks his "plea in bar."

After 30 minutes of debate during which Buckley verbally attacked Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech, Judge Neilson continued the hearings until March 20.

Yesterday's hearing was scheduled February 25, when Buckley withdrew a not guilty plea to the drunk driving count and filed the "plea in bar." The plea contends that the charge is illegal because his alleged offense was disposed of when he pleaded guilty and paid a fine of $25 for driving on the wrong side of the street.

World May Gain Through Crisis, Minister Says

Civilization may easily chalk up some of its greatest strides in the near future despite the present crisis, the Rev. John W. Rustin, pastor of the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, declared last night at the Jewish Community Center.

The minister pointed out that many of the world's most prominent scientific and social advances, such as the Gallileo's theory of the universe and the abolition of slavery, were achieved in times of world "confusion."

To achieve such progress people of separate communities and religious sects should cooperate in the same way that the Nation, he said, had reversed an earlier trend toward isolationist politics.

Walter Reed Strike Still At an Impasse

The strike of the Washington Building Trades Council at the Walter Reed Hospital expansion project, completed its first week yesterday with no sign of a settlement in view.

So far apart are the opponents in the dispute that Labor Department conciliators have called no conferences since the second mediation meeting last Saturday.

Three hundred American Federation of Labor workmen walked off the project last Thursday in protest over the employment of non-union labor by Contractor Sam Merando.

Merando, who has been involved in disputes with A. F. of L. unions several times in the past, received a contract from the War Department for the construction of two neuro-psychiatric wards at the hospital. More than 125 men employed by Merando and several of his subcontractors were at work yesterday.

A picket, hired by Merando and bearing a sign stating, "A. F. L. Unfair to Merando and This Defense Project," appeared beside the union picket with a sign saying "Merando Unfair to A. F. L."

The A. F. of L. workmen were employed in the construction of 15 barracks to house 750 enlisted men and draftees who will be trained for the Army Medical Corps next summer. The barracks were more than half completed when work stopped.

Labor Department officials said yesterday that they would make no new moves in the strike until the return to Washington of Conciliation Commissioner Frank Sheehan, who was called out of town several days ago after initiating discussions.

Bill Of Costs

How much money will be necessary to effectuate the purpose of the lend-lease policy must remain in the realm of guesswork. All we know is that the job to which we have set our hands—namely, to rid the world of Hitlerism—is tremendous. The Nazis themselves are currently spending over 70 per cent of their annual national income in war-making. The British have stepped up their quota to 60 per cent, and even this figure is less than the taxpayers are prepared to shoulder, judged from the grumbling which has attended the war budgets to date. Our figure of $7,000,000,000 pales beside these contributions. It is about 8 per cent of our national income last year, and this is figuring on the $7,000,000,000 being spent within 12 months. Moreover we expect to get back tangible equivalent for the outlay.

In point of fact, the new aid budget is to be made available till June 30, 1943, when the lend-lease authority expires. This doesn't mean that the present sum is the last appropriation to be requested. It is the first, and it was necessary to make it sizable because of the time-lag between getting the money and translating it into fighting material. Even if $1,300,000,000 is set aside from our ready-to-ship material, that leaves $5,700,000,000 which cannot be translated into new planes, new tanks, and new ships till contracts have been let and the entire industrial process has been gone through. Better to give many orders now in dealing with an unknown future than to repeat the mistake of the British and give too few, for time wasted can never be recaptured.

Congress is now in the mood so to implement the policy which has been authorized with handsome majorities. The real problem is to mobilize our existing resources with the minimum of delay. It will be noticed that 10 per cent of the new budget is earmarked for new plant construction. This is doubtless necessary; but of prior importance, both from the standpoint of time and from that of postwar readjustment, is that our existing equipment be utilized to the limit. There is still a lag in subcontracting to the small workshops throughout the country which in sum make up a vast industrial capacity. Basic policies are still in process of determination; for example, priorities. The time has arrived, in particular, when our requirements of raw materials from overseas should be insured by the establishment of national defense priorities on shipping, but there seems to be hesitation in carrying out such a step. These and other policies, presumably, will be speeded up now that the lend-lease authority has been conceded.

In relative terms, as we have said, our first contribution is not heavy. And it must be borne in mind that it is the only kind that we are asked to make. The sacrifices of the fighting democracies extend far beyond the sweat and toil of material output, and they don't expect to get any of this back either. They ask us only for tools with which to fight. With their blood and sacrifice, and our material aid, the cause is bound to triumph, if we hold steadfast to our purpose. And we can then look forward to a demobilization of our country which will be impossible so long as Naziism remains on the rampage. This is the prospect that makes the $7,000,000,000 budget look cheap.

Bomb Plot

When George W. Rendel, British Minister to Bulgaria, left Sofia the other day, after addressing sharp words of rebuke to the government to which he had been accredited, King Boris placed his own private train at the envoy's disposal. This was no special act of chivalry on the part of the Balkan monarch. It was a manifestation of one of the oldest of diplomatic traditions. Had the Bulgarian Minister to Great Britain chosen to return home (he chose to resign, instead), he, too, would have been provided with every facility to leave.

Apparently, however, the efforts of the Bulgarian authorities to provide safe conduct for Mr. Rendel were far from complete. In the opinion of the British, the bomb explosion in the Istanbul hotel, where the envoy and his staff were staying, traces back to Sofia where, it is said, two suit cases containing bombs were mixed with the luggage of the British party. If this dastardly plot was intended to take the life of Mr. Rendel, it failed. But four other persons were killed and many were injured. The plot was successful enough to suggest gross neglect on the part of the Bulgarian authorities.

Air World

The advantages of competition in the exploitation and improvement of a new service or a new product are so patent that there is justifiable wonder to find on Capitol Hill so many friends of monopoly in respect of the transatlantic air service. In this matter Senators have a chance this week to declare their own stand. For, at the request of the Postoffice Department, the Senate Subcommittee on Treasury and Postoffice Appropriations has under consideration the restoration of an item to the 1942 appropriation bill which has twice been stricken out by the House and which would pay American Export Airlines for carrying mail on a projected transatlantic service to parallel the service operated by Pan American Airways.

There was no technical reason to account for the House veto. The Civil Aeronautics Board has issued a certificate of convenience and necessity to permit Export to operate, and American Export has spent $2,000,000 in research. In giving the permit the board acted on the basis of the act which brought the board into existence. The board is required to consider "competition to the extent necessary to assure the sound development of an air-transport system properly adapted to the needs of the foreign and domestic commerce of the United States, of the Postal Service, and of the national defense." In these circumstances the House subcommittee, by refusing the appropriation a second time, seemed to be challenging the board's expert authority, let alone its judgment.

In the hearings, the House subcommittee members repeatedly raised the issue of economy. Pan American, whose route to Lisbon would be paralleled by American Export, offered additional service much more cheaply than it was estimated Export could provide at the start. It is always a comfort to find Congress economy-minded. Generally, however. it has not hitherto been felt that economy in carrying the mail was the main criterion in regard to grants. When an extension of existing services has been deemed advisable by the Civil Aeronautics Board, with a view to assuring "the sound development of an air-transport system," appropriations have been forthcoming. Many lines have been established before there was any certainty that postal revenues would equal the amount paid out by the Government. At present, for instance, three lines are carrying mail between New York and Chicago, whereas one line might conceivably have provided the service more economically at the outset. As long ago as 1938, moreover, the desirability of competition was strikingly expressed in a House subcommittee hearing attended by at least one of the present members. The question was the extension of air-mail service in Alaska, and A. J. Dimond, the Alaskan Delegate, had mentioned the possibility that an important existing line with mail routes nearby might be the successful bidder. The following exchange ensued:

> The Chairman: Would they not be liable to capitalize that situation and set up an additional rate figure because they think they have a monopoly?
> Mr. Dimond: No; I do not think so, because there are too many others that are competent to bid.

Now there is no intimation that Pan American has taken advantage of its monopoly of foreign air service to ask exorbitant rates. Yet the conversation between the chairman and Mr. Dimond in 1938 does bring out the recognized advantage of competition, if that were necessary. Air transport is of vital interest in connection with the part we shall play in the next world order. If we clamp down enterprise of this nature now, we shall not have the means with which to play our part in the air world of the future. Surely the development of the steamship would not have reached its present great proportions if each nation had confined the expansion of the service to a single company.

Income-Tax Week

This week several million persons who have never before struggled with an income-tax statement will have to file declarations with the Treasury. Other millions who have hitherto filed declarations but escaped payment of taxes will find themselves no longer exempt, while everybody subject to the income tax will be called upon to pay more on the same income basis. All this is due to the action of Congress in lowering exemptions for single and married persons and imposing a special 10 per cent defense levy on the increased income taxes.

March 15 is also the deadline for corporations subject to income taxation. The corporate levies have been greatly increased by changes in the tax laws. Not only is the normal income tax boosted for larger corporations to 24 per cent, an excess profits tax ranging from 25 to 50 per cent is added which is intended to transfer a substantial part of the earnings of the defense boom to the Treasury. The inroads which the profits taxes have made upon the increased earnings of some large corporations indicate that this effort is succeeding. Thus the income-tax paying public has begun to realize that defense calls for personal sacrifices both directly in the form of higher income taxes and indirectly through loss of dividends from companies called upon to make larger contributions to the Government.

Fortunately there is a brighter side to the picture. The national income is expanding under the stimulus of defense spending and tax yields are consequently expected to reach record heights this fiscal year. Next year they may amount to $4,500,000,000, which would be an all-time record. If these sanguine expectations are fulfilled, the strain upon the budget will be relieved, and there will be correspondingly less pressure to vote additional taxes. In any case it would be wise to defer consideration of new tax bills until industry has had time to adjust itself to the latest increases and it becomes possible to estimate with more assurance the probable yield of present taxes levied on individuals. Estimates of public expenditures as well as tax receipts will doubtless have to be radically revised in the light of changing conditions that no man can now foresee.

Leadership, Not Force

The concern of official Washington over strikes in defense industries is amply demonstrated by the type of corrective proposals now coming to the surface. Spokesmen for the Office of Production Management intimate that the Allis-Chalmers plant at Milwaukee may be taken over by the Government unless the 50-day strike which is holding up defense equipment can be settled soon. Simultaneously Representative Hobbs declares that the House Judiciary Committee is leaning toward drastic legislation because of the increasing seriousness of walkouts affecting armament production. Among the proposals under consideration by the committee is one to draft workers as men are being drafted for military training.

Actually, of course, the Government will not employ these extreme measures, except possibly as a last resort. The current talk of drafting industry and workmen is significant chiefly because it reflects a growing uneasiness over the spread of strikes for seemingly trivial causes. Walkouts are not infrequently ordered by one union merely to crush another. At South Plainfield, N. J., a union is reported to have struck in protest against an order by the National Labor Relations Board. Others are holding up the manufacture of defense equipment in an effort to prevent non-union men from reaping any of the advantages of the armament program. Such disputes show not only a crass indifference to the national welfare; they show also a naive assumption that the present emergency may be properly exploited for the benefit of certain organized groups.

Some employers, too, are unquestionably taking advantage of the situation to defeat the purpose of the act requiring them to bargain collectively with their employes. Managements that indulge in unfair labor practices in the hope that the pressure for speedy production will cloak their actions are in effect sabotaging the defense program just as much as are bickering labor groups. If persistent delays result from such conduct, plants may have to be taken over. The trouble here is that the Government is not in a position to operate a large number of factories efficiently, though the drafting of labor might prove even less successful.

What is needed at present is Government leadership in adjusting disputes and in keeping men on the job without denial of their rights while negotiations go forward. To apply compulsory measures in preference to the conference-table technique and the pressure of public opinion against recalcitrants would be a travesty on democratic principles. Now that the lease-lend bill is out of the way, Congress should get busy and strengthen the machinery for peaceful settlement of disputes. Talk of compulsion is no substitute for able leadership in making the cooperative approach successful. We must all realize, in William C. Bullitt's words, that from now on the country is not working for us but that we are all working for the country.

"Old Order Changeth"

In The Post of March 9 Mr. Cyrus S. Eaton outlines clearly two main reasons why the Republican Party can be expected to join the Whigs and the Federalists, as Mr. Willkie expressed the matter in his Lincoln Birthday address. These two reasons are given as (1) the isolationists and (2) the New Deal.

Unquestionably, as time passes, the country will completely condemn the isolation policy adopted by Republicans in 1920 as a matter of political expediency and recently defeated in the passage of the Defense of America Act. The policy of American isolation has done incalculable damage to the world of which we happen to be a part. The job which the Republican Party repudiated for political purposes in 1920 is now about to be completed.

New Deal opposition under Landon in 1936 and Willkie in 1940 may be expected to lead to final dissolution of the G. O. P. The people have ordered a New Deal for the third time and now we are getting one by force of Government spending in the public work of national defense. The Old Deal Party, which has consistently opposed the policy of spending for prosperity, can hardly be expected to survive a demonstrated success of the spending policy. A final solution of the unemploymepnt problem by Government spending may be expected to be the coup de grace of the party of reaction.

Before leaving on his recent trip to England, Mr. Willkie announced his acceptance of the people's verdict given on November 5, 1940. The Old Deal apparently has not yet seen the handwriting on the wall. A political party that has been consistently wrong for 20 years on public questions is already dead from the neck up.

Montgomery County

Persons contemplating moving into Montgomery County should be prepared to pay twice as much for 1941 auto tags as charged by District of Columbia. Add to this, $3 for driver's license plus 25 cents for each application notarized, and the total sum is as steep perhaps steeper than any other State in the Union.

These excessive charges are items that should be considered by any frugal minded family who hopes to find living conditions lower in Montgomery County.

Of Hornblowers

Among the lowest forms of animal life, along with the sea nettle (Callinema ornata), the chigger (Trombicula irritans), and the hookworm (Ancylstoma duodenale), may be classed the chronic hornblower (Homo vociferus). May I pass on to your readers a method whereby these irksome pests of humanity may be put to a slight practical use:

I used to heed the STOP-and-GO's
With watchdog assiduity,
Yet nearly always there were those
Who honked their blasted horns at me.

But now, not so. I've grown astute!
I crane no more to glimpse the flicker:
I wait until I hear them toot
And get across a darnsight quicker.

What though the sign says GO or STOP,
Though red or green may be the dye,
At corners where there is no cop
Their horn is faster than the eye.

America's Message

Such a tremendous crisis as this which we face today must surely bear a profound message to our very heart of hearts. And this is the message, as I see it: "Freemen, seek all possible unity while you are still free. For only an indissoluble unity can enable you to meet this testing time, and endure unto salvation."

We must hasten to make up for an enormous amount of wasted time and opportunity. Consider this: That our Nation's refusal to join the League marked the beginning of a vast series of setbacks for the entire world.

Quickly following this first setback of human hopes was our amazing demonstration of indifference to the world's economic plight, our sky-high tariff walls, which brought dismay to Czecho-Slovakians, who had come to look upon Americans with love and admiration, and made Italians, just through the mills of devastating war, feel that democracy is not always one with security and hence turn to Mussolini, the Miracle Man.

The Japanese, also unable to emigrate freely, and unable to sell us their wares at any reasonable profit, found themselves compelled to think of what a fine market China, properly handled, would be. And the Germans, many a whole family of whom were living in one little room, could not see where democracy had brought them joy or strength, and could not help listening to Hitler, who made them aware of all their misery and that lack of hope which they had never known before.

We can not make our wrongs be as if they had never been. But at least we can change our course from that selfishness which isolationism always is. We can rediscover our ties with God and with our fellow men throughout God's earth. America can cease to ask, "Am I my brother's keeper?" and, in the spirit of St. Paul, consider itself under obligation to all nations. Insofar as America cannot do this, she, like Czecho - Slovakia, Poland and France, is already numbered among the dead.

We shall see the sign of America's salvation when we see America giving without stint or limit wherever the needs of other free nations are appreciably greater than the needs of America. To some extent the Lease-Lend Act does show that we are on our way. We are certainly a long way from the America of the Coolidge-Harding days. And, since no nation (not even our own) really sacrifices beyond its own interest, it is perhaps too much to expect this Nation to act in any purely detached way in benefiting mankind. Yet the security of such nations as China, Abyssinia, Turkey and Palestine are so integrally related to our own security that we have a long way yet to go in helping them all before we can catch up with our own self-interest and stop to wonder what we are going to get out of any further giving.

In short, our enlightened self-interest has a colossal task to perform. This task towers in the effort required. And it towers in the exceeding importance of its results. And, in the ever-increasing tempo of the times, every moment lost is a moment of far-flung tragedy. Millenniums depend upon these next few moments, these next few weeks.

For Immediate Declaration Of War

We must fight again. Not to save England, nor democracy. Not for hate nor for vengeance. We must fight to preserve in our own individual selves something more precious than our bodies or our form of government. We must fight to remain men and women.

If we withhold from a declaration of war, we are in truth the decadent and inferior residue which the self-styled master gentlemen of Germany proclaim us to be.

Perhaps it is true that the America of legend is dead, for she never existed in a clumsy federation of States, in her giant industries, and in her profligate log-rolling Congress; America has existed only in millions of small bright flames of personal courage, self-discipline, and hopeful energy in a united people who faced the constant hazards of a hard struggle for life in a system of free enterprise.

These flames have been dimmed no doubt by the paternalism of work-relief, by the contumely and restrictions heaped upon those who have been successful in competition, and by the spread of comfortable collective doctrines. But it cannot be that they have been extinguished.

The tragedy is that if we delay a war declaration it may be too late to fight for that constellation of individual sparks which has been America. Only mobilized effort can produce armament at the nightmare speed of the movements of the totalitarian machine. By delay in assuming the war footing for which every instinct calls we may prove that we are in truth a part of that incompetent and spiritless herd that balks all human hopes by its love for personal ease. We should approach the inevitable sacrifices of war with humility and penitence.

Not long ago we abandoned the Germans and their democracy to pauperism and despair, which left them prey for a madman. When financial catastrophe overtook our former ally, Italy, we were pleased that Mussolini turned them from communism. We have operated our own democracy and its limitless resources with such inefficiency that we still have pauperism and want on a huge scale.

These are the reasons that each of us will be fighting selfishly, sorrowfully, for that flame in his own heart that made him an independent, hopeful and well-meaning citizen—fighting against forces that with ghastly suddenness destroyed independence, hope and friendliness in half the world. And if the battle is won none of us will rest until the right uses of freedom are made under democratic systems.

We must fight this war coolly, and with our best brains, for uncannily clever brains oppose us. The hysterically bared breast will do us no good. Strategy may compel us to surrender our interests and dependencies in the Pacific area and place upon Japan the frightful cost of attacking the Hawaiian Islands and the Pacific Coast if she wishes to fight us. The navy must participate in the convoy of supplies to England and the air force must help destroy enemy factories and ports.

We must help preserve England as a base for a mightier air force than Hitler's, so that his plan to destroy free nations can be smashed at its source—the heart of Germany.

The Silver Voice

On the nineteenth of March, 81 years ago, William Jennings Bryan was born. His father was a lawyer, he lived in a small town, but what was remarkable about the boy, and later the man, was his voice. No church, or hall, or opera house was ever large enough to hold the crowds that came to hear him. "Silver-tongued," the people called him from one end of this country to the other. If you speak of Bryan today to any middle-aged acquaintance, his face will light with memory and pleasure.

"Oh, yes, I remember the 'Cross of Gold' speech. I had to stand hours to hear him, but it was worth it."

There is an early photograph of Bryan taken by his intercollegiate debating team. He stands beside Jane Addams, one hand stuck between the first and second buttons of his Prince Albert coat. He wore a high collar and black necktie—very conservative. But one notices the firm lines around the ample mouth, and the shining, eager determination in his young eyes.

Later in life Bryan is described as strong of body, magnetic, with a prominent nose, dark, piercing eyes, wide, eloquent mouth, thin lips, firm jaws, dark hair worn long, with a good figure, though corpulent.

"He was a man who stood out in a crowd . . . a commanding presence of eagle-like countenance."

Added to this striking personality was the clear strength and beauty of his voice. What a radio following he would have today. In those earlier years, before the introduction of the radio, his voice was heard by more people in this country than that of any other man. But one wonders if he would have enjoyed the radio. He could have reached still more thousands by using it, and with less wear and tear on his physical person, it is true, but probably with less satisfaction. For he enjoyed talking to people—the response of the crowd, the applause, human proximity made him quicken. He met their hushed expectancy with wit and oratory; they were as yeast to his bread.

A Presidential candidate three times, he spoke as many as 20 times a day during his campaigns. He was a popular Chautauqua lecturer, he spoke on political occasions and at innumerable dinners, he occupied pulpits on Sundays, and spoke informally on countless other occasions.

His career seems to have started in 1896 at the Democratic Convention in Chicago. It was a hot July day. There had been acrimonious discussions, tempers were on edge, few speakers could be heard at all in that immense hall. Then Bryan stepped onto the platform.

"A sweet reasonableness shone in his handsome face and his beautiful voice rang out like the notes of a bugle penetrating every nook and corner of the hall . . . " was the way Edgar Lee Masters described him. William Allen White was also there among the newspapermen, and it is interesting to read what this ardent Republican wrote about the young Nebraska Democrat:

"From the hypnotic silence which held it, the convention awoke to a hysteria of cheering. . . . The continent thrilled to that speech, and for a day the Nation was in a state of mental and moral catalepsy. . . . But after all it was Bryan's voice that won . . . a high barytone, soft, but never husky, silvern rather than golden, penetrating rather sharp. He was calm, restrained in a tumult . . . his delivery won where thought or composition would have left him stranded. He performed a miracle that hot July day in Chicago, no matter how he did 'it.'"

No doubt Bryan spoke too often to be always intellectual. His vocabulary was not extensive nor especially distinguished, but that did not matter. He used simple Anglo-Saxon words, understood by all—by the farmers and small businessmen who loved him. He had friends as few other men have, and, indeed, he once said there were thousands who would die for him. There was the Bryan the Middle West idolized, the sincerely devout, pious churchman the churches knew, the Bryan the politicians heard. He had something for everyone, a smile, a hand clasp, a story to make them laugh.

I like this fragment from an early speech: . . . "Great cities rest upon our broad and fertile prairies. Burn down your cities and leave our farms, and your cities will spring up again as if by magic; but destroy our farms and the grass will grow in the streets of every city in the country. . . ."

There is the story he liked to tell about the stout woman trying to get off a streetcar. She had to get off backwards, and every time she tried someone helped her on again, thinking she was entering instead of leaving. Bryan used this story to illustrate his three trials as Presidential candidate.

As he grew older, the great Commoner spoke less about political matters and more about religious. The words he spoke before a missionary conference in Edinburgh, Scotland, are good medicine today.

". . . these nations that have contributed of their money to help other nations and give them light and assistance prove that they have learned the Christian doctrine that as every individual can rejoice in his neighbor's good and prosperity, so every nation can bid every other nation Godspeed, and ask it to do its best and be a rival with all the others in all that goes for the uplifting of mankind."

He was an American we should not forget.

ELIZABETH STANLEY.

Of Dance Draftees

We hear so much about entertaining the draftees at the camps but little about the wife who has to sit at home and think of her husband dancing with all the girls. Why don't they make arrangements for the wives to come and attend these dances? After all it is rather hard for a wife to give her husband up for a year, and then on top of that to have him thrown with all the girls in Washington, where I understand there are many girls to every man.

The Measure Of The Risk

HOW GRAVE are the risks of the decision that has been taken no one can foresee. But it is certain that had this decision been taken sooner the risks would have been immeasurably smaller. Had the decision been delayed any longer, the risks would have been immensely greater. As it is, the only way to diminish the risks of the policy is to execute it swiftly and with all possible zeal. The risks are large because we are late. They will be very large if we are too late. They will be risks that this very great Nation can manage if, late as it is, we are resolved not to be too late and not to do too little.

LIPPMANN

Our safety depends upon how quickly the country realizes that the more powerful is its action, the least costly it will be. In civil life we know quite well that if there is trouble, be it a disease of the body or a fire in the attic or a run on the bank, the longer we wait to apply an adequate remedy, the more drastic are the measures that we have eventually to take. In war it is even more true that to be too late and to do too little is to multiply beyond calculation the risks and the sacrifices. It is the simple truth that American lives and American treasure have been jeopardized because we have waited so long and that they can be conserved only by the speed, the adequacy, and the effectiveness of what we now do.

IF H. R. 1776 HAD BEEN enacted two years ago, if six months before the war began, we had taken the same decision to make the United States the arsenal of democracy, is there any doubt that the chances of our becoming involved in a world war would have been much less than they are today? I realize that no democracy is ever as forehanded as that. But just suppose we had been.

Whatever the effect in Germany, it is certain that the effect on France, on Italy, on Turkey, on the Balkans, and on Japan, would have been profound. Even today the effect of our decision is profound throughout the world; this same decision taken before the great campaign of aggression got started would undoubtedly have aroused and fortified the will to resist it. For it would have been notice in advance, and when there was time to mobilize American industry, that while Hitler might win the first battles, he must surely lose the war.

IF H. R. 1776 HAD BEEN enacted 12 months ago, while the war was still the phony war, while Italy was still nonbelligerent, while France was still an ally, while Japan was still uncommitted to the Axis, the risks to us would have been far less than they are today. The French army might still have been defeated in France but the French Empire and the French fleet would still be at war.

For it would have been plain that the war was not going to end with the Battle of France, and the fateful decision taken at Bordeaux in June would almost certainly not have been taken. Those Frenchmen who wanted to fight on for the liberation of France would have had a solid reason for fighting on, and with the help of the French Empire and the French navy the whole situation from Gibraltar to Singapore would have been immensely more favorable. The degree of our involvement in the war would, therefore, have been immensely less.

HAD WE WAITED another six months to enact H. R. 1776, the degree of our involvement would surely have been greater than it may now have to be. For at the last practicable moment we have authorized the measures which, if they are completely successful, will keep the European and the Asiatic wars securely at a distance from this hemisphere—the measures which if they are only partially successful, can at least make available for the defense of this hemisphere some considerable part of the indispensable and irreplaceable power of the British Commonwealth.

IF ONLY WE CAN understand that what has made our intervention so full of risks is that we have waited so long and prepared so inadequately, we shall have learned the lesson which can and will still save us from even greater risks. We shall have learned that we can do nothing to make ourselves secure by making our own Government weak, our own action inadequate and indecisive. For we are not going to become more deeply involved in the struggle because we appropriate too much money or because we do not tie the hands of the President. We shall become more deeply involved if we fail to plan our actions on an adequate scale and if the President does not use his authority swiftly and efficiently. For what will increase our dangers is weakness not strength, impotence not power, hesitation and not decision.

So, while it is true that we have taken the decision in the leisurely way which the democratic process requires, let us not forget that we have still to prove that a free people cannot only consider carefully but that they can also act swiftly and efficiently. The British democracy were not able to act swiftly and efficiently until the enemy began to invade their very homes. It is for us to prove to a doubting world that the American democracy can act efficiently and swiftly while their enemies are still held securely at a distance by the power and the courage of their allies.

Negotiations On St. Lawrence Seaway Reported In Final Stage

By J. C. Stark

Associated Press Staff Writer

A new agreement with Canada on the long-delayed St. Lawrence seaway and power project was reported in the final stage of negotiation last night.

The talks with Canada were said to have reached the point where officials here expected to go to Ottawa soon to complete the formalities.

Once the agreement is signed, President Roosevelt is expected to submit it promptly to Congress as an emergency defense measure on which, he has said, "so much of our national safety and welfare depend."

With strong opposition groups preparing to fight it, there was increasing belief in informed quarters that the President would seek approval of both Houses of Congress by concurrent resolution rather than risk possible failure again to muster the necessary two-thirds vote in the Senate for ratification of a treaty.

Although some authorities hold that Congressional approval is unnecessary, President Roosevelt has stated definitely that he intended to submit the agreement to Congress. He has not disclosed, however, what procedure would be taken.

The expectation that it would be a concurrent resolution requiring only a majority in each House was based on opinions that this is possible under the 1909 boundary waters treaty with Canada.

President Roosevelt submitted the project in the form of a treaty in 1934 and the Senate voted 46 for and 42 against it, far short of the necessary two-thirds for ratification. Details of the new agreement have not been disclosed but it was understood it would retain some of the principal features of the earlier one, including a $130,000,000 credit to Canada for work already carried out on a related project.

He said the power project, in the international rapids section of the St. Lawrence River, was badly needed to "produce aluminum and more aluminum for the airplane program which will assure command of the air."

Admiral Darlan's Threat

TWO INTERPRETATIONS can be put on Admiral Darlan's threat to use the French fleet to convoy food ships if the British refused to permit wheat to enter unoccupied France. Either it was a simple and rather natural pressure move, without motive. Or it was the sign that Germany's unceasing diplomatic struggle to bring the French fleet into the war against Britain would soon be crowned with success. In the first case, British concessions will be useful; in the second, useless.

Happily the best opinion here inclines to the view that the first interpretation is correct. For a good many months the President and the State Department have worked to convince the British that "something could be done with Vichy." Before any important move can be made, Darlan's real intentions must first have been ascertained. But it seems extremely possible that the episode will close with the American Embassy at Vichy serving as a postoffice between the British and French authorities, and the arrangement of properly safeguarded food supplies for unoccupied France.

THE SITUATION is, of course, exceedingly ticklish. In his conversations with our Ambassador at Vichy, Admiral Leahy, Marshal Petain has constantly reiterated his determination to stand by the original armistice terms with Germany, and not to go beyond them in Franco-German collaboration. Admiral Darlan, however, devoted his first talk with Leahy to an embittered denunciation of the British and all their works. Like most French naval men, he never loved them. His feelings towards them were transformed into active dislike during the last days of the fall of France.

At that time he was outraged by the British decision that France was gone, and that it would serve no purpose to risk in France the air strength so desperately needed for the defense of the British Isles. He was also personally affected by an unfortunate accident. His son, in the French marines, was stationed next to the only British division that fought in the final battle of the Somme. On the first day, the French armies were ordered to hold their positions, and to die at their posts if necessary. There was no break through during the first day, but owing probably to a confusion of orders, the British division retreated. They not only retreated, they also blew up the bridges behind them, so that on the day following young Darlan and his fellow marines were trapped and taken prisoner in the German advance.

That Darlan hates the British, particularly after Mers el Kebir, Oran and Dakar, no one doubts. Luckily, unlike his predecessor, Pierre Laval, he also hates the Germans. Thus, despite his anti-British tendencies, it is believed, or perhaps one should say strongly hoped here that he means to follow the Petain policy of preserving the armistice status quo. Thus also it is strongly hoped that if the British can be induced to relax the blockade to allow passage to a stated number of Red Cross wheat ships, for supervised distribution in unoccupied French territory, Darlan will not carry out his threat to convoy French merchantmen through the blockade.

The question is vitally important. For if Darlan begins by convoying French merchantmen, he is almost certain to end by fighting the British fleet. And when the British naval resources are already strained to the utmost, it would be a tragic setback to have the French fleet come in on the German side.

THE TRUTH IS that at the State Department and in circles close to the White House, the British are thought to have been far from astute in their dealings with France since last spring. Once it became clear to the Vichy government that Britain was not certain to be defeated, the men of Vichy were at least partly liberated from German control, and there was room for diplomacy. Darlan himself had pledged his honor never to let the French fleet fall into German hands. At Montoire, when he blocked the unlovely plans of Laval, and later, when he dismissed Laval from the government, Marshal Petain set his face against giving military aid to Germany. Yet the British have never made any but the smallest concessions to France, and have made those grudgingly.

For the first concession to be obtained at all, Lord Lothian had to go to London and use his personal influence. Last fall, when American diplomacy began to be aimed a keeping Vichy from too active pro-German moves, the State Department urged the foreign office to allow the Red Cross to send milk ships and medicine ships for the French children. Through former Ambassador to France, William C. Bullitt, Lord Lothian was firmly converted to the American policy. In London, the ministry of economic warfare long resisted any concessions, and was only forced to give in when Lord Lothian entered the controversy in person.

Had Lord Lothian lived, further concessions might have been made before the situation became acute. Even now, however, always supposing that the American interpretion of Darlan's intention is accurate, there is an ample opportunity for sensible negotiation. All of which increases the likelihood of an American effort to make the British see the problem our way.

Food For Britain

By George Bookman

President Roosevelt's $7,000,000,000 lend-lease fund may sharply reduce the farm surpluses that have plagued the Government for the last decade, agricultural experts predicted yesterday.

The White House estimates sent to Congress include $1,350,000,000 for "agricultural, industrial and other commodities" which farm aid officials see as a welcome boon to the surplus heavy farm aid program and a needed partial substitute for war-lost agricultural export markets.

The British government, meanwhile, last night ordered a food mission and a shipping mission to rush to the United States to confer on these two vital shortages. John G. Winant, new Ambassador to Britain, conferred during the day with Lord Woolton, British food minister, according to London dispatches.

APPROVAL of the estimates by Congress would set off a series of British orders for American food supplies, for which preliminary arrangements have already been made, it was said.

The British are interested in buying American dairy products, particularly concentrated products that take little shipping space; livestock, tinned meats, particularly pork; tobacco and some fruits.

Their food needs were sketched on broad outlines in a list of British requirements submitted to the United States last year by Sir Frederick Philipps, British treasury undersecretary.

The shorter list of British emergency war necessities brought back from London by former Commerce Secretary Harry L. Hopkins is understood not to include any request for food.

A BRITISH food mission is on the point of leaving for the United States to discuss the entire problem with officials here. Secretary Wickard, sitting in on defense conferences at the White House, has already explored the problem with President Roosevelt.

H. A. Maxwell, tobacco comptroller for Great Britain, has been in the United States since last week to survey prospects of resuming British tobacco buying here, virtually stopped when the war began.

How much of the $1,350,000,000 in the White House estimates would go for agriculture was not definitely known yesterday at the Agriculture Department. Officials presumed that the White House had set down a rough figure and had not yet made a final decision on how the amount would be allocated among various commodities.

PROVISION for naming farm products as among "defense articles" which H. R. 1776 provides for transfer to friendly nations was inserted in the bill by Majority Leader Barkley in order to make America "the larder of democracy" as well as its arsenal.

Foods that are now being rationed are accepted by experts here as an indication of what foods the British may want to obtain in this country on a "lend-lease" basis.

Bacon, ham, butter, butcher's meat, sugar, tea, butter and margarine and cooking fats are being rationed now. The rations for most of these foods have been gradually reduced since the system was instituted, January 8, 1940.

CONSUMPTION of butter, lard and margarine in the United Kingdom under rationing has dropped to 62 per cent of average consumption in 1934-38; consumption of butcher's meat is not down so far, only to 96 per cent; consumption of bacon and ham has been cut in half, as has consumption of sugar. Tea consumption has dropped to 72 per cent of the prewar average.

The two missions coming here to discuss food and shipping will try to work out a joint solution to the problems of a shortage of shipping space and food needs.

THE UNITED STATES, due to heavy farm surpluses, resulting from a declining export trade and from bumper crops, is in a position to supply many of Britain's food needs except, of course, tropical products.

Wheat—284,000,000 bushels under loan and 500,000 bushels owned.

In addition, surpluses in other fields were indicated by the fact that the Government bought in January for distribution by the stamp plan the following foods:

Butter, 2,735,000 pounds; eggs, 3,609,000 dozen; pork, 10,354,000 pounds; lard, 4,738,000 pounds; cereals, 32,521,000 pounds; vegetables, 37,880,000 pounds; fruits, 25,127,000 pounds.

Text of Plea for Aid Funds

The text of President's letter on estimates for British aid, and the budget director's report follow:

March 12, 1941.

My dear Mr. Speaker:

This Nation has felt that it was imperative to the security of America that we encourage the democracies' heroic resistance to aggressions, by not only maintaining but also increasing the flow of material assistance from this country. Therefore, the Congress has enacted and I have signed H. R. 1776.

Through this legislation, our country has determined to do its full part in creating an adequate arsenal of democracy. This great arsenal will be here in this country. It will be a bulwark of our own defense. It will be the source of the tools of defense for all democracies who are fighting to preserve themselves against aggression.

While the defense equipment under H. R. 1776 remains under the control of the United States until it is ready for disposition, it is the fixed policy of this Government to make for democracies every gun, plane and munition of war that we possibly can.

To accomplish these objectives, I am transmitting an estimate in the amount of $7,000,000,000, the details of which are set forth in the accompanying letter from the Director of the Bureau of the Budget. I strongly urge the immediate enactment of this appropriation.

Respectfully,
FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

Honorable Sam Rayburn,
Speaker, House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

March 12, 1941.

Sir:

I have the honor to submit for your consideration an estimate of appropriation to carry out the provisions of the act entitled "An Act to Promote the Defense of the United States," approved March 11, 1941, Public No. 11, in the amount of $7,000,000,000, as follows:

Special Defense Fund

To enable the President, through such departments or agencies of the Government as he may designate, to carry out the provisions of the act entitled "An Act to Promote the Defense of the United States," approved March 11, 1941, and for each and every purpose incident to or necessary therefor, there is hereby appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated:

(a) For the procurement, by manufacture or otherwise, of defense articles for the government of any country whose defense the President deems vital to the defense of the United States, including services and expenses in connection therewith, as follows:

|---|---|
| Ordnance and ordnance stores, supplies, spare parts and materials, including armor and ammunition and components thereof | $1,343,000,000 |
| Aircraft and aeronautical material, including engines, spare parts and accessories | 2,054,000,000 |
| Tanks, armored cars, automobiles, trucks and other automotive vehicles, spare parts and accessories | 362,000,000 |
| Vessels, ships, boats and other water craft, and equipage, supplies, materials, spare parts and accessories | 629,000,000 |
| Miscellaneous military equipment, supplies and materials | 260,000,000 |
| Facilities and equipment for the manufacture or production of defense articles, including the construction, acquisition, maintenance and operation thereof, and the acquisition of land | 752,000,000 |
| Agricultural, industrial and other commodities and articles | 1,350,000,000 |
| (b) For testing, inspecting, proving, repairing, outfitting, reconditioning, or otherwise placing in good working order any defense articles for the government of any country whose defense the President deems vital to the defense of the United States | 200,000,000 |

Provided: That not to exceed 20 per centum of any of the foregoing appropriations may be transferred by the President to any other such appropriation, but no appropriation shall be increased more than 30 per centum thereby; and Provided further: That any defense articles procured under the foregoing appropriations may be allocated by the President to any department or agency of this Government for the use of such department or agency.

(c) For necessary services and expenses for carrying out the purposes of said act not specified or included in the foregoing $40,000,000. (d) For administrative expenses $10,000,000.

In all $7,000,000,000, to remain available until June 30, 1943, Provided: That the President may transfer from the foregoing appropriations to appropriate current appropriations of any department or agency amounts equivalent to the value of defense articles disposed of by such department or agency to the Government of any country whose defense the President deems vital to the defense of the United States, not exceeding in total $1,300,000,000.

I recommend that the estimate be transmitted to Congress.

Very respectfully,
HAROLD D. SMITH,
Director of the Bureau of the Budget.

The President,
The White House.

Round-Table Discussion

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE SPELVIN, Americans, were abashed to receive an invitation to take part in one of those radio forums on topics of great national importance, but nevertheless they went. Present also were a lady columnist and a Doktor Kurt Shultz, late of Vienna, an intellectual refugee, who was introduced as one of the great free minds of Europe and the author of "When It Is Nighttime Comes The Night." Mr. and Mrs. Spelvin had never heard of the Doktor or his book, but felt ashamed of their ignorance and pretended to be awed. In fact they were.

The proceedings were as follows:

By the Announcer—And now, ladies and gentlemen, we present our question, "What do you think of the lease-lend bill?" Mrs. Spelvin, will you tell us what you think of this bill?

By Mrs. Spelvin—Well, in some ways, it has always seemed to me if it comes to declaring war, why, then, I always thought the best way to——

Lady Columnist (interrupting)—If I may be permitted to interrupt I should like to remind this lady that this is not a question of declaring war, because if one is to assume that the ideological imponderables are inhibited by a willful, as it were, economic liquidation, why, then, it seems obvious to me that——

Mrs. Spelvin (meekly)—Well, I haven't come to that, but I just wanted to say that war is a terribly serious thing and if you put yourself in my position, why I raised my boy up the best I could and, as a mother, why——

Lady Columnist (rather shrilly)—Lest there be any doubt on that score, I, too, am a mother, and yet, if I may interrupt a moment, I should like to inform this lady that the interplay of schrecklichkeit and democratic dolce far niente, as Mazzini truly told us in the tragic story of the well-fed complaisance that seems to permeate our thinking as mothers to the utter neglect of our moral awareness——

Mr. Spelvin (faintly)—If I may say a word, I think Mrs. Splevin means——

Doktor Schultz—As I zaid in mein book ven iss nighddime gums der nighd iss de zame difference mitould liberdy you god nix, und zo——

Lady Columnist (now quite shrill)—Yes, of course, Doktor, but, if I may interrupt, I should like to direct the discussion back to the question which, after all, it seems to me, after all, concerns not so much a problematical or hypothetical orientation of sheer intellectual innovations disguised though they be in the poisonous plausibilities of Machiavellian sophistry——

Mrs. Splevin (a little sore by now)—Well, if you will only let me speak because, after all, I am only a plain woman and I don't have your wonderful gift of expression but if you put yourself in my position as an ordinary citizen with a son 21 years old and I just think if Congress——

Doktor Schultz—Bud, Madam, iff I may zay zo——

Lady Columnist (in a modulated shriek)—Precisely, Doktor, but if I may be permitted to interrupt, my only purpose in interrupting, and I apologize to this lady, because if anything makes me lose my temper it is interruptions, but here we have two intransigeant and utterly irreconcilable postulations breeding a spirit of defeatist isolationism in an atmosphere of gaseous parliamentary subterfuge whereas——

Mrs. Spelvin (real sore)—Well, even if you break it up into little words I still don't know what you are talking about, because you sound to me like if you ever got your hands in the sink for once—why maybe you think you are pretty hot, but leave me tell you something, Sister, if you interrupt me again when I am trying to talk—I don't care how many long words you use, and you say you are a mother, but how much time do you spend with your kid because I will bet you——

Mrs. Spelvin (fit to be tied)—You shut your dumb Dutch trap——

Lady Columnist (with hauteur)—Madam, if I may interrupt——

Mrs. Spelvin (raving now)—You interrupt once more and I will slap you silly, you flannel-mouthed——

Mr. Spelvin (jubilant)—Atta gal, maw, pour it on 'em, maw! Gong.

Signing The Bill

By Mark Sullivan

Our New Relation To The War

THE FINAL STEP of legislative enactment of the lease-lend bill, passage by the House, came about 2 in the afternoon. Then an hour or so was consumed by routine ritual, ending in signature by the Speaker of the House and by the Vice President as presiding officer of the Senate. About 3 o'clock the bill, sealed in a brown official envelope, was dispatched to the White House. At 10 minutes of 4, President Roosevelt signed it. The United States was committed to whatever chain of consequences the lease-lend bill turns out to entail.

SULLIVAN

That, the signature by the President, was the outwardly dramatic event. That engaged the attention of news photographers. That will be seen in the news-reels, and give thrills to audiences. That will be emphasized by historians; they will call it a landmark in history. And all—historians, news-reels, and thrilled audiences—are correct in their estimate. The President's signing of the lease-lend bill was a momentous event. But it is momentous not by anything inherent in itself. It will become momentous only by what follows it. And what follows began instantly.

From signing the bill, the President turned to two lists on his desk. To these two lists Mr. Roosevelt gave Presidential approval, at 3:55 p. m. It was two lists, not one, and in that fact lay high importance. One was a list of war materials to be sent to Britain, the other materials to be sent to Greece. Had it been a single list, of materials to be sent to Britain only, that would have been a very different matter.

SENDING CERTAIN war materials to Britain, and certain other war materials to Greece, represented an act of judgment by the President of the United States. It was a judgment about the conduct of the war, about the areas to which specific war materials had best be sent for the most effective conduct of military and naval operations.

How these lists were made up, in this first step taken under the lease-lend bill is not material. Quite possibly in this first instance, the President may not have injected his personal judgment into the allocation of materials. Probably the lists may have been made up by our Army and Navy officials, one list in response to a request from Britain, the other in response to a separate request from Greece. Quite possibly the representatives of Britain and of Greece may have agreed upon the allocation. Possibly, in this case, both lists may have been made up by the British.

The important point is that, under the lease-lend bill, the President is given authority and responsibility for transferring war materials to such countries as he chooses to send them to. This authority and responsibility we have put upon the President deliberately. Before and during the debate on the lease-lend bill, there was a school of thought which held it would be best to transfer materials to Britain only, thus leaving upon Britain the whole responsibility for saying what use should be made of the materials. This point of view, after adequate debate, was rejected. Again, during the discussion, it was proposed, by Mr. Willkie and others, that the President should be authorized to transfer war materials to only three specific countries—Britain, Greece and China. This point of view, too, was rejected. Mr. Roosevelt has authority to send war materials to any country he chooses. For giving the President this wide discretion there is an obvious reason. It is easy to imagine that, now or in the early future, a transfer of war materials to Turkey, or of food or money, might be an effective contribution to the war against the Axis.

To the extent that the President has discretion to send materials to one country or another, to that extent the role of the United States in the war becomes somewhat more than that of mere lender or lessor or giver. To that extent the United States, through the President, exercises judgment about the conduct of the war. To that extent—it is hardly possible to avoid this conclusion—the United States becomes a partner in the war against the Axis.

THE RELATION of partnership is likely to grow. The President is likely to be consulted by Britain about problems connected with the war. When Britain makes a request for material, and the President has power to say whether that material had best go to Britain or to some other country, Britain is likely to defer to the President. Britain is in the asker's seat. It is to Britain's interest to defer. The more the judgment of the President is consulted and deferred to, the greater becomes our partnership role. Moreover, when any two countries are brought into relation with each other, as the United States and Britain are brought by the lease-lend bill, the respective roles of the two are determined by their respective weights. As was said recently by the London Economist in a different connection, in any association of Britain and the United States, "an island people of less than 50,000,000 cannot expect to be the senior partner . . . The center of gravity and the ultimate decision must increasingly lie in America."

That the United States, by the lease-lend bill, enters a new relation to the war, is an inevitable consequence of our enacting the bill in the form in which it is. To realize this fact, to look it in the face, to abide by its consequences, is part of the spirit in which the American people ought to face the war, a spirit of cool consciousness of the responsibility we have undertaken.

MANY NATIONALITIES REPRESENTED IN AMERICANIZATION SCHOOL BAND

Americanization School Band Begins 14th Year

Musicians of virtually all nationalities this week are beginning their fourteenth year as members of Washington's unique international band—the Americanization School Association Band.

Known for their concerts at church and social functions, the players are led by Joseph Romeo, a 45-year-old Government worker who came here from Italy 33 years ago.

Since its organization in 1928, the band has grown from 12 members to a talented group of 38. Its high point each year is the annual Americanization School entertainment, usually held in the Webster School, at Tenth and H Streets Northwest.

Members include Guy Vitale, Stanley Petrone, Joseph Riley, Tony DiBartolo, Angelo Trivelli, Frank Segreti, Anthony Vicino, Custodia Saitta, Gay Riccardo, Albert M. Snapp, Joseph Basile, Justin Swain, Albert Dahlgren, Adolph Graeff, Bert Jones and John Lozuppone.

General Field Marshal Gen. Walter von Brauchitsch, chief of the German army, has his headquarters in a special railroad train, which enables him to keep up with the ever changing scene in modern warfare. In wars previous to the present European war, army chiefs rarely changed the location of their headquarters, often remaining in the same place for months at a time. However, mechanized warfare requires a mechanized headquarters for army chieftains.

Thin Girl Must Ease Up, Rest, Eat to Gain

By Ida Jean Kain

YOU THIN girls burn calories extravagantly for a number of reasons. Your quick temperament and misdirected nervous energy cause you to squander too many. You get so excited and so busy that you often forget to eat lunch and only remember that you haven't eaten a good meal all day along about dinner time, when you get an all gone feeling.

Because you are not passionately interested in food it's easy for you to become too preoccupied to eat. You get too big a kick out of rushing around and getting things done. Then, to make gaining harder, you may have a highly active intestinal tract which hurries the food along before it is completely absorbed. You may not get as much "good" out of food as the person who is calm.

You can see why putting weight on your bones is difficult. You not only have to make good this extravagant calorie expenditure, but, somehow or other, you have to sandwich in an extra supply of calories which can be stored as the requisite padding for bones and nerves.

To Get Appetite, Eat

The only way to get an appetite is to eat. It will be easier if you make a point of having all your meals at a definite time and allowing plenty of time for eating. Since you must take more calories than needed each day—one-third more than you need is a very satisfactory number—you should begin with a nourishing breakfast. I know! You'd just as soon skip this meal. But it's a chance out of the day's three meals to gain weight.

If you are serious about putting on curves, start off with fruit juice, a whole grain cereal with a few dates or raisins thrown in, cream and whole milk for the cereal, an egg scrambled in cream, hot buttered toast, honey and coffee. Of course, that's a lot of food—until you get used to it! Allow 15 to 20 minutes for breakfast.

When downtown at noon, pick a quiet spot and have a leisurely lunch. You can usually order an escalloped dish of some kind, a hot roll, a glass of milk, and an easily digested dessert such as custard, fruit or ice cream. Then, afterwards, stroll along and feast you eyes on the shop windows—but don't shop.

Rest If Tired

If you are tired, rest awhile before dinner. Then have your usual meal. You should be able to include enough extra calories at breakfast and lunch to bring about a gain.

Just keep in mind that it is important to take more easily digested foods—cream, butter, whole milk, cereals and bread—and make sure that you get your protective foods. They are necessary to the assimilation of calories. The too rich foods should be avoided. Don't take too much gravy, fried food or pastry. You can't gain on a food you can't assimilate.

If your trouble is a poor appetite, ask your doctor to recommend one of the Vitamin B complex concentrates. This vitamin works wonders for a lagging appetite. And while you're about it, ask your doctor to check you over to make sure you have no infection of any kind. And how long has it been since you went to your dentist? Some mior infection may be dragging you down.

In addition to the improved diet and physical check-over you probably need more rest and sleep, outdoor activity—and a little leisure. Nobody is going to plan these things for you.

Dinner Dresses Are Designed to Flatter Figure

By Jane Driscoll

The Post Fashion Editor

If your evening dress looks like spring 1941 it will be definitely typed. Either intricate Grecian drapery, feminine lace, splashy prints or straight-as-a-column gowns with peplums and tiers, will lend their marks of distinction this season.

Outstanding among these trends are gowns showing drapery. There are fashions to please every fancy. For the woman who likes something spectacular, there are skillfully manipulated gowns with tunic effect swathing the hips. In true Grecian manner there are gowns with the full over-blouse effect in black and white or pastel combinations. Voluptuous draped gowns usually have low or high rounded necklines, and abound in crepes and jerseys.

But for the woman who likes the flattery of suavely simple lines, there is a modest kind of drapery. Skirts, which at first glance seem to have no fullness at all, boast subtle cutting, which reveals slim hips but conceal generous fullness near the hemline. Short sleeves and plain V-neck bodices are bound for a busy season.

The splashy prints are seen in either the rumba or slim sheath type gowns. Lace appears in full bouffant gowns and in full bodices over striped pique or silk faille skirts. Another striking combination is black lit with white, as for example a black pencil slim gown with a lace pique peplum or a black bodice with tiers of sheer white cotton below. And lastly for a bit of feminine frippery, there are simply draped gowns with the up in front and down in back effect of the hemline.

New Chair Cover Is Spring Tonic

THE VERY spirit of spring—are gaily flowered slip covers with new-style deep flounce! You can so inexpensively run one up to fit any style of chair.

The material is chintz, with blue cornflowers and scarlet poppies sprinkled over a creamy ground. The same shade of blue is picked up in the bound seams. But just as charming would be a striped or checked cotton.

Fitting your chair the pin-on way, everything goes along like magic. Just three simple steps and your cover is finished!

1. PIN AND CUT. Remove cushion and smooth fabric down back and over seat, right side out if you use bound seams. Between back and seat allow a 4-inch tuck-in to relieve strain. Then pin along lines of the upholstery and cut 1½ inches outside pins for seams. In the same way pin and cut arms, sides, back and cushion.

2. BASTE AND TRY ON. Take pinned-up cover off chair and baste. Then try on for little adjustments.

3. STITCH AND FINISH. Stitch up seams and cover smartly with binding. At this time, too, you sew on the deep flounce, a gathered strip of fabric which comes almost up to the cushion in front.

Mary Haworth's Mail

For 18 Months, Man Has Wooed Girl's Consent To Be His Wife, Only to Meet With Affectionate Discouragement; Should He Give Up Hope?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 27 years old, single, and a graduate of a New England college. About a year and a half ago, in Boston, where I was working at the time, I met a girl of 22 and began to keep steady company with her. I soon fell in love and asked her to marry me. She declined to marry me, saying she did not love me, although she added that she "liked" me much better than any other fellow she had ever known.

We continued to go out with each other exclusively and to enjoy ourselves thoroughly, even though she well knew I remained in love with her, and I well knew she did not reciprocate. All during this period we indulged in lovemaking, but never to a dangerous or illicit degree. She is a reserved, intelligent and independent sort of person —not openly affectionate, but of a deep emotional nature.

We think and feel alike in practically every respect and have never quarreled or disagreed for more than 10 minutes. Frankly, we get along famously together and she admits that we would probably get along equally as well if we were to marry. However, she admits she is not interested in matrimony at present and says there are many things she wishes to do before settling down to the comparative humdrum routine of marriage. However, her objectives are so manifold that it is doubtful whether she could possibly realize them in the next 15 or 20 years. She indicates there is no other man in her life and that she is not desirous of acquiring a string of suitors.

Shortly before Christmas of last year I obtained a permanent, well-paying position in the Government and left Boston. We have since maintained correspondence, she writing about every two weeks and I every week. I have also sent her flowers and candy and called her by telephone occasionally, because I felt the impulse to do so.

A short time ago, I paid her a brief visit. It was as though I had never been away. She was her usual charming self and did everything possible to make my stay pleasant. I did not broach the subject of marriage, aside from telling her m feeling for her is unchanged and that I would marry her tomorrow if she would say yes. While no paragon, she does represent to me just about all the qualities desirable in a wife and I am very much in love with her.

I realize that "faint heart ne'er won fair lady," but it seems that the essential element of propinquinty is lacking in my case and I am at a distinct handicap in trying to win the girl's heart at such a distance. Perhaps I am playing the game wrongly and should assume an indifferent, hard-to-get attitude, despite the fact that I dislike concealing my love for her. I should like your candid opinion as to what I should do. Shall I maintain the suit, in the hope that she may some day change her mind? Or shall I conclude that she never will love me and forget about her? The latter would be dashed hard to do, but I shall rely on your advice 100 per cent. Sincerely, E. F. R.

Best Bow to Girl's Implied Preference

DEAR E. F. R.: It is entirely possible for a girl to be (as girls say) "deeply fond" of a man, while well knowing that she isn't, and never will be, the least in love with hi-. When such is the degree of her affection for him, her natural inclination is to be most agreeable in her dealings with him, for the reason that he lacks the power to disturb her poise or peace of mind.

I imagine this is approximately the nature and extent of your girl's feeling for you. She values your friendship, enjoys your attentions, is flattered and heartwarmed by your declarations of love—but the idea of marrying you leaves her (as the phrase goes) cold. Her leisurely and methodical manner of answering your correspondence suggests that life, for her, goes along just about as satisfactorily in your absence as in your company.

So I daresay you will be saving yourself a lot of waste motion and futile dreaming if you relinquish the idea of capturing her heart by a technique of persistent address. Some early English poet has told of Love's strange ways; of how it can resist the stormiest as well as the subtlest court of many contenders, to be won at last with a glance and a sigh by the Favored Comer.

In continuing to write this girl regularly, telephone her occasionally, send her flowers and candy, and otherwise occupy yourself with unprofitable efforts to make a dent in her heart, you are merely running up an increasing investment-of-self that becomes progressively more difficult to recall. Having done everything within reason to kindle her imagination and enlist her sympathies, only to meet with blandly consistent discouragement, it seems to me high time you bowed yourself regretfully out of the picture—as a gesture of self protection and self respect, as well as of deference to her essential (or implied) preference.

In so doing, you will be lifting yourself above the shyster level of pretending indifference; of playing "hard-to-get;" and yet, at the same time, will be invoking the possible benefits of such "come-on" maneuvers—supposing those particular stratagems might prove effective in melting her reserve, intensifying her feeling and teaching her, at long last, to appreciate and want and "reciprocate" your love. M. H.

Flap the Hands And Use Cream, Actress Advises

Hollywood, Calif.—Most feminine hands are busy these days, whether at the typewriter, doing housework, painting water colors, playing bridge or making gestures before a movie camera. So naturally, with attention centered on the hands, they should be perfectly groomed.

Actresses, however, say the gracefulness of hand movements is just as important in their work as the perfect manicure. In fact, Geraldine Fitzgerald was so concerned over the movements of her hands in "Shining Victory," in which she portrays a scientist with an aptitude for sketching, that she constantly practiced a number of hand exercises. They proved so beneficial and beautifying that she is continuing them as part of her daily beauty routine.

Her regimen includes flapping the hands loosely from the wrists, clenching the fists, then letting the fingers fly open, "putting on gloves" with nourishing cream, using the fingers of one hand to pull back the fingers of the other, and playing "fly away Jack" on her dressing table with all ten fingers. If you will follow these same exercises faithfully your fingers will become more slender and taper gracefully to the tips, and prominent knuckles will vanish.

Added to these beneficial exercises is Ida Lupino's own trick for strengthening her nails. According to Ida, nails can be strengthened by painting the inside of the tips as well as the outside of the nails.

White Mink Aim Of Woman Breeder

New York, (AP).—Lots of women have lain awake nights thinking of mink and chinchilla coats—and Gabriella LeDorf is no exception.

But Miss LeDorf doesn't worry about getting them to wear. What she thinks about is breeding and raising the animals whose pelts so many women long to own.

She is 24, pretty and dark, and works at the American Fur Farms at Goshen, N. Y., where she owns 250 of the herd of 4,000 minks and cares for 20 chinchillas.

She had two male chinchillas in the Sportsman's Show.

"We're breeding for white mink," she told a reporter. "We crossed a freak white mink with an albino, then with a natural brown mink—and then crossed those two strains. Now we have minks with white feet, necks and bellies and each strain gets a little whiter. In another year or two we hope to have pure white ones—and in three or four years after that enough to make a coat.

'Turkish Delight' Describes Luncheon Given by Mme. Ertegun at Embassy

By Hope Ridings Miller.

I USED TO THINK "Turkish delight" was a jellylike confection dusted with sugar.

Now I know it is luncheon at the Turkish Embassy. That conclusion was one I arrived at yesterday between the second and third course at a luncheon-for-24 given by Mme. Ertegun, wife of the Turkish Ambassador.

Half an hour later I was thinking that "Turkish delight" might well describe a bit of over-the-coffee talk with an attractive Turkish newspaperwoman, Mlle. Ismet Sanli, who is in this country for the duration and has a variety of stimulating ideas about America and Americans.

The party, small enough to be intimate and large enough to be interesting, was in honor of Helen Essary, president of the Women's National Press Club; and as would be expected, there were several newspaperwomen in the gathering. There were also a number of guests from the official contingent.

"What a relief—to see a Vice President's wife at parties once more," said someone as she spotted pretty Mrs. Henry A. Wallace in the company. "After eight years of never seeing a Second Lady anywhere, the change is quite a welcome one."

Mrs. William O. Douglas, wearing a dark-blue ensemble, set off with a perky be-flowered hat, was among those present . . . telling everybody around her about the Washington ballet which she is helping to promote. Mrs. Henry Morgenthau was there; as were Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg and Mme. Emmanuel Lombard.

Mrs. Emil Hurja, trimly turned out in a burgundy ensemble trimmed in sable, chatted with Mrs. Donald Richberg over the after-luncheon coffee; while nearby Mrs. George Allen, wearing a smart beige frock with brown accessories, was deep in conversation with Mrs. Irene Caldwell.

As if by special arrangement, both the hostess and her guest of honor appeared in purple frocks—Mme. Ertegun's being jersey, softly draped on classic lines, while Mrs. Essary's was of crepe in a slightly darker shade to blend with her natty purple sailor, trimmed in pink and purple blossoms.

Mlle. Ismet Sanli Center of Attention

Mlle. Sanli, who attended college in this country and speaks perfect English, had a cluster of guests around her both before and after luncheon. Small and attractive, she was smartly turned out in a black frock accented with a necklace of gold discs.

"You American women think you are emancipated," she said with a twinkle in her dark eyes, "but you haven't half as much freedom as women in my country."

The typical Turkish woman, it seems, kept wearing her veil long after the custom was no longer dictated by law. Almost a decade ago, however, she began to emerge from her cloistered existence, and soon afterward the veil, as well as other restrictions formerly imposed on her, were swept away in a whirlwind of progress that brought her complete emancipation.

In America, however, Mlle. Sanli has found that women are still subjected to a number of man-made restrictions. She mentioned as a case in point the fact that she had tried to arrange to take a Ph. D. from Harvard and had learned it would have to be granted by Radcliffe, the woman's branch of the college. And when she came to Washington with a letter to the National Press Club, she discovered on short order that it was an organization for men only, while women had a club of their own.

'Our Women Are Completely Free'

"In Turkey," she said, "there would be no such division between men and women in the same profession. But, of course, our women are completely emancipated—as I said before." And that was that.

Mlle. Sanli, incidentally, is now making her home in Wilmington, but she comes to Washington frequently to gather news to dispatch back to the Turkish newspaper with which she is connected.

Luncheon was served at a long table, decorated with three low bowls of anemone in shades of dark red and purple. The menu was something to write home about, as is always the case at luncheons or dinners at the Tukish Embassy.

Among the guests, in addition to those already mentioned, were Mrs. John O. Herrick, Miss Mary Hornaday, Mrs. Marcellus Hughes, Mrs. Bulkley Griffin, Miss Jessie Ash Arndt, Mrs. Ann Wheaton, Miss Dudley Harmon, Miss Ruth Van Deman, Miss Ruth Cowan, Miss Betty Hynes and Mrs. Edgar Turlington.

MISS ADELAIDE CHATFIELD-TAYLOR

Family Visiting in New York
Choosing Trosseau for Impending Nuptials; Event to Take Place This Month

The Undersecretary of Commerce and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor announce the engagement of their elder daughter, Adelaide, to John Marshall Kernochan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Kernochan, of New York.

As Miss Rose Chatfield-Taylor, younger sister of the future bride, is to be married in June to Frederick MacMurray, friends of the sisters thought they might make it a double wedding. But Miss Adelaide Chatfield-Taylor will be married this month, and she and her mother are now in New York assembling her trousseau.

The Chatfield-Taylors came here from Chicago in 1933, when Mr. Taylor was named executive assistant to the administrator of the AAA. Later he served as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. Last winter he was sent to Europe on a fact-finding mission for the Red Cross, and shortly after his return was named to his present post.

Miss Adelaide Chatfield-Taylor was presented to society here in June, 1938, at a large garden party given by her parents at the house on Observatory Place which they then occupied. She also bowed in Lake Forest, Ill., where her family has a large and beautiful home. Both Mr. and Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor come from families prominently identified with Chicago society, and have been equally active in Washington since their arrival.

The older daughter attends Bennington College, in Vermont. She expects to remain in New York until sometime next week. Miss Rose Chatfield-Taylor came back to Washington last night and Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor is expected today.

Mr. Kernochan, who attended St. Marks, has visited in Washington frequently. Complete plans for the wedding are expected to be announced in the next few days.

Of wide interest to Washington is the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Sloan Colt, of New York and Tuxedo Park, of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Catherine Sloan Colt, to David W. Yandell, son of Mrs. Lunsford P. Yandell, of Greenwich, Conn., and the late Mr. Yandell.

Miss Colt was presented to society here at a brilliant ball at the Sulgrave Club, given by her uncle, George Grant Mason, jr., of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, and the then Mrs. Mason, who is now Mrs. John Hamilton. Miss Colt, whose father is president of the Bankers Trust Co., was graduated from the Shipley School and made her debut in 1938 at the Tuxedo autumn ball. She has been studying interior decorating at the New York School of Applied Design for Women and has been driving for the Red Cross Motor Corps. She is a member of the Colony Club.

Mr. Yandell prepared at Choate and was graduated from Yale in '33 and from Yale Law School in '37. He is a brother of Mrs. John W. Hanes, Mrs. James W. Henning, Mrs. John A. Clark and Lunsford P. Yandell.

Girl Scouts Observe Birthday

Mrs. McNutt Cuts Cake at Party Opening Celebration Of 29th Anniversary

By Jesse Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor

Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, wife of the Federal Security Administrator, was guest of honor yesterday and cut the birthday cake at a tea given at the National Girls Scout Little House, 1750 New York Avenue, leading off the Nation-wide observance of the twenty-ninth anniversary of girl scouting in the United States.

Mrs. Nelson Johnson, wife of the U. S. Minister to Australia, presided at the tea table. Mrs. McNutt has long been interested in work with girls both in her home State of Indiana and in the Philippines when her husband was High Commissioner there. Mrs. Johnson organized Girl Scouts in China and directed the Girl Scout Camp there when there was no one else to do it.

The reception committee for yesterday's observance included Mrs. Henry H. Flather, chairman of the National Little House Committee; Mrs. C. Leslie Glenn, national vice president of the Girl Scouts; Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, former national president of Girl Scouts, who has just returned from Florida; Mrs. H. C. Kramer, commissioner of the Girl Scouts of the District; Mrs. L. C. Rosenkrans, commissioner of the Girl Scouts of Prince Georges County; Mrs. Donald Richberg, Mrs. W. M. Kiplinger, Mrs. F. W. Milliken, deputy commissioners of the District Girl Scouts. Among those present were Mrs. Gerrit S. Miller, jr., and her guest, Mrs. William Wheeler, of Cape Cod.

Girl Scout Songs

The girls who took part in the singing of Girl Scout songs under their instructor, Mrs. Alfred J. Owens, also a troop committee member of Prince Georges County, were Claanna Fogle, Dorothy Stearns, Patsy Owens, Cora Jean Whitehead and Harriet Biddle, from Troop 19; Marion Klein, Dolores Kidwell, Lorianne Wells, Troop 14; Jean Bird, Augusta Johnson, Nancy Downes, Dorothy Carter, Troop 3. Mrs. Donald H. Wells, of Cheverly, Md., leader of Troop 14, and Mrs. Henry H. O'Neil, of Decatur Heights, Md., of Troop 3, accompanied the girls to the Little House.

The Brownies, Priscilla Staples, Sally Hammet, Polly Bresnahan, Harriet Morrison and Emily Morrison, from Troop 143, were accompanied by the assistant leader, Mrs. Harold Morrison. The Mariners, who assisted in serving tea, were Emilie Martinsky, Honore Mattare, Nancy Wakeman, Helen Kline and Dorothy Webster. Mrs. William T. Cameron accompanied them.

The tea was followed last night by a dinner of the City-Wide Leaders Association, held at Pierce Hall, with more than 100 attending. Miss Helen Seth-Smith, of Potomac School, who was a leader of the Girl Guides in England before coming to this country several years ago, was guest speaker. She told of the Girl Guides' work today in the war.

Mrs. Kramer outlined plans for definite training to be carried on in local troops in connection with the defense program. The girls will be taught resourcefulness in the out-of-doors, how to meet an emergency from the angle of health and safety, and first aid.

There was also a talk on the founder of Girl Scouts of America, Juliette Lowe.

Women Pledge Cooperation

Underwood & Underwood

Among representatives of Roman Catholic women's organizations meeting here yesterday to map cooperation in the National Catholic Community Service program were (left to right) Miss Dorothy Willmann, St. Louis, representing the Sodality of Our Lady; Mrs. George H. # Catholic Women Pledge Support To National Community Service

Cooperation of their combined memberships, totalling some 5,000,000 women, was pledged by representatives of leading national Roman Catholic women's organizations yesterday to the work of the National Catholic Community Service.

This service was established last November at a meeting of the Archbishop and Bishops of the Roman Catholic Church, held in Washington, and will coordinate social, educational, recreational and welfare programs and activities carried on by the church in behalf of men and women now serving in the armed forces and various phases of the national defense program.

The women leaders met at the headquarters of the National Catholic Welfare conference at the invitation of Mrs. J. W. McCollum, president of the national council of Catholic women.

As an indication of their approval of the proposed program of the N. C. C. S., as outlined by several speakers, the delegates approved the following resolution:

"Evidencing our unity in response to the call for service, representing 5,000,000 Catholic women, we pledge for God and country our most fruitful and intelligent resources. Together we shall go forward from this day, conscious that the strength of our Nation lies not alone in armaments, but in the maintenance of the Christian home, the spiritual and material health of the community, and the integrity of our democratic ideas and institutions. Our work, then, likewise lies not only in cantonments, in leave areas and in industrial centers, but in each home and community."

Speakers at the conference included the Most Rev. Edward Mooney, Archbishop of Detroit; the Right Rev. Msgr. Michael J. Ready, general secretary, National Catholic Welfare Conference; the Rev. Howard J. Carroll, assistant general secretary, National Catholic Welfare Conference; the Rev. Lucian Lauerman, director, National Catholic School of Social Service; Miss Anne Sarachon Hooley and Donald T. Sheehan, director, bureau of information, National Catholic Welfare Conference.

Bingman, Supreme Auxiliary, Knights of St. John, Washington; Mrs. Fred Altemus, Christ Child Society, Washington; Mrs. Mayme G. Carey, Diocesan Council of Catholic Women, Wheeling, W. Va.; Mrs. George H. Bradford, International Federation of Catholic Alumnae, New York; Mrs. Helen H. Doyle, Catholic Ladies of Columbia, Springfield, Ohio;; Mrs. Mary C. Duffy, Catholic Daughters of America, South Orange, N. J.

McNutt Speaks on Far East

Continued American union with the Philippines—military, economic and political—is essential both to the United States and the islands "until such time as the Filipinos are capable of manning their own inner defenses alone," Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, former High Commissioner of the Philippines, declared yesterday.

Speaking at the second in the series of lectures on the Far East at the Shoreham Hotel, sponsored by women's groups, he declared that "shorn of the Philippines and Guam, American sea power ebbs. To the United States, 6,000 miles wou'd mean the difference between a navy capable of fulfilling all of its assigned functions and one limited to coast defense work," he said.

Explaining that it would leave a barrier reef from Kamchatka to Borneo that, in foreign hands, would block our trade and intercourse with China and the Dutch East Indies, he asserted that "withdrawal from the Philippines would very definitely, once and for all time, resolve our claims of freedom of the seas and freedom of the air—resolve them unfavorably to us, to our children, and to our children's children."

The former High Commissioner, whose subject was "Our Outpost in the Pacific in Relation to American Defense," called attention to the steps this country was taking in augmenting its fleet train in Philippine waters. "Other signs are multiplying," he said, "that the United States means business in defending its interests in the Orient—all of this in the face of repeated warnings from our neighbor, Japan."

"Despite Nippon's threat," he said, "the United States does not believe that it will be necessary to fight Japan. This optimism is based on the success of China's struggle for survival. For America, the Sino-Japanese war now assumes the character of a preliminary action on the outer defense line of the Philippines, and hence becomes inseparable from our hope for peace. Therefore, all economic help given to China now means the inherent strengthening of our own outer defenses."

Madame Chairman

By Suzanne

The Sweet Briar Alumnae met at the home of Mrs. Margaret Nohowel, 2214 Wyoming Avenue, last night and were addressed informally by President Meta Glass on the affairs of the college, bringing the alumnae up to date on developments in curriculum, faculty personnel and faculty research, the library equipment, the plant, and the financial support of the institution.

President Glass sketched the development of the departments of history, government, economics and sociology, of art, of music, of psychology and philosophy. To the new Carter Glass Chair of Government there has just been appointed Dr. Egbert Wengert of Wisconsin, she said, and a new course in studies in the present crisis is being given this semester by six faculty members. The work in music is calling urgently for more space, since teaching is now carried on in every available space until a proper building for music instruction can be built.

The college is 35 years old, and has developed into a national asset in these years, but still is only about two-thirds built, according to the plans originally made for a liberal arts college of 500 students, she said. Therefore the board and the alumnae council decided at the January meetings to call off the alumnae and friends of the college for $500,000 to augment the endowment and to afford one of the greatly needed buildings.

BUSINESS and professional women of the Y. W. C. A. last night joined in the annual "Nation-Wide Observance" in which Y. W. groups all over the country participated, sending greetings to each other and carrying out programs on the same theme.

This year's program topic was "Vitalizing Democracy." The local girls presented skits, illustrating ways in which business and professional women can work to this end, and Mrs. Hugh McClay presided at the dinner.

Senate Unit Set for Inquiry Into Defense

By John B. Oakes

A far-reaching inquiry into the national defense program—characterized as "neither a smear nor a whitewash"— was indicated yesterday as the special Senate investigating committee held its first organization meeting.

The "first duty" of the committee, said its chairman, Senator Truman (Democrat), of Missouri, "would be to give to Congress and the public a clear picture of the present state of the program: how much money has been authorized, how much appropriated, what the total amount of contracts is and how distributed."

He asserted that "at present there is no place where such information can be found in a well-organized form."

It is understood that the committee's projected investigation will embrace such diverse aspects of the defense program as lobbying, favoritism in the award of contracts; delays, reasons why costs have in some cases vastly exceeded estimates, and geographical spread of defense production.

The relative concentration of defense contracts in New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania and California has aroused considerable criticism by members of Congress, who feel the fabricating plants throughout the Nation should be given a share in the program.

At its meeting yesterday the committee authorized Senator Truman to employ a counsel—who will probably come from the Justice or one of the other Government departments—and two investigators. The Senate has granted the committee $15,000 to pursue the inquiry.

"The intention of the National Defense Investigating Committee is to study all phases of our defense preparations. This we feel would perform a greatly needed service," said Senator Truman.

"If the defense program were going badly," he declared, "the committee could do much to correct and aid it. If it were going well, the knowledge thus brought out would be of great reassurance to the public."

Members of the committee, in addition to Senator Truman, are Senators Connally, of Texas; Hayden, of Arizona; Mead, of New York, and Wallgren, of Washington, Democrats, and Brewster, of Maine, and Ball, of Minnesota, Republicans.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Klutz

U. S. Plans Rigid Control Of Immigrants

Wartime control over foreigners entering this country is about to be set up by the State Department, The Post learned last night. The plan is to expand the Visa Division of the State Department to supervise and control the entry of all aliens into the United States as a national defense measure. American consuls, under the plan, would no longer have authority to issue visas. They could only recommend to the Visa Division here that certain visas be issued. The division would have full authority either to approve or refuse requests.

Applications for visas would be checked and double-checked under the plan which is being considered as a measure to keep unfriendly foreign agents from our shores. The Visa Division would make its own investigation of applicants and the Justice Department would double-check the State Department. It is estimated that more than 200 employes will be added to the Visa Division in order to handle the additional work. The plan isn't expected to become effective for several weeks.

The two main witnesses yesterday before the House Civil Service Committee admitted frankly that a sore spot in the Federal service is lack of initiative among employes. Neither witness, NFFE President Luther Steward and AFGE's legislative representative, Charles Stengle, blamed the condition on employes, but on the present system, which gives them little chance for advancement. Both employe union chiefs urged the committee to approve the Budget Bureau plan for automatic promotions without change.

"For the first time in history," commented Stengle, "the Budget Bureau, the Civil Service Commission, and the heads of employe organizations agree on a single bill to help Federal employes."

Budget Plan Praised

Stengel went on to say that the budget plan was a "veritable Magna Carta for Federal employes which would breathe new life into the Government service." He paid high tribute to Budget Director Harold Smith for working it up.

Briefly, the plan would give satisfactory employes making less than $3,200 a one-step increase every 18 months, and a single step-up every 30 months to those making more than $3,200 annually. Steward suggested that the committee give low-paid employes annual step-ups. Employes whose efficiency ratings are excellent now have to wait years before they are given pay rises. The budget plan would make pay rises mandatory if an employe's efficiency rating were good, or better.

Steward was quizzed at length about which departments lagged behind at giving low-paid employes salary boosts. He cited as "horrible examples" the War Department and HOLC. But he hastened to add that recently the War Department had made "very substantial advances" and now it had a qualified personnel officer with a full staff. HOLC, he explained, was guilty of poor personnel practices in its early days.

The death of Representative Schwert cost postal employes a real friend. Schwert was following in the footsteps of Senator Mead, sponsor of many postal laws, whom he succeeded in the House . . . The budget promotion plan will cover departmental Postoffice employes and custodial workers under the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General. All other postal employes are already covered by an automatic promotion plan that costs more annually than is estimated for the budget plan.

GPO'S "Printer's Players" will present "Rollo's Wild Oat" Friday night in Harding Hall in the GPO Building. The cast includes Opal Davis, Oliver VanHorn, Robert Anderson, Rae Rockins, Jerome Gallon, Dellie Hamler, Peter deRosselli, Frank Portillo, Gladys Schmit, Bessie Waugh, Thomas Wingrove, and Sam Zuckerman . . . The proposed executive order to place the Ramspeck bill in effect is stymied at the Justice Department . . . The inquiry into CAA by the House Appropriations Committee has finally ended.

Gives Up Teaching for Speaking

Lansing, Mich., March 12 (INS).—Former Gov. Luren D. Dickinson, who rarely has missed a Sunday school session for the last 55 years, said today he plans to quit teaching Sunday school because "I can't keep up my speaking dates and teach Sunday school, too."

A Lesson in Raw Politics

Indianapolis, March 12 (AP).—That old political gag, "They'd even steal the roof off the statehouse," proved true today.

Police discovered two boys were pilfering copper strips used to reroof the capitol. The boys said a high wind blew off some of the strips. They sold them for such a good price that they tore off more strips.

From Gluck To Mahler—A Pleasant Trip

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Hans Kindler conducts the National Symphony Orchestra on Wednesday night in Constitution Hall. Soloists: Suzanne Sten, alto; Hardasty Johnson, tenor. Program: Overture to "Iphigenia in Aulis" (Gluck), Suite (Gluck-Mottl), "The Song of the Earth" (Mahler).

Last evening's concert by the National Symphony Orchestra was distinguished by the first local performance of Gustav Mahler's musical will and testament, "The Song of the Earth," with Suzanne Sten and Hardasty Johnson as the vocalists. While preparing for this event, Hans Kindler must have pondered long over the selection of other compositions with which to fill out the program to the usual length. His choice was wise and discriminating, for the novelty was approached along an avenue flanked by the severely Grecian facades of Gluck's music, inducing a serene and receptive frame of mind. Through the moderation and restraint of a great classical composer the listener was led toward the impassioned frankness of the last of the great romantics.

That the auditors appreciated this arrangement was evident from their intentness upon the excellently played overture to "Iphigenia in Aulis" and Felix Mottl's familiar suite of excerpts from four of Gluck's operas. The suite was so heartily applauded that Dr. Kindler recognized the signs of a request, and rewarded the applause with a repetition of the musette.

Wherever BROWN commentators got the idea that "The Song of the Earth" is a cry of despair and a proclamation of pessimism remains a mystery. This remarkable work breathes a poignant sadness, it is true, yet its spiritual motivation is not hopelessness but the gentle grief with which the composer regarded the transitory beauty of earthly life. It is an expression of a common human experience when one contemplates the inexorable movement of time.

Mahler's complex character was in its major aspects a blend of egotism and naive simplicity; the former led to his attempts at grandiose effects and massive structures, and the latter to his preoccupation with folklike themes. He was an unfulfilled genius who could never reconcile himself with the vicissitudes of his career. Instinctively religious, he could find no creed that satisfied him, and he became a mystic without a clearly formulated philosophy. Bruno Walter tells us that among his favorite books were Lotze's "Microcosmos," Fechner's "The Soul Life of Plants" and Hartmann's "Philosophy of the Unconscious." This literary taste explains much of the vagueness that we hear in his music.

"The Song of the Earth" has some of this random thinking, but it also has passages of appealing beauty, and its total effect is that of a nostalgic yearning for the peace that seems unattainable by mundane beings. Mahler was at heart a romanticist who yearned to attain a greater perfection of the traditional symphonic form, but his inspiration could not fill that greater form of which he dreamed.

Louise Winfield and Seven Others to Get Citizenship Awards

Brown-haired Louise Gardner Winfield, 17-year-old Roosevelt High School senior, put the golden rule to good use last night and became the District's "good citizenship pilgrim" of 1941.

Competing against seven other fourth-year high school students, she was chosen to represent Washington at the Daughters of the American Revolution's continental congress here April 11-15 after she told the District Chapter's judges:

"I feel that I have a social obligation to other people which I should fulfill; I would like to do something in return for the education I have received."

So, she said, she plans to teach public school music when she finishes college, and the judges agreed that was a fine example of good citizenship as well as a sensible application of the golden rule.

Soft spoken and full of poise, Miss Winfield said her idea of the best way to be a good citizen was "by doing every little task to the best of your ability." As a result, she said, "you will have a chance to serve in a larger capacity."

She said there was a difference between being a good citizen in the United States and in some foreign countries: "Here we can follow our conscience and ideals. We don't just obey the state."

Daughter of Hurlbut G. Winfield, of 4609 Fifth Street Northwest, real estate title company examiner, the young lady is an honor student at Roosevelt, where she also serves as president of the Student Council, president of the French Club, vice president of the Glee Club and member of the Girls' Auxiliary, which sponsors dances and other social activities. She's a member of the National Honor Society.

Runners-up in last night's competition were Betty Bruffey, 17, of 820 K Street Southeast, representing Anacostia High School, second place; Miriam Krout, 16, of 6817 Fifth Street Northwest, Calvin Coolidge High School, third, and Margaret Eleanor Douthat, 17, 441 Twelfth Street Northeast, Eastern High School, fourth.

Others competing for the honor were Ruth Votaw, 16, 212 O Street Southwest, representing Central High School; Laura Mae McDaniel, 18, 1715 Jackson Street Northeast, McKinley High School; Corinne Saposs, 16, 1928 Belmont Road Northwest, Western High School, and Jane Stine, 16, 6345 Western Avenue, Woodrow Wilson High School.

Each of the eight girls was selected by the faculty of her school from a slate of three nominees submitted by senior classmates. They were judged on qualities of dependability, service, leadership and patriotism.

All eight will be awarded good citizenship certificates and pins at the D. A. R. State conference here next Tuesday at Constitution Hall.

Miss Winfield and other pilgrims from each of the States will receive citizenship awards at the opening of the continental congress of the D. A. R. Her selection marks the second successive year that Roosevelt High School's representative has won the honor.

Doctor Himself Is a Medicine, Society Told

A doctor who is not a pill can be more effective than any pill in curing diseases, a New York psychiatrist told the District Medical Society last night.

Dr. Ira S. Wile, of New York's Mount Sinai Hospital, warned the Capital's physicians to learn that "the doctor is himself a medicine," and a conference with a physician wise in the ways of men may be better treatment for most ills than a teaspoonful of bitter stuff three times a day.

"The doctor," Dr. Wile declared, "has become too conscious of instruments and drugs. Over-education has lessened his sense of self-value.

Mental Elements Involved

"There are mental elements involved in such ailments as gastric ulcers, asthma, heart trouble, sypilis and tuberculosis that are no less important than those in frank psychoses, neuroses and psychopathic personalities.

"The physician can be a curative agent of great value if he is well integrated mentally and wholesome physically. He must apply rational psychology to the problems of the ill."

Medicine men in primitive societies and the family doctor of 100 years ago were more conscious of their own medical potency, he explained, because they had few drugs to rely upon.

"This explains the value," he said, "of treating malaria with 'Abracadabra,' or hydrophobia with the mystic incantation of 'Max, Pax et Adimax.' The mind of the psysician acts upon the body of the patient through the patient's mind.

Mental Healing an Actuality

"We see then that Christian Science, for example, has a far greater scientific justification than is generally granted. Mental healing is a definite actuality."

Dr. Wile, who is associate editor of the American Journal of Orthopsychiatry, explained that the physician must use mental manipulation, persuasion, suggestion, analysis and hypnotism to rid patients of susceptibility to panic, tendencies to fear, insecurity, lack of self confidence, or such phobias as fear of death.

Researchers have discovered, he said, that 75 per cent of the clientele of physicians in their first ten years of general practice require psychiatric and personality treatment.

"Out of every 25 individuals reaching adulthood," he said, "one is a chronic mental case requiring institutional care, four are severely neurotic and eight possess milder neurotic disturbances."

Snow in Moderation Predicted for D. C. Tonight

For a city still patched with grimy remains of Friday's record snowfall, the Weather Bureau last night predicted the "likelihood" of more snow tonight.

But the snow, if it comes, will be light, the bureau said.

Fire Report Urges More Safety Aids

Revised Building Code, Improved Water System Are Among Suggestions

Expansion of the city's water distribution system, increase in the fire-fighting facilities and structural improvements to reduce downtown fire hazards are recommended in a special report of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, made public by the District Commissioners yesterday.

The report cited the possibility of several downtown buildings being involved in one fire, as well as instances of lack of adequate sprinkler systems, firewalls, parapets and protection of building openings.

Materials Critized

The low fire-resistant quality of structural material used in some of the construction in the downtown area also was criticized in the report.

Purpose of the study, requested by the Commissioners, is to improve the rating of the District's fire-fighting system, already considered one of the best in the Nation.

Urgently needed, according to the report, are a 20,000,000-gallon reservoir at the McMillan filter plant (this item is included in the 1942 budget estimates), and additional filter capacity in the Anacostia area. This latter item, according to Engineer Commissioner David McCoach, jr., has already been brought to the attention of the Commissioners.

Building Code Revision

The underwriters urged that the proposed building code be revised to conform to "modern requirements" for construction as given in the building code of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, especially as to requirements for protection to exposed window openings, limitation of areas and thickness of walls.

Other recommendations follow:

Additional mains for the water system; additional water hydrants in sections of the city not properly protected; members of fire department be retired from active fire service at the age of 62, unless unusually efficient; an additional engine company in the Fort Totten Park area; inauguration of an officers school for special training in industrial hazards and modern fire fighting practice; additional fire boxes; more adequate inspection of electrical wiring; compulsory requirement for automatic sprinklers in all buildings which might act as conflagration breeders and general improvements at the Dalecarlia and McMillan plants.

Rhode Island Citizens Favor Police Ambulances

The Rhode Island Avenue Citizens Association last night voiced its support of Police Chief Ernest W. Brown's proposal to establish a police ambulance service.

The resolution asked that the greater Woodridge territory be given "due consideration in the distribution of ambulances."

The association, meeting at the Sherwood Presbyterian Church Sunday school Building, Twenty-second and Jackson Streets Northeast, also heard a talk on Pan-Americanism by Miss Irene A. Wright, of the State Department's division of cultural relations; opposed the establishment of the proposed Municipal Assembly as a duplication of effort, and contributed $15 to the Metropolitan Police Boys Club.

North Randle Citizens Elect Harry Glemser

Harry W. F. Glemser was elected vice president of the North Randle Community Citizens Association at a meeting last night at the portable school, Minensota Avenue and Ely Street Southeast. He succeeds R. E. Copland, who has moved from Washington.

The association requested better snow removal service on several streets in the Southeast; additional street cars on Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast during rush hours; appropriations for additional equipment for the Anacostia Junior High School, and a public library branch in Anacostia.

U. S. Workers Plan Huge Clubhouse

Plans for the construction of a $10,000,000 superclubhouse for all Government employes in the District—with a recreation hall, dance floor, clubrooms, housing facilities and swimming pool—are under consideration by the Federal Employes Council, it was learned last night.

The structure would fill a need for a "Government workers' mecca," according to President Archie Edwards of the council. It would contain rooms for those wishing to live at the club, a comfortable meeting room, restaurants, gymnasiums, halls for shows and dances and possibly a night club and commercial stores, as listed in tentative plans.

Financing of the venture would be done partly through contributions from Federal employes belonging to departmental recreational groups under the council and largely through a loan floated by a council-organized corporation. Council members pointed out that the loan could be obtained either through a Federal agency such as the RFC or private insurance or banking firms.

Further details of the plan will be worked out at a council meeting to be held March 25 in the headquarters, 817 Earle Building.

A similar scheme which has been "amazingly successful" was worked out by employes of the General Motors Corporation in Detroit, one council officer said. In this case, a loan was obtained from the company. He pointed out the Federal Government has a much larger list of employes and it is possible that the Government will be willing to finance the Federal employes' project.

Rudger Clawson, president of the Council of the Twelve Apostles, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, was honored by more than 200 friends last night on his eighty-fourth birthday anniversary with a reception and organ recital held at the church chapel, 2810 Sixteenth Street Northwest.

A resident of Salt Lake City, Mr. Clawson came to Washington to conduct the quarterly conference of the Washington Stake of the church. He is the guest of his daughter,, son-in-law and Mr. and Mrs. Roy H. Hoopes, of 3114 Forty-fourth Street Northwest. Mr. and Mrs. Hoopes received with him last night.

D. Sterling Wheelwright, chapel director and organist of the church, presented the recital. Guests were received by Mr. Clawson before the portrait of his wife, the late Lydia Spencer Clawson, which was brought to Washington for the reception.

Among the guests were President and Mrs. Ezra T. Benson, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel R. Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wilkinson and Bishop and Mrs. Edgar B. Brossard, of the Washington ward; Senator and Mrs. Elbert D. Thomas, of Utah; Senator and Mrs. Abe Murdock, of Utah; former Senator and Mrs. William H. King, of Utah; Representative and Mrs. J. W. Robinson, of Utah; Representative and Mrs. Walter K. Granger, Church Commissioner Robert E. Freer, Mrs. Chester Leisure and Mr. and Mrs. Morris D. Ervin.

As a young man Mr. Clawson served as a missionary in the South. He has been a member of the Council of the Twelve Apostles since 1898. From 1910 to 1913 he was president of the European mission of the church. He is next in line for the presidency of the church.

Mrs. Mervin S. Bennion was chairman of the committee on refreshments.

A Preeminent Classicist Explains How 'Twas Done

Maurice Evans Throws Light on 'Twelfth Night;' Mr. Langner Stops by to Win the War; Fredric March, Florence Eldridge in April

"SHAKESPEARE SENT IN A SCRIPT, so we had to do something about it."

That is the succinct fashion in which Maurice Evans summed up—or at least gave a clew to—the infinite variety, spontaneous gayety, vivacity and fun of "Twelfth Night," in which he is costarring with Helen Hayes at the National, when we heaved the monkey wrench into the privacy of his dressing room Tuesday night. The "something about it" took a bit of "doing."

BELL

In this Theater Guild-Gilbert Miller production, "Twelfth Night," for the first time in the memories of those still living, takes on new contours and new qualities of charm. It is all because Mr. Evans, Miss Hayes, Directress Margaret Webster, Designer Stewart Chaney and others involved went into a huddle and evolved a "treatment" that is as illuminating as it is unique.

The whole comedy basis of "Twelfth Night"—and it is less bitter and cruel comedy now than it ever has been before—lies in the juxtaposing of the fatuous and futile Malvolio and the high-born Sir Toby Belch. Master Malvolio is a lowly fellow, deluded by a scurvy trick into the belief that he is the one love of his aristocratic mistress. Sir Toby is an elegant wastrel, sunk from high estate to the associates and habits of the better gutters. Malvolio, heretofore, always has been played as a pompous nonentity pilloried on his own pretensions. Mr. Evans makes him really comic, with only a tinge of pathos left in his playful persecution. This happy result is achieved, as Mr. Evans patiently and painstakingly pointed out, by the assumption of the Cockney dialect, in England the unmistakable badge of inferior social position, and that weird and wonderful costume in which Malvolio is seen throughout the action of the play. Upon close scrutiny, it will be found to express the suppressed servitor's sumptuous conception of a gentleman's "soup-and-fish."

This, of course, is only to skim over the enlightenment that must inevitably cast its beam through an hour in Maurice Evans' amiable company. He is a most amazing artist and less the actor, out of grease paint, than any you ever have met. "Regular" is the abused and inadequate word usually applied to his sort. We will get back to him, I am afraid, in later columns.

It was at about this juncture—if we have arrived at any juncture—when Lawrence Langner who, with Theresa Helburn, is the Theater Guild, tapped on the door and had something to say about a play that Mr. Evans had read as a melodrama and Mr. Langner thought ought to be approached as a psychological study. It was all pretty cryptic. Being a diffident dolt, I pried me no pries, in the belief that this is a business that will come to light in due time. Dashing away to a train, as he usually is, Mr. Langner found time to assure Mr. Evans that the war has been won by our side. His dollar-a-year Bureau of Wartime Inventions, or whatever it is called, has some gadgets on the forge that spell triumph for democracy. It is his view that if science can measure the atmospheric disturbances caused by sun spots 50,000,000 miles away, it also can contrive means to measure Mr. Hitler's gaseous deviltries much closer to earth and snuff them out before they're started. Mr. Langner, Mr. Evans, your reporter and all the rest of civilization hope he is right.

And that gets around, by the way of Robin Hood's barn, to Mr. Evans' lecture on Shakespeare in war and peace that already has been heard in Washington in behalf of the British War Relief Fund. It is an engrossing evening that Maurice puts on when he delivers these extraordinary monologues, but his routing is something to break any man's heart and back. For instance, when his next jump is, say, from Baltimore to Philadelphia, he makes the trip via Chicago. If it is only from Washington to Pittsburgh, he goes by way of Kansas City. All for the sake of a single lecture date and The Cause. By the end of the season, he will have turned in an approximate $25,000 to the British War Relief Fund, which is no mean individual contribution, made on "his own time." But that is the extraordinary mold of man Maurice Evans is.

That wire the boy just dropped in the unfortunate overflow of the pastepot says this: "The Theater Guild will send Fredric March and Florence Eldridge to the National Theater for one week, beginning April 21, in Sophie Treadwell's new comedy, 'Hope for a Harvest.' The play is now in rehearsal in the Guild Theater, New York, under direction of Lester Vail. Thoroughly American, 'Hope for a Harvest' presents the modern version of the pioneer spirit in the gay and invigorating tempo of the modern manner. Action takes place in the colorful San Joaquin Valley of California, the time the present. This will be sixth and last play of the Guild's unusually successful Washington season. Regards. JO HEIDT."

A Neighbor 'Hams' Around

By Frederick C. Othman

United Press Hollywood Correspondent

Hollywood, March 12.—We have in our midst today as a movie actor Robert Porterfield, who started the Barter Theater in Abingdon, Va., eight years ago and has made a whale of a success of it by stressing ham.

Porterfield now has three summer stock companies, totaling 80 people, who give shows for 100 miles around at 35 cents admission, or its equivalent in victuals. The actors eat the food, the authors are paid off in ham, and Porterfield makes a living by lecturing in the winter about his summer activities—and by selling ham.

Only playwright who ever refused a Virginia ham for the rights to perform his play was George Bernard Shaw.

"He wouldn't take it," Porterfield said. "He wrote back that he was a vegetarian and asked if I couldn't send him some spinach."

He Turned Actor

The barter theaters being boarded up, Porterfield came West last week on his annual lecture tour. He put up at the house of Jeffrey Lynn, the New York theater usher, who got his first acting experience at the Barter Theater. They got to talking about movie acting—and the first thing Porterfield knew he was at Warner Brothers, acting in "Sergeant York."

He plays Zeb, the mountaineer who tries to get the girl from Gary Cooper. Porterfield's been a picture actor now for five days. At night he lectures. Last night he received a bouquet of vegetables from the ladies' club which heard him the ladies also handed him a check.

"Otherwise there'd be no profits for me, except from the ham business," Porterfield said.

A Cowed Wife

"The ham business and the acting business are pretty closely related anyway. All young actors need curing. That's what they get in Virginia, plus board and room. We don't have any profits. One year we made $65 and four barrels of jelly. It goes like that. But it's fun and it's good experience."

Porterfield said he had become an expert produce man. He knows exactly how much of what makes 35 cents worth. Take the man who came up to the theater with his wife and his cow. He parked both outside.

"He wanted to know how much milk it would take to buy a ticket," Porterfield said, "and I told him a shade more than a half gallon. So he went back to the cow and milked her. Pretty soon he was at the ticket office with his heavy half gallon of milk. I asked him if he wasn't going to let his wife see the show, too.

"'She can if she wants to,' he said, 'but she's got to do her own milking.'"

Boy's Ambition

Bobs Watson, while just an average boy, has one ambition. I want to be an actor like Mickey Rooney," he says.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, March 12 (INS).—Charlie Blake, ace Hearst reporter, has just sold Moe Siegel, Republic general manager, an original story, "Washington Correspondent," based on the freedom of the press. Charlie's career is one of the most interesting in the history of the newspaper world. He is the reporter who wrote the first account of the Quints and he is credited with having saved their lives by rushing an incubator to Callender.

PARSONS

A telegram has gone to Quentin Reynolds in New York in an effort to see if he can delay his return to England to play one of the top roles. Just had a wire from Quent, Sally Eilers and a crowd of other friends, who are in New York, so it is possible that he may come back. If not, it is likely the picture will be held up pending his return. William Gargan is being sought for the other stellar role.

◇◆◇

The coveted role of the heroine in "My Sister Eileen," the Jerome Chodorov-Joseph Fields stage hit, goes to Jean Arthur and she can be a happy girl, for it's one play for which every movie company has put in a bid. Columbia bought it and paid the pleasant little price of $225,000—and that ain't hay, if you'll pardon my slang. Max Gordon, the producer of the stage play, who has a big movie bee in his bonnet, will receive $75,000 for coming to Hollywood as the producer. I shouldn't say that's money spent idly either, for Gordon knows his theater.

◇◆◇

"Meet the People," the Hollywood Theater Alliance stage musical that brought William Orr and Virginia O'Brien to the attention of the movie moguls, is to be filmed. Sam Katz, of M-G-M, who is making the deal, will close for the rights with the Hollywood Theater Alliance for $27,000 and Arthur Freed, M-G-M's musical wizard, is elected to produce it. Before "Meet the People" can be brought to the screen, however, it will be necessary to get the approval of the Dramatists Guild in New York. I hope Bill Orr will be borrowed from Warners for his imitations in "Meet the People" were outstanding. Virginia is right on their lot and this may be the chance she has been waiting for.

Betty Field is little—but oh my! She has her own ideas and heaven and earth won't get her back to the Hollywood Paramount studio until she is ready to return. She has a clause in her contract which gives her six months a year on the stage in New York and six months in the movies. Although she has been asked to return to Hollywood to make a picture, she has notified the Para officials she intends to stay in New York until she lines up another stage play—and there's nothing in the world they can do about it.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Ad Randall fell down a flight of stairs and is now in the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital with a broken leg; Robert Riskin and his old heart, Frances Robinson, were an interesting duet at the Mocambo. Frances says it isn't true she's marrying Don Collins; Robert Cummings is building his mother, the Reverend Ruth Cummings, a home in the Valley—only a block from his own ranch.

Baby Sandy will be a sister any day now. Her mother, Mrs. Ray Henville, is expecting another starlet—she hopes; Barbara Stanwyck will wear a gorgeous ruby bracelet and ring at the "Meet John Doe" premiere. Yes, it was given her by Robert Taylor; the Gary Coopers are taking the William Goetzes and the Henry Hathaways to the big event; Helen Parrish, who is 18 tomorrow, will go to the premiere with Charles Lang.

Kay Francis and Hugh Fenwick, an aircraft executive, at the Scheherazade; Rex Bell, in town to sell some cattle, is hurrying right back to Nevada because of Clara Bow's illness; Ann Sheridan at Ciro's with George Brent looks mighty well. Hadn't seen her in ages; John Emery, estranged husband of Tallulah Bankhead, arrives in Hollywood Saturday and I hear tell it is a movie offer that's bringing him here; Priscilla Lane's romance with Don Barry, of Victorville, is still very much alive; Antonio Moreno, rumored engaged to Valerie Whiting, was with her at the Rhum-Boogie; Bettye Avery, fiancee of Gov. Lehman's nephew, at the Earl Carroll show with Franchot Tone.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Garden Clothes 'Hobo' Wardrobe

Phil Silvers, cast as the hobo in "The Penalty" with Lionel Barrymore, Edward Arnold and Gene Reynolds, arrived on the set to win praise from Director Harold S. Bocquet for his hobo costume.

"It's my own," Silvers announced proudly.

He explained that the mud-splattered jacket, trousers and boots were those he used at home for work in his garden.

*"Rage in Heaven," which nobody expected to be any great shakes as a picture, has turned into a tragic drama, and very interesting. # Chaplin Satire Resumes Run At Palace

By Richard L. Coe

One of the strangest pictures of the year returns to the Palace Theater this morning at popular prices for its second engagement in as many months. Comedy, social document, propaganda, one-man crusade, curious mixture of joke and tragedy, the film has started as many arguments as the War Between the States. Its title? "The Great Dictator."

For there's no denying it, admirer or detractor, that this Charlie Chaplin film has the qualities of great picture-making. The comedian has had something to say and has said it. He has told a fantastic story with humor and no little pathos and if the result seems strange, that is because it is a daring innovation and innovations always are strange.

Charlie's little chap is two people. One is a shy Jewish barber, gassed in World War I. He's pathetic, gentle and doesn't ask for much. The other is Dictator Hynkel of Tomania, psychopathic, neurotic and grasping for power. The plot is based on the fact that they look alike.

So Chaplin tosses his audience from charm to horror, from a normal affection for calm and quiet to an abnormal passion for excitement and restlessness. That's where the fun varies with the tragic, a theatric device that's as daring as it is demanding.

Criticised for Stating Obvious

Since its first engagement on F Street, the murmurs against dictatorships in this country have risen to a thunderous roar in a scant two months. Small wonder, then, that when "The Great Dictator" first opened it was criticized for stating the obvious by those who had reached a conclusion it took far longer for the camera to illustrate.

Besides the masterly resources of Chaplin in the two roles (he's talking now, too), there are some slick farcical turns from Jack Oakie as the neighboring dictator of Bacteria, Napolini. With a red carpet, a railway train and some bowls of spaghetti, that sack of humor has created a caricature almost as devastating as Chaplin's own. Reginald Gardiner, Henry Daniell and Billy Gilbert make great sport of the other more objectionable citizens of you know where. Paulette Goddard is Chaplin's leading lady, playing a young Jewish girl with that incandescent charm so uniquely her own.

Written and directed by Chaplin, however, "The Great Dictator" is most of all one man's personal attack on an intolerance insufferable to him. Its progression from slapstick to lecture on democracy may have cost him a fabulous amount of dollars and cents as well as very nearly too much time, but for all that "The Great Dictator" remains a picture of genuine distinction and importance.

Columbia

Boasting one Academy Award performance by James Stewart and one by Katharine Hepburn so close as to start swords rattling by her admiring legions, "The Philadelphia Story" is continuing for a second week in a second F Street engagement at the Columbia.

What else does this screen transcription of the Philip Barry play boast? Many things, gentle reader, chief of which is the brightest script offered shadow players to utter, lines with a surface glitter and a subsurface sincerity. In its world of Main Line social lions move a smartly assured newswriter, Ruth Hussey, whose lines at the opening of the picture are so good you'll want to sit through them again. Roland Young is there as a rich uncle, Virginia Weidler plays the smartest "kid" sister that ever lived, Mary Nash is one rich mother who isn't a balmy nitwit and John Halliday is a father with money and reason.

Most touching quality of "The Philadelphia Story" is that it shows people to be both rich and likable. These union-conscious days, that's a lot.

SAM HARRIS, the beloved producer who was operated upon last week, returned to consciousness after he was wheeled from the operating room. He turned to the surgeon, smiled feebly and asked: "How was my opening, doc" . . . The startled doctor didn't quite understand Harris' use of the theatrical terms. And so the producer nodded toward the corner where the surgeon's colleagues, who had assisted in the operation, were standing. "As usual," said Harris, "an awful lot depends on what the critics say . . ."

A COMMITTEE now is being formed in Washington, to offset the Vichy government's threat to use its warships for the purpose of convoying the food France needs and fight the British blockade, if necessary. The committee will propose that the problem be settled by swapping food, in exchange for these warships—to be returned after the war. . . .

"Pat" Humphries flattened two men at El Morocco's bar when they patted Lenore Lemmon, the debutante, in a manner to which she objected.

LEON HENDERSON'S elevation to the higher posts in the Government was aided by the insistence of Donald Nelson that Henderson's invaluable work be recognized . . . The barracks at Wright Field are so overcrowded that even Elliott Roosevelt, who is stationed there, has been unable to get accomodations.

BOB CASEY, the veteran correspondent who has been covering the war for the New York Post and Chicago Daily News, was assigned by his editors to go from London to Cairo. Casey was reluctant, at first, to leave London; but then, when he discovered that it was difficult to book passage to Cairo, he was determined to get there. He made due application with the Admiralty, but could get no passage. He tried the various government departments, without avail . . . The exasperated reporter then decided upon a new measure. He sent a cable to his old friend and publisher of his paper, Secretary of the Navy Knox. It read: "Dear Boss—If they run the rest of the war the way they run the Admiralty, you're backing the wrong horse." . . . Before that cable was received in Washington, the British Admiralty supplied passage for Casey to Cairo.

JOHN BARRYMORE was asked why he cannot memorize the lines of the script, when he makes a picture, and why it's necessary for the words to be written on a large blackboard, so that he can read them for each scene . . . "I have memorized, in my lifetime, the glorious works of Shakespeare, Sir James Barrie and Ibsen," Barrymore explained. "And so I refuse to clutter my mind by committing to memory the worthless drivel written by the high-priced peasants who call themselves the writers of Hollywood."

ALMOST ALL the letters to the State Department, urging deportation of Jean Valtin, are Communist-inspired. The author of "Out of the Night" tried to arrange a haven in the Dominican Republic, but couldn't do it . . . PM's check-up article on Valtin's accuracy questioned the author's report of being lashed across the face with a narrow whip which first had been dipped in water, and yet left no scars. Valtin's explanation is that under such circumstances, the blood emerges through the pores of the skin, which remains uncut. The skin will remain discolored for six weeks, but then the discoloring disappears. For enough money, Valtin offers, he will agree to submit to a whipping-test, under the same circumstances he describes, by PM's Ralph Ingersoll. This offer applies only to Ingersoll, and not to any Reds who'd pay any price for the privilege.

GENE FOWLER finally has recovered from injuries he sustained when a car, driven by Leo McCarey, cracked up in a collision. Fowler confesses that he has driven with what he regards the three worst drivers in the world—Ty Cobb, Barney Oldfield and Leo McCarey . . . "Cobb's a bad driver," Fowler explains, "because he's always turning around to the man in the back seat, and telling just how he stole home, from second base. And Barney Oldfield's the only man I ever rode with who hit a plane flying overhead."

JAMES SEELY is the 70-year-old veteran who performs so ably in "Flight West." A few weeks ago his wife died—but Seely adhered to the tradition of the theater and didn't miss a performance . . . Last Sunday, during the first act, Seely was stricken with an attack. He gasped his lines. During an audience laugh Hugh Marlowe whispered a suggestion that the curtain be brought down. The veteran shook his head, finished the first act—and collapsed . . . A back-stage consultation was held, and the stage manager agreed to substitute for the balance of the performance. "But how," asked Marlowe, "can you explain your sudden appearance? We're supposed to be on a Clipper, flying the Atlantic. All the passengers were accounted for in the opening scene" . . . "That's no problem," said the stage manager—walked on stage, and told the audience: "Mr. Seely is ill. His understudy will now take over his part."

Maybe in Heaven, but There Seems None Here

LUCILLE WATSON, ROBERT MONTGOMERY, INGRID BERGMAN, GEORGE SANDERS, pivotal figures in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "Rage in Heaven," opening its first Washington engagement this morning on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater. As the youthful paranoiac, Mr. Montgomery is said to offer his most impressive performance since his memorable portrayal in the grimly gripping "Night Must Fall"

Tradition Upset! Foster Fetes Pals

When the home town boy who made good comes home, there generally is a big reception and dinner given by the civic leaders who knew him when. However, Preston Foster, star of "The Roundup," revealed today that he had reversed the procedure during his recent visit to Philadelphia.

Through a former employer, Foster got in touch with six truck drivers with whom he used to wheel trucks over the New Jersey highways.

Player Displays Broom Technique

Constance Moore is one of the most glamorous girls of Hollywood, but she can still show mere man how to wield a broom when the occasion arises.

She demonstrated her mastery of the housewifely art on the set of "Las Vegas Nights" after she had become more and more disgusted with the sweeping of a prop man.

"Give me that broom" she finally said. "I never did see a man who could sweep a rug."

Hopalong Cassidy Aids Police Chief

Hopalong Cassidy is now a force for the prevention of juvenile delinquency in at least one Middle Western city. In a letter received by William Boyd, star of the Western series, the latest of which is "In Old Colorado," the chief of police of Des Moines, Iowa, writes that when a youngster is brought before him for some act of mischief, he asks:

"Now what do you think that Hopalong Cassidy would say about anything like this?"

Giants Bunch 7 Singles to Defeat Nats, 4 to 1

Anderson, Chase Yield N. Y. Scores

Hudson Shows Fair Form in '41 Debut; Double-Play Helps; Nats Get 5 Hits

By Shirley Povich.
Post Staff Writer

Orlando, Fla., March 12.—The Nats went feeble today against New York Giants' pitching and could stir up only one sadly inadequate run. The upshot of it all was a 4-to-1 licking and a two-game losing streak for the Washington athletes.

They submitted to a five-hit pitching job by three New York hurlers—Hal Schumacher, Bob Carpenter and Bill Lohrman, who put the chill on the Nats no less than the frigid winds which swept Tinker Field. The Giants were not exactly Murder, Inc., at the plate, but they made clever use of their seven hits—all singles—and wrested the winning runs from Ken Chase and big Arnold Anderson. When last seen the Nats were being shut out for eight consecutive innings.

It was Sid Hudson's 1941 debut on the mound for the Nats and he did all right. The Giants made only one of their hits and none of their runs during the three innings the darling of the Nats' staff was on the mound. He had a rough sort of session in the second inning when he filled the bases on two walks and a single by Babe Young, but Buddy Lewis rescued Hudson by grabbing a hot-shot grounder off Lou Chiozza's bat and starting a double play.

Hudson Starts Well

Hudson retired the side in the first inning on a half-dozen pitched balls. He was pouring his fast ball into Catcher Al Evans' mitt and making it hop. Manager Bucky Harris watched his performance with high satisfaction. The Nats were a wastrel crew today. They managed to score only one run in the first inning despite a double by George Case that opened the game, a pair of walks and a single by Travis that was packed into the inning. They scored only one run because they ran the bases like dunces.

And in the fifth inning they reached the depth of their futility at bat when they failed to score despite a single and double by the first two hitters to face Carpenter in the inning.

Ken Chase allowed only three hits in his three-inning turn, but he yielded them all in the fourth inning when the Giants wiped out the Nats' 1-0 lead. Chase encountered trouble after getting the first two men out in the fourth. He walked Young and then pitched singles to Gabby Hartnett, Joe Orengo and Lou Chiozza.

Anderson likewise turned in a three-hit pitching job in his three innings of toil, but he allowed the Giants three hits in one inning. It was the seventh. He walked Pinch Hitter Myatt with one out, and then pitched a single to Demaree, with two out, he pitched singles to Arnovich and West. The second run of the inning scored while West was messing up Moore's single to left. The Giants couldn't get to first base against Anderson after that.

The Nats' first inning was highly unsatisfactory despite the one run they scored. Case opened with a double to left and then stupidly tried to go to third on Welaj's fly to short center. He was rubbed out by a dozen feet. After Chapman and Lewis walked, Travis singled home a run and moved Lewis to third, but for some reason Travis tried to take two bases on his blow to left and the upshot was that Lewis was the victim of a run-down between third and plate.

It was in the fifth that the Nats turned in their greatest false alarm. Myer singled to right, and Evans doubled down the left field line, putting men on first and third with the tying runs and none out, but nothing eventuated. Carpenter, a Nashville graduate, struck out Anderson, forced Chase to pop up, and Welaj to line out to second base.

Rally Dies Out

In the eighth, Anderson walked and Case singled before anybody was out, but the Nats couldn't get a runner past second in this crisis. Welaj flied out, West struck out and Lewis grounded out.

The ball game's three errors were contributed by the Nats—George Archie messed up a play at first base, Sam West bobbled a grounder in left field, and Al Evans successfully averted a catch of a pop foul behind the plate . . . Archie nipped a Washington rally in the fourth inning when, with Buddy Lewis on base, he attempted to bunt and missed the wide pitch by a foot, with the result that Lewis was picked off first . . . Evans' double to left in the fifth inning was a fierce grounder that handcuffed Third Baseman Lou Chiozza . . . Bucky Harris was pleased with the performance of all of his pitchers . . . He liked Anderson's control in the last three innings . . . The chill of the afternoon cut down the crowd to a mere 1,500 .

Walper and Chapman Win Pro-Am Medal

Set Hot Pace With 129, 15 Under Par

D. C. Pro, National Amateur Champ Get 17 Birdies; Grout, Allan 2d With 133

By the Associated Press

St. Augustine, Fla., March 12.—Leo Walper, Washington, D. C., professional, and Dick Chapman, Greenwich, Conn., amateur, won the medal of the National Pro-Amateur Best Ball Match Play Golf Tournament today with a sizzling 64, 65—129—15 strokes under par.

The nearest their competitors could come to that blistering combination was 133 which Jack Grout and Frank Allan, both of Pittston, Pa., got by putting together 67 and 66 in the 36-hole qualifying round.

13 Draw Byes

There were 32 teams in the top flight, but 13 of these drew byes.

Eighteen holes will be played Thursday with the second and third rounds Friday, the 36-hole semi-finals Saturday and the 36-hole finals Sunday.

Fast Field

The qualifying round was so fast that it took a 139, five strokes under par, to be sure of a spot in the championship flight.

Seven amateur-pro teams, posting cards of 140, will have to meet early tomorrow morning in a play-off for three places in the top bracket.

The last foursome ended today's round in darkness and flashlights had to brought into play to post the scores on the board.

Rut Coffey, Hagerstown, Md., professional, and Skee Reigel, Glendale, Calif., amateur, finished well up among the qualifiers with rounds of 66-69, 135. One of the teams in the morning playoff is Chandler Harper and Ace Parker, Portsmouth, Va., duo.

Kramer-Riggs Duo Advances In Net Play

By the Associated Press

Oklahoma City, March 12.—Jack Kramer, a Californian, who goes to school in Florida, opened his bid today for a share of the doubles title at the Men's National Indoor Tennis Tournament to go with the half-interest he owns in the country's doubles championship.

Instead of Ted Schroeder, the Stanford University star who was his partner in victory at Forrest Hill, Kramer took on a new sidekick—Chicago's Bobby Riggs, defending indoor singles champion and the Nation's second-ranking player.

Win in Doubles

The Kramer-Riggs duo sped through the opening round of doubles play, eliminating a pair of Oklahoma City youngsters, Willard Bergstrosser and Miles Been, 6—2, 6—0.

The most impressive performance, however, was turned in by Oklahoma City's Don McNeill, National Outdoor titleholder and the first ranking amateur in the United States, and Frank Guernsey, of Houston, Tex.

They scored a 6—1, 6—2 victory over Ed Overholser, Oklahoma City veteran, who was good enough to beat Riggs six games before losing in the singles division, and Bill Wilkins, Southern Methodist University ace from Dallas.

Kovacs Advances

Frank Kovacs, of Oakland, and his buddy from across the bay, San Francisco's Norman Brooks, moved into the doubles quarter-finals by stopping Bill Hall and Ivan Berry, of Edmond, Okla., 6—4, 6—3.

Wayne Sabin, of Portland, Oreg., and Bill Talbert, of Cincinnati, encountered somewhat stubborn opposition from George Counts and Tommy Higgins, both former State champions from Oklahoma City, in their opening doubles match, but wore them down and finished fast to win, 6—4, 6—2.

Alex Carrasquel Found; to Fly To Nats' Camp

A Staff Correspondent

Orlando, Fla., March 12.—The Washington training camp no longer is bothered by its two-week mystery. Alex Carrasquel, the vanishing Venezuelan, has been found and he will report to the Nats' camp sometime tomorrow.

Washington club officials enlisted the aid of United States Immigration officials in searching out Carrasquel who was supposed to have embarked from his native Venezuela by boat late last month. Somebody suddenly discovered yesterday that the big pitcher was still in Venezuela.

Today, Owner Clark Griffith received a telegram from club Secretary Edward B. Eynon, jr., in Washington which stated: "Carrasquel flying from Venezuela to Miami tomorrow and will report to Orlando immediately."

When he does arrive here, Carrasquel will find himself minus the Venezuelan version of 100 bucks. That is the sum, in American money, which Griffith has fined him for reporting late.

Frisch Fines Player $250 for 'Indifference'

Refuses to Identify Pirate Culprit; Craft Stars as Reds Beat Cards

By the Associated Press

San Bernardino, Calif., March 12.—Pilot Frankie Frisch of the Pittsburgh Pirates disclosed today he fined one of his players $250 for failing to take training rules seriously. He declined to identify the offender.

Frankie was in a huff about it, exclaiming:

"Discipline must be maintained in this camp. I have served notice the next offender will be fined $1,000 and be given a ticket home."

Craft Homers With 3 On As Reds Beat Cards, 6-4

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 12 (AP).—Harry Craft's sixth-inning home run with the bases loaded was the most important of five hits made by the World Champion Cincinnati Reds in defeating the St. Louis Cardinals in an exhibition baseball game today, 6 to 4.

The Cardinals were leading 3 to 0 when the inning began. Ernie White, left-hander and the second St. Louis pitcher of the contest, lost control and issued three walks. Then, with two out, came Craft's blow into the left field bleachers.

Auker Gives Browns 9-1 Count Over Bees

San Antonio, Tex., March 12 (AP).—Elden Auker, the submarine hurler of the St. Louis Browns, picked up today where he left off last season by helping pitch the Brownies to a 9-to-1 victory over the Boston Bees.

The big right-hander, collaborating with Roxie Lawson on the hill, worked five scoreless innings, yielding only four scattered hits. Lawson was nicked for seven hits, but the lone Boston run resulted from a pop fly that fell safe.

Miami Beach, Fla., March 12 (AP).—The Sand Dabs and the Sea Gulls renewed their intraclub rivalry at the Phils training camp today, and both came up with the same score—in runs and errors. The Dabs, muffing only three fielding chances, won out on the runs count, 6-3. The Gulls were charged with six errors.

Frank Melton, the Phils' No. 1 rookie, limited the Gulls to two hits and one run in three innings.

Ken Griffith Smashes Cage Scoring Record

By the Associated Press

Buckhannon, W. Va., March 12.—Ken Griffith, lanky Alderson-Broaddus forward who broke Hank Luisetti's scoring record for four years of college basketball January 30, closed his college career tonight with a total of 1,941 points.

This exceeds by 345 points the mark of 1,596 set by Luisetti, the former Stanford star, several years ago.

Playing in the semifinals of the West Virginia Athletic Conference Tournament here this afternoon, Griffith counted only five points, against Glenville—closer than he had been held in any other of the 98 games of his four years of competition. Alderson-Broaddus won, 50-48.

Challedon To Remain In California

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, March 12.—Challedon will remain in California and race at the Hollywood Park summer meeting, pointing for a second consecutive victory in the $75,000 Hollywood Gold Cup in July.

Owner William L. Brann said he wants to keep Challedon in this climate "to insure perfect healing of his injured foot. Challedon, I am confident, was unable to do himself justice this winter because of his injury.

After the Hollywood meeting, Challedon will be sent to Saratoga for the Whitney Stakes and the Saratoga Cup. After that he is due to run at Belmont Park in the Jockey Club Cup and then head for his native Maryland for his main objective of the year, the Pimlico Special.

Four other Brann campaigners, Aethelwold, Challephen, Pictor and Chaldese, will remain at Hollywood. Six of the stable's 2-year-olds, all by the great Challenger, also will be shipped West. L. C. Whitehill remains as trainer.

Voted the outstanding horse in the country in 1939 and 1940, Challedon failed to finish in the money in his two starts at the Santa Anita Park meeting just closed. A foot injury seriously impeded his training schedule.

Nats Recall Jimmy Vernon; First Sacker Reports Sunday

Griffith and Harris Not Satisfied With George Archie

By a Staff Correspondent

Orlando, Fla., March 12.—First Baseman George Archie, from Seattle, is no bargain even at the $7,500 draft price, the Nats' bosses are on the verge of concluding.

Tonight, Owner Clark Griffith revealed that he had called to camp here First Baseman Jimmy Vernon, who had not been scheduled for a 1941 tryout with the Washington club.

Vernon will report on Sunday. He had been tardy in accepting salary terms and his marriage this week also will delay his arrival here.

Apparently it is a frantic sort of move—bringing Vernon to camp. Bluntly, the Nats' bosses don't like their first base situation. Archie has been taking on all the appearances of a flop, and Bucky Harris hesitates to entrust the job to big Jack Sanford, the only other first baseman in camp.

Vernon, after a tryout last year with the Nats, was optioned to the Jersey City Club. He had a lofty batting average for most of the season, but slumped near the finish. The Nats were not counting on him this year, particularly since Archie came so highly recommended after winning the most-valuable-player award in the Class AA Pacific Coast League.

Unless Archie gets some sort of a base hit soon, the indication is that he will swing himself right out of a Washington uniform. In three exhibition games thus far the red-headed first baseman from the Coast has made nothing resembling a hit.

JIMMY VERNON

Harris and Griffith are making no public expression of dissatisfaction with Archie but they are not enthused with his name as the topic. It is evident that they cannot quite understand how he earned any such award as was given him on the Coast.

They don't like his batting stroke and have increasing doubts that he will ever hit big league pitching. Early in the training here the Nats resigned themselves to the fact that Archie would not be a power hitter but they were hopeful that he would meet the ball frequently. That has not been a habit of his in camp.

Red Vernon, Latsios Lose Gloves Finale

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, March 12.—Darkhorses from the start, two Washington, D. C., boys fell just short of national championships here tonight as semifinal and final rounds of the Golden Gloves Eastern Tournament were run off in Madison Square Garden.

Reds Vernon, the District of Columbia's lightweight hope, defeated Tommy Saunders, of Huntington, W. Va., in the afternoon to earn his way into the finals. Nick Latsios, 147-pounder, defeated Jacksonville's Charles Easley to earn his chance at the Eastern championship.

It took a knockout in Vernon's case to decide the title. Red ran into a high school sophomore from Buffalo, N. Y., and couldn't match the fast pace. Green had him on the floor for a count of nine and a count of two in the first round and then finished Vernon in 1 minute 43 seconds of the second round.

The Alexandria boy, Latsios, took on the tournament favorite, Charley Burley, southpaw from Philadelphia, and fought an uphill fight but lost the decision. Latsios was floored for a nine count in the third.

Orioles Beat N.Y.; Gain on Eagles

Baltimore, March 12 (AP).—The Baltimore Orioles climbed to within 1 point of the Washington Eagles, leaders of the Eastern Ice Hockey League, by defeating the New York Rovers tonight, 4 to 2.

Scoring twice in the opening period and once in the second and third stanzas, Baltimore had little difficulty with the Rovers.

WASHINGTON, MAR. 13, 1941

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Lakeland, Fla., March 12.—The seven other American League clubs will probably insist on at least going through the motions of the 1941 pennant race, but the fact is that Buck Newsom has already conferred first place on the Detroit Tigers. "We'll breeze in," said Oracle Newsom, "what have we got to lick?"

POVICH

An unabashed reporter suggested that the Indians might be tough and that the Yankees could come up with a pretty good ball club, but the big Buckaroo was unimpressed. "We'll out-game 'em if we have to. That's what put us over last year. The Indians never scared anybody, and when the Yankees stop fooling with their infield, it will be too late to do 'em any good."

Newsom is an important man around the Tigers' camp. His 21 victories last year lifted him to the role of No. 1 pitcher on the club, and his world series heroics didn't hurt his or the other Tiger's opinions of Newsom. Today as he lay on a rubbing table receiving treatment for a wrenched back muscle, the Detroit Club's masseur was highly respectful to the hig hulk of a guy.

"Now on this side, Buck," said the rubber softly and then he added a restful "please." To which Newsom answered by turning lazily and gruffly commanding the fellow to hand him a cigarette. Buck submitted to a brisk rub and then said, suddenly, "that'll be enough." It was Buck's decision, not the trainer's.

Big Buck, who could swagger even during the seasons when he was losing more games than any pitcher in the league, sops up his new importance in the Tigers camp. Sure, he's the highest paid pitcher in baseball, why not? "I was the highest-paid pitcher last year except that I wasn't bragging about it," said Buck. "It wasn't until these Cleveland people started bragging about Bob Feller's salary that the truth came out."

The impression is, in the Tiger's camp, that despite Newsom's comforting predictions about the pennant race, the Detroit athletes are a badly scared lot. They fear the moment when Uncle Sam will step in and grab Hank Greenberg out of a baseball uniform. Even Newsom would not make so bold as to say the Tigers could win the pennant without Greenberg. In the Tigers' camp, nobody simply discusses the threat of Greenberg's loss, not even Hank who is fed-up with the interviews and the speculation.

"I hope those Yankees do play Joe Gordon at first base," said Newsom. "They'll be ruining the best second baseman in the league, and that won't help him any. By the time Gordon gets his tootsies stepped on a few times by some of these 200 pounders, he'll want to be back on second."

As for the Indians, Newsom holds that club in utter contempt. "If they ever do get in the league, all we'll have to do is sneak up behind them and yell 'boo!' and they'll fold. What did Shakespeare say? 'The leopard doesn't change his spots?' Well, old Shake sure must have been talking about the Cleveland club. He had 'em tabbed. We don't ever worry about the Indians."

Manager Del Baker likes to hear Newsom spread his sunshine in the Tiger's clubhouse, but he refuses to be a party to Buck's predictions that it will be a breeze for the Tigers. Without much trouble it can be seen that Baker is burdened with worries, not alone over the vacancy Greenberg's departure to the army would leave. He's wondering how his ancient infield is going to set. But for publication he tries to be brave.

"We've got the same ball club that was good enough to win last year, haven't we?" says Baker, "and they've got us to lick. They said Dick Bartell and Charley Gehringer couldn't last the season out, but they were in there at the finish, on a pennant-winning club. "It's up to those other clubs to catch us, and when you can say that you're in a pretty good spot."

As insurance against any breakdown by Bartell or Gehringer, Baker has Eric McNair who plays either second base or shortstop. McNair may do all right, but he is not the type to create any ecstasies in a manager's heart, and at third base Frank Higgins is no gazelle. At first base, the big Indian, Rudy York, is no fielding fiend, either, and in fact there has been a man so unkind as to call him the totem pole first baseman.

The fact is that the Tigers may be in a horrible plight, with their entire infield unsatisfactory and the ownership forbidden by the no-trade rule, binding champions, to spend some of their copious cash for players who would help. The Tigers, for all of Newsom's windy prophecies may be the victims of dry-rot in their infield.

However, Catcher Birdie Tebbetts believes that the Tigers' pitching will take up any slack in the infield and perhaps offset even the loss of Greenberg. "I never saw so many hard-throwing young pitchers in a camp before," said Tebbetts. "I mean it. I catch 'em and I know. These kids like Hal White and Maniders and Mueller and Trucks and Fuchs can fog that ball. Put a couple of them with Newsom, Bridges, Rowe, Newhouser and Gorsica and Giebel and we'll come up with the best pitching in the league."

"And we'll need it" would be the answer of the Tigers if they could give tongue to their great collective fear.

Pieces of Haight—

Washington, D. C.

Dear Boss:

There seems to be a demand for more letters about the Little Potatoes (We're Hard to Peel), my childhood gang, mentioned from time to time in these secretive communications. Now don't get me wrong, Boss, I haven't seen any men parading up Pennsylvania Avenue carrying "We Want More Little Potatoes Letters" signs, and, as far as I know, there hasn't been any cheering section out in front of The Post Building giving a "locomotive" for Haight, but—well, maybe I did dream it.

HAIGHT

The Little Potatoes never remembered Reds before he became lame. From time to time, we heard some grown-up whisper "infantile paralysis" or buzz about "his leg was caught in the cradle when he was a baby." But why Reds was lame seldom, if ever, came into our minds. Reds was lame, that's all we knew about it. And it was just as natural for Reds to be lame as it was for Pergie Brown's little sister to suck her thumb.

Perhaps if Reds wasn't Reds, we would have worried about his condition. But Reds was far from the fretting type himself and—but, Boss, let me say right here and now that of all the Little Potatoes Reds was the hardest to peel.

He didn't look the part. From the waist up, Reds was as handsome a boy as you ever saw. Well chiseled features, wavy auburn hair, large eyes and a slight dimple in his chin, which they say means "Devil within." In a way, that expression as compared to Reds was more truth than poetry.

In fact, we never remembered Reds without a crutch tucked under his right arm. And along with many other boys who knew Reds, I can almost feel the sting now of being hit with his "spare," as he called it.

And don't think for a minute, Boss, that Reds was strictly a defensive fighter. He could carry the battle to you with the best of them, but when the going got real tough, Reds would sit down and all territory within the arch of his swinging crutch was indeed "No Man's Land."

And we came to respect Reds' right arm. That crutch under his shoulder developed his upper arm until it was the size of a ham and as hard as rock. Reds was a great believer in the football adage of a good offense is the best defense. There were few if any Munichs with Reds. If

Hoyas, Colonials Place Two Each on All-District Team

Bornheimer, Zunic, Rizzi, Veltri Named

Schulze, American, Completes Club; O'Grady, Comer Make Task Difficult

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Five outstanding college ball players, a coach's dream team combining scoring ability, size, experience, durability and defense makes up The Post's All-District College Basketball team for the 1940-41 season.

At forward, we present the city's leading scorer in Matt Zunic, George Washington, and Hugo "Dutch" Schulze, probably American U.'s greatest all-time courtman. The center position is in the capable hands of Bill Bornheimer, the young Hoya giant. We appoint as captain, Irving Rizzi, Georgetown's senior guard, with George Washington's Lou Veltri as running mate.

The all-star line-up was selected after conferring with several prominent names in local basketball, Bill Reinhart, the G. W. coach; Staff Cassell, American U. mentor; Paul Menton, the Baltimore sports editor who is rated this section's No. 1 official; John Busick, the former sports writer and now publicity agent, and Fred Mesmer, who preceded Elmer Ripley as Georgetown coach.

O'Grady, Comer Held Highly

The difficulty in selecting an all-star team from the five major local clubs was that we were allowed only five players. It easily could have been made a seven-man team, adding the names of Georgetown's flashy guard and trick ball handler, Buddy O'Grady, and G. W.'s dependable forward, Joe Comer. These two, plus Bobby Gilham, G. W., and Jim Kiernan and Jim Giebel, Georgetown, comprise the second team.

If a coach were given the five first-team players for a season's play, he would scarcely need a second team, however. For Zunic, Schulze, Rizzi and Veltri would not know how it felt to sit on the bench in the tough going. They were all 40-minute men excepting the few times their respective teams drew far enough ahead to experiment with second-stringers. Bornheimer was usually relieved in the first half as he had a tendency to foul early and was saved for later in the game.

Bornheimer's 6 feet 4 inches and Zunic, 6 feet 3, give the team needed height. Veltri, a comparative midget in collegiate basketball these days at 5 feet 9 brings average height down to about 6 feet 1. Bornheimer is the heaviest at 190 and Veltri the lightest, 165, for an average of nearly 180 pounds.

The major scoring can be left in the hands of Zunic and Schulze, whose averages were better than 11 and 10 points per game, respectively. Zunic topped the all-time G. W. scoring record for the season with 243 points. Bornheimer, held scoreless in a few early seeason contests, finished with better than 8 points per contest followed by Veltri and Rizzi.

Shulze Is Praised

The boys have all commanded rave notices throughout the season. Penn State Coach Johnny Lawther praised Schulze's play. He has seen the A. U. captain play several times and his parting crack was he'd trade most any two players for one Dutch.

Southern Conference coaches were quick to see the ability of Zunic and Veltri and the two names were feared in G. W.'s dozen meetings with future conference foes. Seldom did an out-of-town press report come back on Georgetown without mentioning Rizzi as the outstanding man on the floor, while it took only three early season games to brand Bornheimer as one of the finest sophomore prospects in local history.

It was no mere coincidence that when talk of all-star teams entered a conversation, Rizzi was the first player mentioned. Seldom a scoring star, Moe nevertheless hit the point column in each of his team's 20 games. But it was on defense and bringing the ball down the floor on offense where he starred, directing plays, calling players into position, handling the ball and general floor work.

Veltri Sparked Club

Veltri drew the toughest defensive assignments of the season and looked better each time. When Lou was out with an injury in early season, it was not the same G. W. team that sparked when he returned to uniform. He handled his share of the scoring and with Rizzi and O'Grady was the darling of Riverside's army of Monday morning quarterbacks.

Zunic drew praise time after time for his amazing stamina, for when not tossing in his 243 points he was following the ball like Hawkshaw. Bornheimer, who used his height to advantage, jealously guarded the backboards, controlled the jumps and the Hoya under-the-basket work. Schulze completed his fourth year as an A. U. varsity man and improved on his previous performances. Dutch looked best against the best teams, and was always a thorn in the side of Georgetown. He and Rizzi were team captains.

The boys produced results, too. G. W. won 16 out of 22 and Georgetown 16 out of 20, led by their representatives on this team. Schulze, on a team lacking the material of the others, was an outstanding star. Bornheimer, Zunic, and possibly Veltri for a half year, will be with us again next season.

Dan Cronin With 171 Game At Penn

Records crashed with the pins last night at Pen Recreation when the Department of the Interior had their meet. Dan Cronin, Reclamation No. 1, was the big hero with a season record game of 171, which he followed with an all-time record set of 454, the highest ever rolled, in the 17 years of the league's existence.

Cronin's games were 171, 119, 165. George Garland set a record early this year with 431, only to see it broken by 23 pins.

Billy Little, Southeast Discount, sparked the Prince George County Businessmen's League at Hyattsville Recreation with high of 151-410, the latter mark a season high, and helped take the odd game from Hyattsville Recreation. Picard, Hyattsville Postoffice, had near highs of 131-330.

Frazee, Americans, and Buck McDonald, member of Happy Newman's Shamrocks but rolling on the Hyde Builders team in the Takoma Duckpin Association, led last night with 153 and 407, respectively. McDonald's top totals aided his Hyde Builders team in winning highs after pinfalls of 670 and 1,828. Takoma Ambulance leads with 52-32 with Hyde Builders only one game behind.

The Georgetown Independent loop at Ed Schlegel's drives brought out Smith, Rebels, as the hero for he led in individual highs with 150-405, sparking a sweep over Becker Paint. Conners Grill took the team top totals after pinfalls of 594 and 1,633. George Colliflower had a nice 345 set to lead the Shaffer Flower Shop attack on Rogan Service which netted them three straight. Midway Service won three from Martin's. The Rebels and Midway Service are the two top quintets.

Nick Kereluk and Adler, both members of the Dupont team in the Premier Cab League at Penn Recreation, tied for high game with 147 each with the former rolling a 359 set but losing the high set honors to Gus Rodana, Rock Creek Church Road, who bested him by one pin.

On the Line

—With CONSIDINE

The Baseball Front, March 12.—Brooklyn should start building for 1942. The fervent dream of a 1941 World Series in Ebbets Field must, like Arnovich's draft status, be deferred. The old moan of the most faithful collection of fans now in captivity, "Wait'll next year, ya bum, ya," must again be heard. Sorry.

CONSIDINE

For we got a load of the Cincinnati Reds in Tampa yesterday, and nothing short of the direct wrath of Judge Jehovah Landis, can stop them from becoming the first National League team since John McGraw's Giants of the early '20's to win three straight flags. The Reds have what might well be one of the best, if not the best, pitching ever massed on one team. The club fielding is as airtight as ever. It is just as fast as it was last year and it figures to have a little added oomph at the plate.

Take the Red's pitching:

The regulars on the staff have a potentiality of 147 victories, if they can come up with repetitions of what they did only a short time ago. Let us explain that. Two years ago Bucky Walters won 27 games, and Paul Derringer won 25. Whitey Moore won 13 the same year. Junior Thompson won 16 last year, though he was out for a full month. Jim Turner won 20 for the Bees a few years ago, and Johnny Vander Meer won 15 for the Reds. Monte Pearson won 19 for the Yanks not too long ago and Joe Beggs won 12 for the Reds last season. That adds to 147.

The club also has fellows like Witt Guise, John Hutchins, Bob Logan and Elmer Riddle, who are calculated to win maybe 10 games among them, and if that adds up to more games than the Reds are scheduled to play, then sue the schedule maker.

Of course, this is day dreaming. But all these men are close to their primes and in excellent shape. Derringer reported to Tampa in unusually good condition, for Paul. Walters is at his peak. Vander Meer has been coming back for two years, but now everyone down here from Bill McKechnie down sincerely believes that this is the year . . . that Johnny finally has lived down the urge to try to live up to his two no-hitters. He isn't pressing any more, they say, and he's at last ready. Whitey Moore, who sloughed off to eight wins last season, looks much improved. Thompson is a 20-game winner if ever I saw one. And Turner still seems capable of turning in those well-pitched, low-hit games, especially against that National League type of hitting.

But the big surprise down in Tampa has been Monte Pearson, Joe McCarthy's problem child. Pearson had one of his tobacco'y wisdom teeth pried out not long ago and with its roots seem to come a lot of the aches and complaints that obstructed his career. McCarthy used to beef midly that he had to ask Monte to work, instead of having Monte volunteer. Down here in this sanctuary of the seegar and reservations of the rumba, Pearson has become the hardest worker in camp. No squawks, no aches . . . and McKechnie has had to drag him off the hill, to keep him from overworking himself while pitching to batters.

Pearson's our bet for the league's most surprising pitcher. That he was waived out of the American League is no reflection on him. Five or six A. L. teams wanted him, but the Yankees didn't want them to get him, fearing a tremendous reform, and he was transported into the other league by the deceptive (and soon-to-be-changed) method of putting his name on the waiver list time and time again, and withdrawing it until American League owners were so lulled in believing that the Yanks were going to keep him that each failed to claim him.

Jimmy Gleeson, whose .313 batting average with the Cubs last year was the highest turned in by any regular outfielder in the league, is with the Reds, bolstering an outfield that already has Ival Goodman, Mike McCormick and Jimmy Ripple. Eddie Joost, who played so well at second base in the 1940 world series, in place of Lonnie Frey, has been moved to shortstop to take the place of Billy Myers, sent to the Cubs for Gleeson. Frank McCormick and Bill Werber, of course, round out the neatest infield in the majors. When Walters pitches, the infield has five members, for no one can touch Bucky as a fielding pitcher.

Schnozzola signed for $17,000, a pretty good raise, and is happy. They've finally managed to convince him that he really wasn't cut $3,000 in 1939; that the $3.000 the club presented to him at the end of 1938 was simply a bonus for his winning the league's batting title and being nominated most valuable player, not a part of his salary. It took a long time, but Lom's reflexes aren't record-breakers for speed.

Escobar Next For Corchado After Forte

Corchado, Matchmaker Gabe Menendez stated, has been told to leave for his native San Juan late next week to prepare for a 15-round bout for the Puerto Rican featherweight title with Sixto Escobar, former world's bantamweight champion.

The match, it was said, will take place in the same stadium where Escobar thrice has engaged in world's championship bouts. He fought Lou Salica, the present bantamweight king, there twice and regained his crown from Harry Jeffra in the same ring. But Escobar is no longer a bantam and is campaigning as a featherweight under a new manager.

Victory Monday over Forte means everything to Corchado, who can come down to the bantamweight limit just as easily as he can build himself into a featherweight. Forte, who won from and lost to Champion Salica, will come into the ring Monday weighing around 121, with Corchado at 125. This pull in weight may prove a big help to the Puerto Rican champion, who recently upset Billy Banks.

Strong Field Enters Mixed Pin Tourney

The seventh annual St. Patrick's Day Mixed Doubles classic is scheduled to start Saturday morning at Hugh Arbaugh's Silver Spring drives, the first blocks of five games to be rolled at noon, 2 and 4 p. m., with the second five-game blocks to start at 6:30, 8:30 and 10:30 p. m.

Inaugurated by Earle D. Stocking, Silver Spring manager, the event is the classic of all mixed doubles events and each year has drawn the foremost duckpin stars of the country to Washington. The entry list already numbers such experts of both sexes as; Lucy Rose teaming with Astor Clarke; Doris Smith and Jimmy Wallace, Lucile Young and Tony Santini, Caroline Hiser and Perce Wolfe, Olive Pettit and Hugh Arbaugh, Gladys Lynn and El Geib, Ruth King and Julie Singer, Margaret Lynn and Paul Fitzgerald and Pauline Ford and Jack Talbert. Other duos, according to Stocking, are signing up later in the week and all indications point to an increase on the 64 entries of last year. The entry fee is $10 per team.

Harvard Defeats Penn to Gain 4th-Place Berth

By the Associated Press

Cambridge, Mass., March 12.—The Harvard basketball team, inspired by the sharpshooting of Ed Buckley, gained undisputed possession of fourth place in the Eastern Collegiate League tonight by defeating the Pennsylvania quintet, 40-39.

Buckley and Bill Webber caged floor shots just before the first half ended to give Harvard a 21-17 lead. During the second session, Arnold Beinstein put the Quakers into a 30-28 lead by caging two corner shots.

Maryland Card Includes 59 Spring Events

An ambitious program of 59 spring sports contests in four sports, a majority of them home, face the baseball, track, tennis and lacrosse combinations of the University of Maryland.

The national championship lacrosse team, unbeaten in ten collegiate starts last year, has 11 matches this year, one at Army, two in Baltimore and the rest home.

The track team has eight meets booked, but is minus many of the stars which captured three out of five dual meets last year.

The tennis team has big shoes to fill following last year's net record of eight victories in nine matches, the best in the school's history.

Sphas Beat Celtics in Last Minute, 45-41; Brewers Win

Moe Frankel, guard on the Brooklyn Celtics, shoots wild in the overtime period in an effort to break a 41-all deadlock in the Celtic-Spha game last night in Riverside Stadium

Philadelphians Triumph in Final Seconds Of Overtime; Washington Downs New York

The Philadelphia Sphas put on the season's most timely finish to beat Kate Smith's Brooklyn Celtics, 45-41, in overtime in the first game of an American Pro League double-header last night at Riverside Stadium before 1,100 fans.

In the nightcap of the first pro league twin bill to be played here, the host, Washington Brewers, hung up a second straight victory, beating the New York Jewels, 31-25.

The Sphas were trailing the Celtics by two points when the gun sounded the end of regulation time in the opener, but Moe Goldman took a final shot a split second before the gun and the ball found the net for two tying points. Despite the protests of the Celtics, who were leading by seven points with four minutes to play, the goal counted.

The Brewers led all the way in the nightcap, although several times their lead was a mere point. Heurich's team led 12-7 at the end of the first period and 21-20 at the second. Nat Frankel supplied the winning points, dropping 6 field goals, 4 of them long spirals from midcourt.

Notre Dame Closes Year With Victory

Detroit, March 12 (AP).—Notre Dame's basketball team put on a high-powered show to close another successful season by trimming the University of Detroit tonight, 56 to 42, and keeping its record clear of defeat from the Tartars in the 15-year series.

Capt. Eddie Riska, playing his final college game, and Charley Butler, a sophomore, together collected 31 points as the Irish started slowly but finished in a burst of speed for their seventeenth triumph of the season. They lost five games.

Shortening Captures Sunny Isles Purse at Tropical Park

Filly Drives To Victory, Pays $24.60

Lazare's Tex Hygro Is Second; Seventh Day Third; Favorite Is Out of Money

By the Associated Press

Tropical Park, Fla., March 12.—Allen T. Simmons' Shortening, a daughter of Brevity, proved long on speed when it came to the stretch run and drove to a half-length victory in the 6-furlong Sunny Isles Purse here this afternoon. Eight 3-year-old fillies clashed in the feature, with Shortening, unable to win since last October, closing at $24.60 for $2. She was clocked in 1:11 flat.

Mrs. L. Lazare's Tex Hygro got up to head Mrs. A. Sabath's Seventh Day out of the runner-up award. Silvestra, a strong favorite, failed to become a menace at any time.

Conn McCreary, who, on Monday, got a divorce in St. Louis, returned to the saddle here today in the fourth race. He was out of the picture in that event, and rode Seventh Day to third money in the headliner.

React and Light As Air raced themselves into defeat during the first half mile while Shortening, apparently out of it, was a bad last at the first turn. When the field circled for home, Jockey Kaufman sent Shortening through an opening on the inside and the Simmons miss closed with a remarkable rush that carried her to the front in the bunched drive to the wire. Tex Hygro also found her stride late. Seventh Day wore down the tired Light As Air in the closing strides.

PONY BALLET held her opposition safe for speed and, raised in front while saving ground until straightened out into the stretch, shook off TRUE HEART after a mile shaking up. TRUE HEART, on the outside and in close attendance of the pace for 3 furlongs, was not equal to the winner in the stretch run. MAGIC MAY broke well and went forwardly the entire trip, but could not better her position.

BOB'S SQUAD forced a steady pace from the start, raced TRAVEL AGENT to defeat, drew out entering the stretch, but was ridden out briskly to the end. GAYSET, under pressure throughout, finished gamely, but could not get up. BEAU DO, a forward contender all the way, outgamed COME HOME in the final drive. The latter finished well.

Daily Double, PONY BALLET, BOB'S SQUAD Paid $43.20.

THIRD RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For maiden 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 3:07. Off at 3:08. Winner, R. W. Collins' b. c. DON BRUCE gained steadily in the last quarter mile while stealing through on the inside and lasted long enough to stave off STAR HUNTER'S bid. The latter, away slowly, worked his way up gradually after leaving the backstretch and finished fastest of all. PUNTA FINAL, in the thick of contention from the start, was weakly ridden when it came to a drive.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good from Puett gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post at 3:38. Off at 3:39. CALORY outbroke the field, opened up a long lead in the first half mile, but was hard hustled through the stretch to maintain his advantage. ABBASSIDE gained steadily the last quarter mile and wore RANGE DUST down in the final drive. RANGE DUST moved up strongly rounding the turn, but then bung in the final drive.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200. For 3-year-old fillies; allowances. Start good from Puett gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:06. Off at 4:06½. Winner, Allen T. Simmons' ch. f. SHORTENING, outrun the first half mile, moved up fast when placed to pressure and, stealing through between the leaders at the furlong pole, drew clear, but was under extreme pressure to the end. TEX HYGRO improved her position on the outside, but was carried wide turning into the stretch and lost much ground. SEVENTH DAY, hard driven from the start, finished stoutly in the final drive.

BECKHAMPTON, taken to the outside when straightened into the backstretch, moved up steadily, responded gamely to punishment and shook off BROOKLANDVILLE through the stretch. BROOKLANDVILLE, well up and on the outside early, went to the front rounding the lower turn, but was unable to keep stride with the winner when challenged. JAN ONE made a bold effort, but could not get up.

At The Post

Selections at Tropical Park

Dear Al:

It looks as if Brother W. L. Brann has gone California in a big way. I understand that he will keep Challedon out there and run him in the $50,000 Gold Cup, which he won last year at Hollywood Park, and we thought he was a Marylander, if only by adoption. Alfred G. Vanderbilt is another owner who is shining up to the West Coast. He is seriously considering leaving his star router, Impound, out there while the rest of his horses ramble in Maryland. Impound doesn't like the mud and Hollywood seldom, if ever, has off tracks during the racing season. Clyde Van Dusen, who had a pretty good horse named for him once, has resigned as trainer for L. B. Mayer. He saddled four winners one day and three another. Galt Davis, Mr. Big at the Rosslyn Bowling Alleys and a horse owner, has offered his alleys for a match between Art Brown and me. I hereby challenge the famous windbag. Do you know: Sun Briar, the great American sire, was first named Sunday? Willis Sharpe Kilmer changed it after he bought the colt. Sunspero is a Sun Briar standing at Ham Cotton's California haras, overlooking the Pacific. Exterminator is still alive and hearty, as of March 1, 1941—lives in Virginia and is in his twenty-sixth year. Albert Johnson and Willie Knapp, the two jockeys who rode him best, train horses on the Pacific Coast and are preparing their steeds for the Hollywood summer meeting. Man o' War was foaled one week before we declared war on Germany in World War I—March 29, 1917. He's sired more than 300 horses. Five time winter winner, Chalphone jumped from the low claiming ranks. Last summer he ran in $1,500 tilts around Hollywood Park, was claimed by the Loeff Stable and then by present owner, Willie Al-verado. Chalphone upheld the family honor while Challedon loitered by the wayside. They are by the same sire. Bay View is one of the smallest horses in training. He's covered with scars and has a hole in his side, result of some baby accident. In size he reminds oldtimers of Roamer and Old Rosebud, midget heroes of the past.

BILL.

First race—Requested appears best of the juveniles gathered for the day's opener. Comes from a good barn and will have the veteran Wayne Wright to do the booting. Milo has speed and gets the favorable inside post position. Notes will have some price attached and promises to be a keen factor.

Second race—Spandau has an excellent chance of downing a field of this sort. Gets only a steadying impost and I'm going to take my chances. Young County is fit and will have Anderson aboard. Rippler may be the third one.

Third race—Feltacairn appears much the best in this field and needs only the right handling. Any price will be a good one. Mill Tower may cause trouble, High Renown to take care of the show money.

Fourth race—Indian Lodge is better than generally rated and could take it all in a field of this sort. Imperial Jayna turned in a fair effort for us recently and is a threat. Maeline promises to be prominent.

Fifth race—Royal Man probably is the right one in this rather open race. Has the necessary class and Meade will do the booting. Devil's Craig has than fine recent performance as a recommendation. Ringle may be close.

Sixth race—Buckboard will be a dangerous factor if not the winner in this field. Likes the track and the route and I'm going to string along. Llanero belongs with these and will be close. Lovely Dawn for the show end.

Seventh race—Interlace may be the right one in this field. Gets a modest weight assignment and could surprise these. Flying Silver is good now and deserves watching. Miss B. B. may be the third one.

Eighth race—Buttermilk has been disappointing but let's see if we can awaken him now that he gets a feather assignment. Josie's Pal and Soldiers Call to take care of the place and show.

Best Bet—Feltacairn.

Eagles Entertain Hockey Orioles Tomorrow Night

The aggressive Baltimore Orioles are to pay Riverside Stadium a farewell 1940-41 Eastern Hockey League visit tomorrow night when they meet the Washington Eagles in the most crucial game remaining on both schedules at 8:30 o'clock.

This features a fierce rivalry that will be terminated in Baltimore Sunday night when the two teams meet in their final regularly scheduled game of the season at Iceland Arena, Carlin's Park. On Saturday night the Eagles are to play the Jersey Skeeters in River Vale, N. J.

The final visit of the Orioles to Riverside, coupled with the importance of this particular game, is expected to set a new paid attendance record at Riverside.

Barons Meet Lafayette, Of Kentucky

Riders to Engage Boys High, Atlanta; Roosevelt Has Good Chance at Durham

Anxious to be on the scene as early as possible, Bethesda-Chevy Chase High's basketball Barons left Washington yesterday via auto for their first game Friday in the Duke University Basketball Tournament in Durham, N. C. The other local representative for the second year in succession, Roosevelt High, will board a train at 9 a. m. this morning.

First round games in the third annual event in Duke's new gym will be played tonight, but both of Washington's contenders wait for Friday morning to play. Bethesda meets Lafayette High, of Lexington, Ky., at 9:30 a. m., and Roosevelt goes up against the powerful forces of Boys High, of Atlanta, Ga., at 11 a. m.

Durham Meets Marshall

In tonight's battles the defending champion Durham five clashes with John Marshall, of Richmond, in the nightcap and Greenville (S. C.) High and Jefferson, of Roanoke, Va., meet in the opener. Hostilities get under way at 8 p. m.

Indications from the Durham front lead to the belief that Roosevelt, if it gets past Boys' High, will have a fine chance of taking the title. The Atlantans appear slightly stronger than any team in the running with the possible exception of the Durham club, which has won the North Carolina State title four years in a row.

Bethesda's first outing should be a bit less strenuous than Roosevelt's, but to date it has shown less class than the Riders in local play. And this despite a Roosevelt loss to Gonzaga in the finals of the Metropolitan Tournament Tuesday.

Players Who Make Trip

Led by Coach Allan Vogt and faculty advisers, Bethesda players leving for the cage wars yesterday were Bbby Keene, Bob Crimins, Elton McClure, Duke Hashagen, Al Gaist, Dick Poerstel, Bob Lebling, Jack Rice and managers. Roosevelt's hopefuls leaving today will be Hymie Perlo and Frank Ciango, All-Metropolitan aces; Tom and George Robertson, Charley Howard, Dick Goodman, Lester Wicklein and Frank Redinger.

Leahy and Aides Get Right Down to Business at Notre Dame

Frank Leahy Takes Over At Notre Dame

By the Associated Press

South Bend, Ind., March 12.—Notre Dame football entered a new era today under the leadership of the sixteenth coach to guide its gridiron destiny—32-year-old Frank Leahy.

The new Irish mentor and athletic director, recently named successor to Elmer Layden, received a rousing welcome from the institution's 3,000 students, promised that "we will make no attempt to emulate Knute Rockne, but will try only to match Layden's record" and then met the Irish squad in the opening session of spring practice on old Cartier Field.

Introduced to the student body by the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, vice president of the university and chairman of the faculty board in control of athletics, Leahy said:

"We will try to live up to the reputation that Notre Dame football has made for itself from coast to coast—a reputation that has engulfed the Nation."

Runs, Hits & Errors

With SHIRLEY POVICH

Orlando, Fla., March 12.—Washington Fan Arthur Painter declares that all of the Nats' troubles are traceable to the short-sighted policy of the club's owner who isn't providing Manager Bucky Harris with worthwhile material. He writes:

"Washington won't have a winning ball team until Clark Griffith realizes that the horse-and-buggy age of baseball came to an end many years ago. His Washington farm system is a pitiful source of supply, and to prove that you only need to look at the Nats' 1941 roster. Not a rookie out of a Class Double A league, and most of them out of B leagues.

"Players out of those leagues are only glorified sandlotters, and that is what Bucky Harris has to work with. If Washington wants to play with big league clubs, Griffith ought to build up a big league farm system. The type of players who are called to the Nats' training camp would not be allowed to carry the bats or pitch batting practice in the camp of the Yankees, Indians and Tigers for example.

"Griffith has been spoiled by a few cases of success in getting players like Sid Hudson and Cecil Travis and Buddy Lewis out of the low leagues. He ought to realize that Hudson's development was a miracle that won't be repeated for many years. Not until he buys himself at least one Double A club, will Griffith be able to give us a first-division team."

An Orlando golf professional who is an avid baseball fan, took Buddy Lewis aside in the Nats' hotel today and volunteered to help him correct a batting fault. "You're a good natural hitter, I can see that," said the pro, "but I can see why you're not hitting the ball farther. You're meeting it well, but you're not getting the proper power into your swings. Your hands are going through before your body, and you're sacrificing power."

When the golf pro attempted to illustrate by taking an imaginary swing with perfect coordination and timing of the hands and body, Lewis looked on in understanding and said he found only one flaw in the pro's theory of swinging a bat.

"That's wonderful when you're hitting a golf ball," said Lewis, "but that damn baseball won't hold still for you and if you take the same kind of swing twice you're apt to miss a pitch by a foot."

The Nats will have no more first base worries with George Archie playing the position, avers Frances E. Mackey, a native Californian now a War Department workers in Washington. She writes:

"In California for the past two years I saw Archie play first base for the Seattle team and we often wondered why he was not in the big leagues. It was no surprise to us that Archie was awarded the most valuable player trophy at the end of last season. Washington fans will see a wonderful first baseman when the team returns to the North.

"In the Coast League, Archie was a stand-out among all the first basemen, not only in fielding but in batting. I saw the last few weeks of the big league season in Washington last summer and I did not see any American League first baseman who could go into the dirt or either a batted or thrown ball as well as Archie. And I do not think that there is any doubt that he will be able to hit big league pitching. Every Coast League fan in Washington will be proud of him before the season is over."

Now, I don't wan't you to get the impression that Reds whittled a chip off his crutch every morning and put it on his shoulder. Far from that, Reds was just about the happiest boy I ever knew. He had a keen sense of humor and a smile that would melt iron.

Reds was mischievous, in a Little Potato sort of way, but never downright bad. He did his share of yelling "grasshopper" at park policemen and was known to have tossed a dead cat in a vestibule on occasion, but he wasn't "onery" as the grown-ups were wont to call some of the neighborhood boys.

Perhaps you picture the Little Potatoes helping Reds across the street, running errands for him, rushing to his protection or giving him a "head start." If you do, change reels, because we didn't. Reds asked no quarter and we never gave any—nor did Reds need one for that matter.

Reds could do most anything. He skated on one skate, rode a bicycle and was the best swimmer in the gang. He played football, leaving his crutch behind him as he made a flying tackle. He caught behind the bat on the baseball team and generally "ran for himself." At marbles, or alleys as we called them, Reds was a "shark," a rating he later carried in the poolroom.

As a strategist in a "Run, Sheep, Run" game, Reds had no equal. He was king at "Duck on Davie," a game played with halves of bricks, and a master at "laddy," popular before growing traffic erased it from the curbstones.

Reds went to the parish school, so I never knew much about his ability as a student, but, like the other Little Potatoes, he probably operated with the mistaken idea that to study was sissified.

However, Reds was born with the gift of music. In addition to having a good voice, he could play just about any musical instrument that came his way.

I can remember one Christmas when he was not more than 10 years old. One of his presents was a miniature, tin sliding trombone. Before noon, the Little Potatoes, armed with their wooden guns and swords, marched up and down the block to the "Da, di, da di—da, da, da, di" of Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever."

It wasn't many years later that most of the Little Potatoes were marching with real guns. Reds, of course, couldn't go. He promised to take care of things at home. And he did.

He married the belle of our neighborhood!

POUNDS HAIGHT.

Flu Sidelines 2 More Chisox, Humphries, Dykes

Pasadena, Calif., March 12 (AP).—The influenza bug, which already has sidelined Bill Dietrich, Thornton Lee and Taft Wright, today caught up with Pitcher Johnny Humphries and even Manager Jimmy Dykes. Rain then completed the disorganizing of the Chicago White Sox baseball camp by forcing a cancellation of today's workout.

Joe DiMaggio Arrives in Yanks' Camp

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 12 (AP).—Joe DiMaggio crawled into uniform today and the Yankees were able to mark up a 100 per cent attendance, right down to President Ed Barrow, who arrived yesterday.

DiMaggio looked pale by comparison with his tanned teammates, but saying he was in good shape at 194 pounds, had yet to sign his contract, though he had agreed to terms.

He refused to divulge his salary, estimated to be $35,000, but said he was "completely satisfied."

Hank Greenberg Connects for Homer

Lakeland, Fla., March 12 (U.P.).—Hank Greenberg took up today where he left off last fall by banging the first pitch in his first time up in an intrasquad game for a home run with two men on base.

Batting in his usual clean-up spot, the Tiger slugger teed off on the first offering of Rookie Hal Manders, but it wasn't enough as the regulars dropped a 6-to-4 seven-inning decision to the recruits.

Greenberg's drive was one of six hits yielded by Manders and Virgil (Fire) Trucks. The recruits got seven off Earl Cook, who was charged with the loss, and Hal White. White, former Buffalo moundsman, shut out the regulars without a hit over the first three innings.

Feller Wild, Indians Regulars Lose, 5 to 4

Fort Myers, Fla., March 12 (AP).—Bob Feller's wildness and Ray Mack's ninth-inning error allowed the Yannigans to score five runs today and edge the Cleveland Indians' Regulars, 5 to 4.

Feller's four bases on balls forced in three runs in the first inning with Mack's fumble letting two more reserves cross the plate.

Spence Hits Homer; Bosox Regulars Beaten

Sarasota, Fla., March 12 (AP).—Stan Spence belted the first homer a Red Socker has made at the Sarasota training camp this season while aiding Joe Cronin's Yannigans in giving the Regulars a 3-0 drubbing today.

Spence made it against Bill Butland in the first inning of the full-distance practice game. The regulars made but four hits against Emerson Dickman and Herb Hash. Jim Tabor was rested because of a sore knee but he will return to action tomorrow against the Cincinnati Reds.

Joe Cox, who identifies himself as the Kansas Krasher, will do a bit of operating tonight on the huge frame of Lou Plummer, the Baltimore villain in the headline bout of the weekly wrestling show at Turner's Arena.

Two feminine grapplers will clash in a special added attraction—Patsy Miller, the Nevada cowgirl, and Betsy Forbes, who hails from New Mexico. Miss Miller and Miss Forbes will be battling for the right to engage Mildred Burke, the recognized champion, either late this month or early in April at the Arena. Miss Forbes holds a draw with Clara Mortensen, famous California grappler.

The Green Hornet, encased in green hood and gym suit to match, will swap groans with Paul Boesch. Yvon Robert, the handsome French Canadian who once ruled as world's champion, will take on Jean DeValteau, who claims to be a refugee from war-torn France, and Warren (Flash) Bockwinkle will tackle Len Macaluso, former All-American football hero from Colgate.

The Cox-Plummer set-to has the wrestling gentry all excited, for Promoter Turner will award a special prize designating the winner as Rough Man No. 1 Plummer says he'll settle for a cup of coffee. Action begins at 8:30 o'clock.

JOE MELLENDECK, Outfielder

He's grim about making the Washington ball team this year. Last spring he came to training camp as a wild, fun-loving college kid and broke a few of the rules, but marriage has toned him down and given him ambition.

He knows he has a chance to break into the Washington outfield if he can hit big league pitching. He can cover more ground right now than any outfielder on the squad except Roger Cramer, and he has been blessed with what could be the best throwing arm among the outfielders. It's already the strongest.

He quit Georgetown in 1939 and left football coach Jack Hagerty in the lurch for a backfield star, but he wanted to take no more chances with his injured knee. He wanted to be a big league ball player and was told that he had a chance after working out with the Nats during the summer of '39. He was signed to a Greenville contract in the Sally league and played there last season. He isn't very proud of his modest .300 batting average.

In the Nats' camp, he's regarded as a potential power boy despite his mere 175 pounds. The Nats bosses are not tampering with his lusty batting stroke in the hope that he will meet the ball often enough to retain it and thus provide them with a power hitter. If he fails to get his hits with the hefty stroke he now using, then they'll tell him to choke up a bit.

He's originally from Baltimore and a couple of generations ago his ancestors came from Germany. Washington scouts tabbed him on the Baltimore sandlots as a pretty good ball player long before Georgetown scouts recognized him as a swell football player. His backfield exploits in Georgetown's New York U. and Manhattan games in 1938 earned him all-American mention. He hurt his knee in the first minute of play in the G. U.-Maryland game that ended the '38 season.

He can swish that bat.

Mrs. Bill Speaks!

Mrs. Ackerman on Fishing

Palm Beach, Fla., March 12, 1941.

Dear Sporting Editor:

You have heard of pinch hitters in baseball, but I doubt if you have ever heard of one in fishing. That, however, is what I am doing right now—trying to get something together that you might use as one of Bill's stories—in other words, pinch-hitting for him.

He's out on the stern of the Lev-Lou right now with Larry Richey—the pair of them just watching baits skipping, and probably hoping for a strike—while he should be doing what he has wished off on me.

The Miami Rod and Reel Club team is fishing against the Florida Sailfish Club off St. Lucie inlet today, and while we didn't get out early enough to get up the beach where they were, the phone is bringing in some perfectly swell reports of catches. One boat is going down now, wide open, but with flags flying, one for a fish boated, another for a release. Others are showing far astern of us, and will probably have as many or more.

You know, Ben, these fishermen down here really take their fishing seriously; they'll fish against each other for marbles or money, and drop work or anything else that might interfere with their fishing, and put it off until tomorrow.

After they get into the dock tonight, they will continue the fishing, and how those fish will have grown because of too many tall, cold ones. But that is part of the game, too, as I have found it—through Bill dragging me around. I believe I know every fisherman from Key West to Calais by their first names, and every hole worth dunking a line in—but how I love it.

Capt. Lev Raymond has been talking to Capt. Tom Gifford over the phone this afternoon. He is off Bimini in the Stormy Petrel, with a big blue marlin on, and trying to talk Bill into going over. And he probably will, for during the past few days they have raised quite a few big fish after several weeks of poor fishing.

That blue marlin is probably a large fish, when Tommy says so, and it has a woman on the other end of the line. I'm pulling for her so that the trophy offered just this past week by Mrs. Helen Lerner for the largest fish caught by a woman during the run of the Miami Fishing Tournament will get plenty of play.

Larry and Bill haven't exactly been wasting their time this afternoon, for they have several nice small fish in the box—dolphin, mackerel and cero, but not the sailfish for which they came. In fact, they haven't even raised one, but, after all, it was a short day. Tomorrow we are shoving off early for Stuart, where the big babies have been congregating all winter—but Bill will probably tell you about that.

Sincerely yours,
(Mrs.) BILL.

Titchenal Signs Redskin Contract

Bob Titchenal, the Redskins' prize rookie of 1940, has signed his contract to play in 1941, General Manager Jack Espey announced yesterday. He is the ninth veteran to sign and the seventeenth player to put his name on a 1941 contract.

At the same time, Espey announced that Morris Buckingham, who will be graduated from San Jose State in June, has informed Coach Ray Flaherty that he will sign after graduation. Buckingham and Titchenal shared the center assignment on the football team at San Jose State two years ago.

Special Surveys Planned

Paul J. Seltzer, assistant treasurer of the American Security and Trust Co., has been appointed a sub-committee member of the National Research Committee. The committee is newly-organized by the American Institute of Banking and will make special surveys along statistical lines.

Mr. Seltzer's assigned duty will be to gather information from banks here, assemble and transmit data to the national chairman, G. Fred Berger of Norristown, Pa. Under Mr. Berger's direction, final tabulation will take place and analyses made for the institute's national offices. The new committee also will cooperate with the American Bankers Association.

Business Continues Up

Business conditions in Washington as of March 1 stood at 9 per cent above normal, representing a gain of 2 per cent over the standing for February 1. On March 1, 1940 the city's business index stood at 1 per cent above normal according to a survey by Brooke, Smith, French & Dorrance, Inc., national advertising firm.

"Business activity throughout the country continued its strong upward trend during February," the report states. "The figures show February gains in 98 of the 147 trading areas of the United States. Of the remaining areas, 19 held at the same level as the previous month and only 30 registered slight declines."

Agents' Total Drops

Although life insurance sales and volume in force increased in 1940, the number of full-time life insurance agents in this country declined 4,000 in 1940 to a total of 130,000, it was revealed yesterday by a census of agents just completed by the Life Insurance Sales Research Bureau.

The present total is 19,000 less than five years ago and this 13 per cent fewer agents last year serviced 17 per cent more life insurance in force than in 1935.

In addition to the full time agents, there are 22,000 part-time agents, one-fourth less than five years ago, and 39,000 brokers handling life insurance, making a total of 191,000 agents selling and servicing the 5,000,000 owners of life insurance in this country.

Cotton Futures

New York, March 12 (AP).—Last-minute selling by leading spot interests erased small gains in cotton futures today and the market closed only 1 point higher for March and 2 to 6 lower on forward deliveries. Trade and mill demand slackened in line with lessened activity in Worth Street textile markets. A fair amount of hedge selling reflected large spot sales yesterday and increased purchases of equities in cotton held under the Government loan as a result of the recent gains in futures.

Turnover in print cloth yarn goods was estimated at between 7,000,000 and 8,000,000 yards. Recent advances in price have resulted in a little more caution among buyers.

Cottonseed Oil

New York, March 12 (AP).—Cottonseed oil futures jumped 22 to 23 points today to the season's highest prices in the largest trade since May last year. Turnover amounted to 359 contracts. Driven ahead by a favorable consumption report and strength in edible cottonseed oil and other competing vegetable oils and fats, the market plowed through heavy realizing and hedging sales.

Refiner interests bought around 3,000,000 pounds of crude oil in the South overnight and today at 6 cents a pound. Further inquiries appeared at that level, but sellers generally asked 6¼ cents.

The buying movement in futures was touched off by a February consumption report of 308,551 barrels. This compared with trade estimates ranging from 280,000 to 300,000 barrels.

May closed 7.12 bid; July, 7.24; September, 7.35; October, 7.36.

New Orleans Cotton

New Orleans, March 12 (AP).—Cotton futures were nervous and irregular here today with the bulk of operations confined to trade character. Closing prices were steady 3 points net higher to 2 points lower.

Committee Named to Select New Stock Exchange Head

By the Associated Press

New York, March 12.—Governors of the New York Stock Exchange today initiated action to select a new president to fill the $48,000 a year post now held by 34-year-old William McChesney Martin, jr., who has indicated he will resign in May to enter the Army.

A special five-man committee was named to search for a new administrative head and to lay the groundwork for consideration of a further reform in the management along the lines recently proposed by Martin.

Martin suggested a reduction in the board of governors from 32 to 16 men and elimination of most of the remaining exchange committees so that the management would be almost entirely concentrated in the hands of salaried officers.

The change, if finally brought into a concrete proposal for a vote by the membership, will be worked out after the annual election of new governors in May, it was indicated.

The special committee, announced after a regular meeting of the governing board, consists of Robert L. Stott, John A. Coleman, Paul W. Shields and Robert P. Boylan, all of New York, and Russell E. Gardner, jr., of St. Louis.

Also serving on the special committee, but as ex officio members, will be Martin, Charles B. Harding, present chairman of the board, and the two public representatives among the governors—Curtis E. Calder, head of American & Foreign Power Co., and Roswell Magill, tax authority and former Undersecretary of the Treasury.

Martin presented in detail his plan for additional "streamlining" of the management, extending the drastic reforms instituted three years ago, when he became the first paid president in a shake-up which ousted the so-called "old guard" element.

The forthcoming election of the new president and the proposed changes of managerial set-up stirred the exchange membership into the biggest discussion of Wall Street projects since the 1938 upheaval.

Involved in the alignment of exchange forces, informed members said, was the old division between members handling orders on the floor and office partners who produce the business for the commission houses.

Three of the five active members of the special committee, it was noted, are floor members, namely, Boylan, Stott and Coleman. However, they were more than balanced by the ex officio group.

Brokerage circles said the field of selection of a new president was "wide open" and that while many prominent business and political names were being mentioned, there was no indication as to where the choice would fall.

Copper Supplies Reach New Low

New York, March 12 (AP).—The Copper Institute reported today stocks of refined copper in the hands of domestic producers dropped 19,165 tons during February to 97,689 tons, lowest since the institute started compiling figures in mid-1933.

Blister stocks of copper declined 14,561 tons during the month, or a total drop in all stocks above ground of 33,726 tons. Deliveries to consumers from producers' plants declined to 112,808 tons from 119,736 in January.

U. S. to Expand Egg Purchasing

By the Associated Press

The surplus marketing administration is expanding its egg purchase operations in a move to stabilize producer prices.

It was asked dealers at country points to submit price offers twice each week on eggs. During the winter purchases were limited, officials said, to terminal markets. Officials said the quantity to be bought would be determined by prices and the supply situation.

Egg prices have been declining recently, reflecting record production in most parts of the country. The eggs bought by the Governmental agency are distributed among needy families.

Stocks Lose Day's Gain in Closing Burst Of Profit-Taking; Shipbuilding List Strong

New York, March 12.—Shipbuilding shares advanced today under the impetus of the lease-lend law for aid to Great Britain, but a parallel upward movement through the rest of the stock market collapsed under the pressure of late profit-taking.

The sudden drop from the day's best prices, which had been recorded half an hour before the final bell rang, came in the last 10 minutes as many traders rushed to cash in fractional point profits made during the day.

Brokers said there were no news developments causing the late sell-off and described it merely as "simultaneous" profit-taking. The swift fall in quotations, they said, was caused by the "thinness" of the market, and pointed to the small sales' total as proof.

War industries' shares were stimulated by reports of the speed with which the United States was acting to apply the provisions of the lease-lend act. Further cause for optimism in some quarters was seen in the belief that the act would prevent, at least for the time being, forced sale of some companies financed by direct British investments.

Rail shares passed a comparatively steady day, partly as the result of estimates that passenger travel was running 10 per cent ahead of last year.

Best performers on the rising side included New York Shipbuilding, Electric Boat, Bath Iron Works, Climax Molybdenum, Eastman, Douglas Aircraft and General Motors. On the downside were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Westinghouse, United Aircraft and Anaconda.

In the Curb, where 81,000 shares were exchanged compared with 83,000 yesterday, gains were made by Aluminum of America, Pittsburgh Plate Glass and New England Telephone, while Midvale, Lake Shore Mines and Creole Petroleum lost ground.

Except for strength in selected rails, bonds followed the course of stocks. Commodities were irregular. At Chicago, wheat ended ⅞ cent to 1⅛ cents a bushel down and corn ⅛ cent up to ⅛ cent off. Cotton closed 5 cents a bale higher to 30 cents lower.

Brokerage Firms Merge in Gotham

New York, March 12 (AP).—A merger of the New York Stock Exchange firms of Carlisle, Mellick & Co. and Jacquelin & DeCoppet was announced today in one of the largest consolidations of brokerage facilities since the shrinkage in stock trading in recent months forced Wall Street houses to seek economy in operations.

The two houses, known in the financial district as "odd-lot" dealers, handle for other brokers transactions in less than the standard 100-share trading unit.

The new firm, to be known as Carlisle & Jacquelin, will have, it was said, the largest number of seats on the exchange of any commission house. There will be 11 partners with Stock Exchange memberships.

G. M. Reports $683,400,000 In Arms Work

By the Associated Press

New York, March 12.—Alfred P. Sloan, jr., chairman of the General Motors Corp., gave the stockholders today a picture of the giant automotive concern turning its machine-building skill into arms production and said thousands of workers would be added to payrolls of new aircraft assembly, engine and munitions factories destined to go into operation in the next year.

He reported General Motors had $683,400,000 in defense contracts at the end of January compared with 1940 deliveries of about $60,000,000 against arms orders.

The Allison liquid-cooled airplane motors plant at Indianapolis, he noted, is expanding toward a late 1941 goal of 1,000 engines monthly compared with recent output of 350. Allison employment, he added, is scheduled to rise to around 15,000 from about 10,000 now.

Objectives Listed

Rushing construction and tooling of defense factories in addition to record-breaking assembly of cars and trucks for the civilian market, General Motors was portrayed as aiming at these immediate objectives:

Completion for full production about a year hence of a plant to manufacture Pratt & Whitney airplane engines on a 125-acre site at Melrose Park, near Chicago, geared to turn out 500 motors a month with a force of 10,000 men.

Start of production by May on a $16,800,000 order for shells, cartridge cases and fuses, for which the forge plant at the Lansing, Mich., Olds Motor works is being tooled.

Diesel Work Cited

Continued rapid delivery of Chevrolet trucks against $62,800,000 in U. S. and British orders.

Sloan concluded his special defense progress message, sent to nearly 400,000 share holders, by saying the company sought to execute on the "broadest front" its desire to cooperate in the defense effort.

Power Output Up 15% in Week

New York, March 12 (AP).—Electric power production in the United States in the week ended March 8 totaled 2,835,321,000 kilowatt hours, the Edison Electric Institute announced today.

The week's out-turn represented an increase of three-tenths of one per cent over the 2,825,510,000 kilowatt hours for the preceding week, and a gain of 15.1 per cent over the 2,463,999,000 for the like week of 1940.

Council Seeks 'Name Bands' For Army Dances

Selects from nearby Army posts will dance to major "name bands" at weekly parties sponsored by the Defense Council if a council representative's mission today is successful.

Thomas Stowe, of the Federal Employes Council, will negotiate today for contracts with such bands at RCA headquarters in Camden, N. J., Archie Edwards, Defense Council executive, said last night.

Meanwhile, three new shows for service men were announced by the Defense Council. The first will be held Friday at 8:30 p. m. in the Government Printing Office, with the GPO Players presenting a play, "Rollo's Wild Oats," under the direction of George Vivian.

On March 20, two variety show units of the Radio and Show Committee plan to entertain service men at Fort Meade and Fort Belvoir. Five or six such units are being formed for future productions, it was announced by Chairman Lee H. Shugar.

A radio quiz program for Federal employes as well as selects is being planned for the first week in April and each subsequent week, Shugar said. Teams from both groups will participate, he added.

Listen! with Glynn

J. L. Acuff, of the Department of the Interior, and Miss Doris Merrick, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, are the two Federal employes who get a week's free trip to Florida as a result of that contest featured on WJSV's "Your Government This Week" program.

Their entries, on how recreation facilities for government workers could be improved in the District, were selected as the best from among hundreds submitted during the several weeks of the contest.

The judges were Lucille Foster McMillan, Civil Service Commissioner; Dr. Frederick W. Davenport, Director of the Council of Personnel Administration; Capt. Frank W. Hoover, general manager of the Welfare and Recreation Association; Sybil Baker, Director of Community Centers, and Arch Edwards, chairman of the Federal Employes Council.

The winners, who leave Washington Friday, March 14, have been given their transportation aboard the "Silver Meteor" of the Seaboard Railway to St. Petersburg. There they'll be housed at the Huntington Hotel and given their entertainment by all the major civic and social organizations of that Florida city. They'll have access to all St. Petersburg's golf, yacht and beach clubs.

Florida's Congressman, James H. Peterson, will be among the dignitaries who will bid the two fortunate Washingtonians goodspeed when they board the train for their surprise vacation on Friday.

Contract Bridge

The hand in today's box, with which Dwight Woodbridge was fortunate in scoring a small slam, illustrates a situation P. Hal Sims used to emphasize in his writings: the importance of bidding so as to assure that the proper hand plays the final contract.

Today's Hand

SOUTH DEALER

◇ A 10 3
♣ K 9

The bidding:

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♡ | Pass | 1 ♠ | Pass |
| 3 ♡ | Pass | 4 NT | Pass |
| 5 ♡ | Pass | 5 NT | Pass |
| 6 ◇ | Pass | 6 NT | Pass |
| Pass | Pass | | |

Opening lead: ♣ 4.

A study of the hands reveals that six spades or six no trump can be made by North, and that six hearts can be made by South, provided a club is not led. No lead can defeat either of North's contracts while the natural lead of a club does defeat any bid for a slam by South.

In rubber bridge there might be doubt as to the correct declaration, but six spades would be the best choice because of the greater safety, and also because of the score for honors. At match-point duplicate honors are not scored, so when Mr. Woodbridge met the hand, he correctly picked no trump, taking another top to win the tournament and a share of the auction pool.

Gertrude Lawrence, the 'Lady In the Dark,' Treads a Path Bright With Success

Dreams Have All Come True for One Great Lady of Stage

By Vesta Kelling
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, March 12.—Surely Gertrude Lawrence has made all her wish fulfillment dreams come true.

Certainly, being an actress, she fears neither big crowds and loud noises nor great heights, even though she is being "psyched" six nights and two matinees weekly before Manhattan audiences these days in her current Broadway hit, "Lady in the Dark."

Maladjustment was in evidence, it is true, when I called on Miss Lawrence in her 8-by-10 dressing room the other afternoon after the matinee, but it was merely a matter of lack of space; there was not a sign of a repression, not a complex in sight.

To give you a rough idea, among those present were six unidentified friends. . . . A delegation from the Bundles for Britain publicity department. . . . Calm Carrie Wallace, Miss Lawrence's Negro maid, who worked for Marilyn Miller for 12 years. . . . . Wires and letters from celebrities pinned around the dressing table mirror and on all available wall space. . . . Flowers. . . . Miss Lawrence's press agent. . . . A tray of make-up shoved under the closet drapes . . . A huge magnifying make-up mirror as conspicious as an air raid searchlight. . . . A theater manager. . . . Autographed pictures of Charlie Chaplin, Ethel Barrymore, Mary Pickford, Gloria Swanson and scores of other celebrities, many of which were hung so near the ceiling you could not make out autographs or face.

Always Thinking of England

She gave two interviews simultaneously, but it was plain that England was never far from her mind.

"I am going to London in June," she told everyone happily.

"Yes, Liza (her present role) is one of my favorite parts . . . Can you fancy, though, marrying a desk because someone told you at 3 that you were plain? . . . I'm going to fly across on the clipper.

"No, I've never known a psychiatrist . . . I'm going to visit all my entertainment units when I'm home."

Miss Lawrence has been raising money and talent to divert the British army. She also helped move 54 children from the British actors' orphanage to the United States.

"Yes, Moss Hart, the author of my play is being psychoanalyzed and that's how he got the idea for the show . . . Next week I start learning to make bandages right here in New York."

This slim English actress with the tip-tilted nose lived at a hospital the first few weeks after "Lady In the Dark" opened, the first night having been delayed on account of her illness.

Miss Lawrence is an able tactician in the lifelong battle she wages between time and the numerous things she wants to do.

GERTRUDE LAWRENCE

At 42, She's Described As a 'Whirlwind' Of Varied Activity

The Lady really is a whirlwind. At 42 she sings, emotes and does high kicks in "Lady In the Dark." She has a daughter, Pamela, 22, and a new husband, Theatrical Producer Stoddard Aldrich, 38.

At 10, Gertrude Lawrence made her debut in London in a pantomine for children. Three years later she met the only person who today contends that she should be "psyched," Noel Coward, then a small boy.

He later chronicled the beginnings of their long friendship with these words: "She gave me an orange and told me a few midly dirty stories and I loved her from then onward."

Mr. Coward feels that Miss Lawrence needs the attention of a behavior expert to correct her irrepressible tendency to spend money on cables, telegrams and long distance phone calls.

Miss Lawrence suffered from an intense phobia against theatrical managers as a child actress, according to Coward. When on tour with Coward and other child actors, she frequently struck managers on the head with a wooden bat which she kept handy.

Once understudy for Beatrice Lillie, Miss Lawrence and Miss Lillie combined with Coward and the three became almost as indissoluble a theatrical group as Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne or Katharine Cornell and Guthrie McClintic.

Such approval must be very rich fare and its comes to Miss Lawrence in generous helpings daily.

Says Lawrence S. Kubie, M. D., New York psychiatrist, in a letter written after he saw Miss Lawrence's play.

"I am sure that you have received many an enthusiastic word of congratulation for your "Lady in the Dark.' It is possible, however, that just as the reviewers have been too dazzled by the glitter of the play to see its essence, so many of your writers of fan letters may miss the extraordinary sensitivity and integrity of your picture of Liza. For strange and perverse reasons, human beings tend to sneer at the age-old human tragedy of yearning in the face of plenty. Apparently we have to protect ourselves by jeering at the neurotic misery that is all around us.. You have done an inestimable service by giving such dignity to this portrayal of a woman in pain. I think it will be remembered as one of the great creations of the stage."

Never a Dull Moment in the Cody Home

Los Angeles, March 12 (AP).—Fred B. Cody's reasons for asking a divorce include these accusations:

The charges were contained in a cross-complaint filed yesterday to Mrs. Mae Cody's original suit, which asserted the steam shovel operator beat her and associated with other women.

Rosello Death Called Suicide

Pedro Salvador Rosello, 30, of 1730 Eighteenth Street Northwest, who shot himself in the head at a shooting gallery Tuesday, died at Emergency Hospital yesterday, and his death was declared a suicide.

Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate after a note in Spanish found in the man's pocket complained of ill health, revealed his intention to kill himself and asked forgiveness.

Rosello shot himself at 406 Ninth Street Northwest, despite efforts of George H. Webster, of 1015 G Street Northwest, the attendant, to stop him.

The dead man's sister, Anna Rosello, claimed the body yesterday and said it would be shipped to Cuba for burial.
